FROM THE "GAZETTE OF INDIA" NEW DELHI, SATURDAY JANUARY 13, 1945

OFFICE OF THE PRIVATE SECRETARY TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY

New Delhi, the 11th January 1945

No. 28-H.—His Excellency the Viceroy is pleased to sanction the following awards for gallant and distinguished service in Italy :—

The Indian Order of Merit

12122 Naik GURNAM SINGH, 1st Punjab Regiment. (Sikh, Chirik, Moga, Jind State). (POSTHUMOUS).

The farm at Colle Di Pozzo is situated on a mound, the sheer banks of which are about 40 feet high. The only available track leads from the South and is overlooked by the buildings which constitute the farm. On the night 10/11 July, a night encircling attack by "A" Company (Sikh) was planned from a distance from which the steepness of the cliff could be estimated. During the attack Naik GURNAM SINGH was a section commander on the right of a platoon which had reached the foot of the cliff in pitch darkness, when an enemy sentry, immediately above the platoon, gave the alarm. Fire was immediately opened by five enemy machine guns, and grenades were thrown on to the platoon below. The platoon Commander realising that the cliff was in most places impassable, was forced to pause in order to reconnoitre and revise his plan. Meanwhile, Naik GURNAM SINGH appreciated the danger, to the platoon from its enforced wait for orders. On his own initiative, he forced his way up the cliff, hauled up his section one by one, killed the sentry and, in spite of intense machine gun and grenade fire, attacked the house. Finding it barricaded, he forced his way in with pickaxes, grenade and Piat, working under intense fire for some 15 minutes , and silenced all he machine guns in the house.

He then led his section to attack the second house. As a result of his action the platoon was enabled to advance up the track to the farm, unopposed, 4 enemy were killed and 13 taken prisoner. Naik GURNAM SINGH's initiative courage and determined example extricated his platoon from a dangerous position and made possible a successful action. On the following day intense shellfire came down on the company when formed up for an attack. This shelter continued up to Zero hour and afterwards, Naik GURNAM SINGH realising that delay might prejudice the success of the attack, was first to rise up and lead the company into the attack until killed by an enemy shell. His conduct throughout both actions was an example of calculated courage and unselfish determination, which inspired the whole company.

(His widow, if any, is admitted to the pension of the Order with effect from the date of his death.)

14993 Naik DUREZ KHAN, 10 th Baluch Regiment. (Punjabi-Mussalman, Jamalwali, Mangwal, Jhelum, Punjab). (POSTHUMOUS).

On the 14th July, 1944, on Mount Cedrone this N.C.O. led a section in a company attack which was unsuccessful, because of particularly violent enemy mortar and machine gun fire. It was followed before the objective was reached by an immediate enemy counterattack. Naik DUREZ KHAN calmly directed the fire of his section until all the section became casualties. He then fired the L. M. G. himself. When the ammunition was expended he took a " Tommy Gun " off a dead man, got up and charged the enemy, firing the gun as he went. Two days later when Mount Cedrone was finally captured this gallant N. C. O.'s body was found far in advance of the other dead of the company. The heroism of Naik DUREZ KHAN far exceeded the call of duty. Instead of withdrawing with the remnants of his company, his courageous spirit carried him towards his objective and certain death.

(His widow, if any, is admitted to the pension of the Order with effect from the date of his death).

The Indian Distinguished Service Medal

13159 Lance Havildar DALL SINGH, 11th Sikh Regiment (Jat-Sikh, Hassu, Sarsa, Kalanwali, Hissar, Punjab).

6936 Havildar SHER KHAN, 15th Punjab Regiment (Punjabi Mussalman, Tehi, Talagang, Attock, Punjab).

Provided that the Central Government may if it thinks fit at any time relieve such person from such disqualification.

50. Corrupt practices—For the purpose of these Rules—

(a) a person shall be deemed to have committed a corrupt practice—

LEGISLATIVE DEPAPTMENT

RESOLUTION

New Delhi, the 15th January 1945

No. F. 209/41-C&G (Judl.)—The following statement is published for general information :

Statement

Two proposals for the enlargement of the jurisdiction of the Federal Court have been under the consideration of the Government of India and the Secretary of State for some considerable time.

2. The first proposal arises from the scheme adopted in sections 205 and 206 of the Constitution Act. Under section 205 an appeal lies to the Federal Court, and no direct appeal lies to His Majesty in Council, from a judgment, decree or final order of a High Court in British India if the High Court certifies that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or any Order in Council made thereunder. Section 206 empowers the Federal Legislature—and by virtue of section 316 the Indian Legislature of the transitional period—to provide by Act that in such civil cases as may be specified in the Act an appeal shall lie to the Federal Court without a certificate of the nature referred to in section 205, and by subsection (2) further empowers the Federal or Indian Legislature to make consequential provision for the abolition of direct appeals in civil cases to His Majesty in Council either with or without special leave. The Orders in Council hitherto made under section 320 have been so framed as to exclude section 206 from coming into force along with the remainder of Chapter I of Part IX and the section is still not in force.

3. The proposal which originally commended itself to the Government of India was that Parliamentary legislation should be promoted for the amendment of section 206 so as to eliminate sundry anomalies to which attention had been drawn and that on the enactment of this legislation the whole section should be brought into force by Order in Council under section 320 so as to empower the Indian Legislature to confer a right of appeal to the Federal Court from decisions of High Courts in civil cases and consequentially to abolish, direct appeals from such decisions to the Privy Council either with or without special leave. After exhaustive consideration, however, the Secretary of State has reached the conclusion in which the Government of India concur, that the Indian Legislature ought not at this stage to be placed in a position enabling it to abolish direct appeals with special leave to the Privy Council from High Courts in cases outside the scope of section 205, or, in other words, that any Indian legislation under section 206 providing for an appeal to the Federal Court should not deprive a party of the option of seeking special leave to appeal to the Privy Council. In view of this conclusion, the proposal now is that the Parliamentary legislation for the amendment of section 206 should itself provide for the coming into force of subsection (1) and (3) thereof to the exclusion of subsection (2) and that no steps should for the present be taken to bring subsection (2) into force. The effect would be to empower the Indian Legislature to vest the Federal Court with a civil appellate jurisdiction concurrent with that of the Privy Council and to leave the choice of the form of appeal to the free option of the party to whom a right of appeal had accrued.

4. Reference has been made to the desirability of removing certain anomalies before section 206 is brought into force to the extent proposed. The principal point involved is that section 206 is expressed in terms of a "High Court" in British India, with the result that the power conferred upon the Indian Legislature by that section extends to the conferment of a right of appeal to the Federal Court from the decisions of such Courts only as are enumerated in section 219 to the exclusion of other Courts of final appellate jurisdiction in British India (e.g., the Courts of the Judicial Commissioners in Ajmer-Merwara, Coorg and British Baluchistan) which are High Courts within the meaning of Indian legislation and from whose decisions appeals lie to the Privy Council under section 109 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Section 205 is similarly expressed, with the even more anomalous result that while a direct appeal from a Constitution Act High Court in a "constitutional" case lies to the Federal Court, a direct appeal from a Court of final appellate jurisdiction which is not such High Court continues to lie to the Privy Council to the exclusion of the Federal Court. It is proposed, therefore, to amend both sections so as to extend the provision made for Constitution Act High Courts to other Courts of final appellate jurisdiction in British India. It is also proposed to make such further amendments in section 206 as will enable the Indian Legislature to equate in all respects the conditions under which appeals will lie to the Federal Court with the conditions under which appeals now lie to the Privy Council under section 109 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

5. Clause (a) of subsection (1) of section 206 imposes minimum and maximum limits of Rs. 15,000 and Rs. 50,000, respectively, on the amount of value of the subject matter necessary to the creation of a right of appeal to the Federal Court without special leave. No change in this respect is proposed, and it is contemplated that any legislation enacted by the Indian Legislature in pursuance of section 206 would amend section 110 of the Code of Civil Procedure so as to substitute for the reference therein to Rs. 10,000 a reference to such higher sum—not being less than Rs. 15,000 or more than Rs. 50,000—as may be adopted as the minimum amount or value involving a right of appeal to the Federal Court without special leave. The actual figure to be adopted within these limits would rest with the Indian Legislature; but the figure which Government have in mind is Rs. 15,000. The substitution of a reference to the higher figure for the reference in section 110 of the Code of Civil Procedure to Rs. 10,000 would involve the abolition of the existing right of appeal to the Privy Council in cases in which the amount or value is not less than Rs. 10,000 but is less than the higher figure to be adopted, but the abolition pro tanto of existing appeals to the Privy Council by right of grant is of course within the powers of the Indian Legislature independently of subsection (2) of section 206.

6. In the course of the discussions of the proposal under consideration attention has been drawn to the fact that the Federal Court has held judicially that a judgment of a single Judge of a High Court is a judgment in respect of which subsection (1) of section 205 applies despite the fact that a so-called Letters Patent appeal lies to the High Court from such judgment. The Secretary of State and the Government of India entertain no doubt that this decision correctly interprets the existing law, but they are not convinced that the effect in this respect is desirable, and they feel that it would be more consonant with principle that appeals from a High Court to the Federal Court should be confined to cases in which all rights of appeal within the High Court itself have been exhausted. It is therefore proposed that the legislation in contemplation should include provision excluding the possibility of a direct appeal to the Federal Court from the judgment of a single Judge from which an appeal lies to a Bench of the High Court itself.

7. The second proposal contemplates the insertion [in] the constitution Act of a section empowering the Cent[ral] Legislature to provide for reference to and decision by [the] Federal Court of questions of law arising out of ord[ers] made by any appellate tribunal constituted under the l[aw] for the time being in force in British India relating [to] taxes on income, or, in other words to transfer to [the] Federal Court the jurisdiction now vested in High Cou[rts] by section 66 of Indian Income-tax Act. The decis[ion] of a High Court on such reference is now appealable [to] the Privy Council, and the section to be inserted in [the] Constitution Act would be so drawn as to render a de[ci]sion of the Federal Court in exercise of this jurisdicti[on] appealable to the Privy Council by leave either of [the] Federal Court or of the Privy Council itself. The propo[sal] is inspired in the main by the desirability of secur[ing] uniformity in the judicial interpretation of income-tax l[aw] more easily than is possible under existing conditions wh[ich] have not infrequently led to most embarrassing confl[icts] of judicial opinion.

8. It is realized that if the enactment of Parl[ia]mentary legislation in the sense indicated in this n[ote] were followed by legislation in the Indian Legislat[ure] either or both of the directions involved, an increase of [the] present strength of the Federal Court would be requir[ed]. No attempt has been made to estimate the precise ext[ent] of the necessary increase, but on the footing that [the] vesting of the Federal Court with jurisdiction in respect [of] income-tax references was not envisaged when six was fi[xed] by subsection (1) of section 200 as the limit to which t[he] number of Puisne Judges can be increased without a[n] address to His Majesty it is proposed that the contemplat[ed] Parliamentary legislation should include provision [for] increasing this limit to eight.

9. The Secretary of State has intimated that he w[ould] be prepared to promote Parliamentary legislation on t[he] lines indicated in this statement if but not unless he [is] satisfied that the proposals would be acceptable to Indi[an] opinion. Steps will therefore be taken to give the utm[ost] possible publicity to this statement, and any comme[nts] on the proposals therein which are received by the [...] May, 1945, will receive careful consideration. Any pers[on] or association desiring to furnish comments on the pr[o]posals should forward the same direct to the Secretary [to] the Government of India in the Legislation Departme[nt]. Any comments received will be supplied to the Memb[ers] of the Central Legislature, and steps will be taken in d[ue] course to arrange a debate on the proposals in ea[ch] Chamber of that Legislature.

(a) every oil-filled switch or switch board, or static condenser or transformer having an oil capacity exceeding 50 gallons shall be segregated from all other apparatus by suitable fire-proof walls, and suitable oil drains and soak pits shall be provided so as to prevent the spread of oil fires from any part to any other part of the installation ; and

(b) cable trenches inside sub-stations and containing cables shall be filled with sand, pebbles or similar non-inflammable materials or covered with non-inflammable slabs ; and

(c) such other conditions (if any) as the Inspector may think fit to impose :

Provided that installations brought into use before the 4th December 1943 and not fulfilling the conditions of this sub-rule, need not comply therewith before the 4th December 1944.

In sub-rule (1) of rule 118 after the figures "61", the figures and brackets "62(2), 62(3)", shall be inserted. In rule 119 for the figures and word "48 and 60", the figures and word "48, 60 and 62' shall be substituted.

FROM THE " GAZETTE OF INDIA ", NEW DELHI, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1945

OFFICE OF THE PRIVATE SECRETARY TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY

New Delhi, the 19th February 1945

No. 54-H—His Excellency the Viceroy is pleased sanction the following awards for gallant and dis- ...ished service in Italy :—

The Indian Order of Merit

Jemadar Faqir Ahmad. (I.O. 37921). 2nd ...njab Regiment. (P.M., Jatial, Hazro, Attock, ...unjab.).

On 2nd September 1944, at MONTALONE, village, ...emadar FAQIR AHMAD, was in command of No. 8 ...latoon of a Punjabi-Mussalman, company of his ...attalion. He had been ordered to maintain a stand- ...g patrol on the former feature which was outside ...e range of supporting weapons. On deploying his ...latoon to hold the objective it came under heavy ...mall arms fire from positions recessed in the hills ...E and NW of MONTALONE village while a M.G. ...osition in the forward part of the village gave par- ...cular trouble. Jemadar FAQIR AHMAD, manœuvred ...section to destroy this M. G. but almost as soon as ...moved, heavy shelling of his position began. Since ...s men had had no time to prepare positions Jemadar ...AQIR AHMAD, anticipated heavy casualties if he ...mained in the area and decided to attack the ...llage, a manœuvre which, if successful, would enable ...m to regain contact with his leading section and ...ovide cover from the persistant shelling and small ...ms fire to which he was exposed. By this time the ...elling had raised considerable dust and smoke over ...NTALONE village and realising astutely that this ...ve cover for his manœuvre, this V.C.O. led his men ...wn the eastern slopes and making the best possible ...of covered approaches, gained the northermost ...highest ground above the village. Deploying his ...all force of two sections and directing the original ...ding section to act as a " stop " Jemadar FAQIR ...MAD cheered his men into the village. Once in, the ...worked their way along the tortuous village ..., killing or capturing the German garrison com- ...ely surprised by this astonishing manœuvre. The ...on in the village was short but fierce, one party of ...man came out of a house with a white flag but ...ng how few were the attackers they reopened fire, ...to be killed instantly by Bren gunners firing ...n the hip. It is estimated that 25 to 30 Germans ...e killed in the village and 16 P. O. W. were ...ught back to our lines. Enemy supporting arms ...e mystified by the tactics of Jemadar FAQIR ...MAD and continued to pour heavy fire on the ...ge during the action, and so it was possible to ...d this fire during the rapid withdrawal which was ...le.

Only the skill, exceptional leadership and courage ...emadar FAQIR AHMAD, and his section com- ...ders could have enabled his platoon to carry out successfully such a bold enterprise, which will always live in the records of the unit as one of the finest examples of individual initiative and infantry fighting and an inspiration to all ranks.

14000. Rifleman (actg. Naik) KHAN BAHADUR 12th Frontier Force Regiment (Punjabi-Mussalman, Simbal, Karuli, Jhelum, Punjab) (POSTHUMOUS).

On 27th September, 1944, during the advance on MARRADI, the Bn. was directed from M. DI GAMOGNA on M. CAVALLARA. "B" Company was leading and met considerable opposition in precipitous country and appalling weather. No. 10, Platoon attacked and secured a small ridge approximately 100 yards from their final objective. Naik KHAN BAHADUR, led his section forward along a knife edge ridge to within 50 yards of the final objective, where he came under close range spandau fire. Simultaneously heavy fire was opened on the remainder of the Platoon from two other localities. Naik KHAN BAHADUR then reported that the enemy were moving to flanking positions from where close range spandau fire could be directed at the Platoon. Due to the accuracy and volume of enemy fire, movement within the Platoon was impossible, no defensive positions could be constructed, and the situation appeared critical. Naik KHAN BAHADUR, on his own initiative, under point blank fire from the three spandaus, manœuvres his section to a position from which he could neutralise the enemy fire. This cost him one man killed and another wounded, but the enemy fire was reduced sufficiently to allow the remainder of the Platoon to dig in. Later when an enemy counter-attack appeared imminent from the ridge in front of his position, this N.C.O. asked permission to go forward and break it up, but, in view of the suicidal nature of the task, permission was refused. Nevertheless, appreciating that a counter-attack at this point would seriously endanger the success of his Company Commander's plan, Naik KHAN BABADUR, led forward his section, now only three strong, and assaulted the enemy. Although wounded he inflicted many casualties with his Thompson M. G. and continned firing until his ammunition was exhausted. He was then shot dead. Completely shaken by this exhibition of gallantry, the enemy faulted and failed to advance, and the important position was firmly consolidated. This was the culmination of many gallant acts performed by this N.C.O. throughout the Italian campaign.

His unswerving devotion to duty and his gallant and outstanding leadership remain as an inspiration to his whole Company.

(His widow, if any, is admitted to the pension of the Order with effect from date of his death.)

11328. Naik TRILOK SINGH RAWAT. 18th Royal Garhwal Rifles. (Hindu-Rajput, Kaphlauri, Chand-pur-Malla, Nauti Chamoli, Garhwal, U. P.). (POSTHUMOUS).

On the night 21st and 22nd October 1944, Naik TRILOK SINGH'S, company was ordered to capture the high ground overlooking the SAVIO river as a preliminary to the Battalion's attacking its objective. The company was committed on a two platoon front. No. 12 Platoon in which Naik TRILOK SINGH, commanded a section, was on the right and it's objective a spur believed to be held by an enemy section.

...e : Re. 0-3-0

At the first contact it was realised that the enemy were in strength and it was later confirmed that the position which No. 12, platoon was ordered to attack was in fact held by a company of a German Sturm. Battalion. The platoon penetrated the position but was contained by the enemy who mounted three distinct counter-attacks besides numerous attempts at counter infiltration. It had rained since 1600 hrs. that afternoon and the steep slopes up to the enemy position were so muddy as to make progress almost impossible. Nevertheless Naik TRILOK SINGH, by his superb leadership, kept his section and platoon moving, himself leading several charges.

The second enemy counter-attack had been beaten off by the platoon when this N.C.O. realised that there was no more ammunition left for his section's LMG. The ammunition situation was much the same in the remaining sections of the platoon. Realising that his platoon would not be in a position to deal with another counter-attack without more ammunition and knowing that no reserves were within immediate reach, Naik TRILOK SINGH told his platoon commander that he intended to capture an enemy "Spandau' as there was plenty of enemy ammunition on the position. Naik TRILOK SINGH had no ammunition left for his "Tommy" gun. He picked up a rifle and bayonet and alone stalked an enemy machine gun post, bayonetting its occupants under heavy fire. He succeeded in the task he had set himself, returning to his platoon with an enemy machine gun and two prisoners.

The expected third counter-attack came in shortly after, but not before this N.C.O. got his captured machine gun into position and halted the advancing enemy. Due to his efforts alone the third counter-attack was repulsed.

It then became evident from events elsewhere that a withdrawal was inevitable to save further casualties and Naik TRILOK SINGH'S platoon was therefore ordered to withdraw. The only fire locally available to cover the platoon back was Naik TRILOK SINGH'S captured machine gun. He therefore remained in his isolated forward position firing continuously, refusing to come back himself until he had completed his self-appointed task of covering the withdrawal of this platoon. In this he succeeded and his platoon withdraw without further casualties but he himself was over-run by the enemy and killed, still firing his "Spandau".

Naik TRILOK SINGH displayed, throughout this long night action, the most superb gallantry and fearless courage. His unselfish devotion to duty and skilful untiring leader-ship were a vivid inspiration to all who fought with him and proved him to have possessed the finest qualities expected of a soldier.

(His widow, if any, is admitted to the pension of the Order with effect from the date of his death.)

New Delhi, the 24th April 1945

No. 94-H.—His Excellency the Viceroy has been pleased to award the Indian Police Medal to the following officer :—

BOMBAY

Name of officer and rank—Cavas Dinshawji Variava, Sub-Inspector of Police, Anand, Kaira District. Statement of services for which the decoration has been awarded—A dangerous criminal of Parol (Baroda State), who always went armed with a gun, had been committing dacoities and robberies with his gang in the limits of Baroda and Cambay States and in the Borsad and Matar Talukas of the Kaira District. Efforts were continuously being made by the Police to effect his arrest : but it was not till the night of 22nd June 1944 that Police Sub-Inspector Cavas Dinshawji Variava of the Anand Police Station received information that gun shots had been heard in the limits of Boriavi village. Acting on this intelligence, the Sub-Inspector immediately set out with an armed party for Boriavi village, and commenced a comb-out of the field in which the outlaws were suspected to be hiding. Shortly after commencing the search, Sub-Inspector Variava, who was ahead of his party, armed with a double barrel breech loading gun, suddenly heard a challenge from behind a tree, and, flashing his torch, he saw a man aiming a gun at him. With commendable presence of mind he dropped his torch and, tackling the culprit, struck him a blow on the chest with the fore-end of his gun. He and his men then promptly over-powered the culprit and arrested him, when it was discovered that he was the outlaw whose arrest the Police were anxious to secure.

The prompt and resolute action of Sub-Inspector Variava in grappling with this outlaw prevented him from causing hurt to the police party, and rid the countryside of a notorious criminal who had been harassing the public for many months.

This arward is made for gallantry unuer regulation (d) (i) of the Regulations governing the grant of the Indian Police Medal and consequently carries with it the special allowance admissible to officers of and below the rank of Inspector of Police.

FROM THE "GAZETTE OF INDIA", NEW DELHI, SATURDAY, MAY 5, 1945

OFFICE OF THE PRIVATE SECRETARY TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY

New Delhi, the 1st May 1945

No. 97-H.—His Imperial Majesty the King, Emperor of India, has been graciously pleased to award the King's Police and Fire Services Medal to the following officers :—

PUNJAB

Name of Officer and Rank.—Bahal Singh, Inspector of Police, No. P-50, Ferozepore District. Statement of Services for which the decoration has been awarded—S. Bahal Singh was appointed Assistant Sub-Inspector on the 9th April 1928 and promoted to be Sub-Inspector on the 1st April 1943. In 1943, he personally took part in four encounters against notorious and dangerous outlaws and on each occasion played an important part in the operations which led to their elimination. During 1944, he took part in four more encounters. The last one was in December 1944, when two notorious dacoits named Bogh Singh and Gajjan Singh, who had been a source of considerable trouble for years, were reported to be concealed in a sugar-cane field. Inspector Bahal Singh on receiving the information immediately proceeded to the scene and split his party into three. As the parties advanced, fire was opened on them by the two outlaws and the Inspector's party was obliged to take cover in a ditch some distance from the field. Attempts were made to persuade the outlaws to surrender but they were most abusive and replied that they intended to fight to the death. One outlaw who was armed with a tommy gun and who twice emerged at a corner of the field in his attempts to get a clear field of fire, was finally shot dead. The police party under Inspector Bahal Singh then made an assault on the sugar-cane field to capture the second outlaw who had in the meantime disappeared from the scene. He was, however, spotted in an adjoining field and shot dead. In the course of the encounter a military hand grenade was thrown at the Police party but fortunately failed to explode. A quantity of tommy gun ammunition and two more military hand-grenades were recovered after the encounter. Inspector Bahal Singh's conduct throughout the encounter, as on previous occasions, was examplary and he led his men in a most gallant manner.

FROM THE "GAZETTE OF INDIA", NEW DELHI, SATURDAY, AUGUST 11, 1945

OFFICE OF THE PRIVATE SECRETARY TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY

New Delhi, the 8th August 1945

No. 181-H.—His Excellency the Viceroy has been pleased to award the Indian Police Medal to the following officer :—

PUNJAB

Name of officer and rank—Maqsud Ali, Foot Constable No. 176, Gurgaon District. Statement of services for which the decoration has been awarded.—On the morning of June 7, 1945, Maqsud Ali left his Police Station accompanied by Civic Guard Umrao Khan No. 140 to patrol the area of village Sultanpur. At about 1 p.m. he noticed three Jat Sikh soldiers, all armed with ·303 rifles, whom he suspected to be deserters. Maqsud Ali called upon these men to surrender but all three ran away. Maqsud Ali, who was armed with a ·410 bore musket and 20 rounds of ball ammunition, and Civic Guard Umrao Khan followed the three armed soldiers for a distance of about a mile. The three suspected deserters then took cover behind bushes and threatened to open fire on Maqsud Ali and his companion unless they abandoned the pursuit. Maqsud Ali shouted out that he too was armed and he proceeded to load his Musket. He then threatened to open fire unless the three military deserters gave themselves up, whereupon all three soldiers surrendered themselves together with their rifles. The three deserters with their rifles and forty rounds of blank ammunition were subsequently produced by Foot Constable Maqsud Ali and Civic Guard Umrao Khan at Police Station Farrukhnagar. During the course of the pursuit and until the three deserters surrendered their arms and ammunition, Maqsud Ali was unaware of the fact that the three deserters had no live ammunition for their ·303 rifles and in forcing these deserters to surrender with their arms Maqsud Ali undoubtedly displayed initiative determination and courage of a high order.

The award is made for gallantry under regulation (d)(i) of the Regulations governing the grant of the Indian Police Medal and consequently carries with it the special allowance admissible to officers of and below the rank of Inspector of Police.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

HOME DEPARTMENT

New Delhi, the 5th September 1945

No. 51/17/45-Jails—The following Rules made partly by the Central Government and partly by the Inspector-General of Police of the Andaman and Nicobar Islands in exercise of the powers respectively conferred on them by the Police Act, 1861 (V of 1861) are hereby notified for general information :—

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS

Police Regulations

CHAPTER I—ORGANISATION

1·1 Constitution—(1) The Police Act (V of 1861) was extended to the Andaman and Nicobar Islands by Government of India, Home Department, Notification No. 377 of 24th August 1875. The Andaman & Nicobar Police is constituted under Section 2 of the Act and, for the purposes of Section 3 of the Act, the Andaman & Nicobar Islands form a single General Police District.

(2) All enrolled police officers are, under Section 22 of the Police Act, liable to service in any part of the General Police District.

1·2 Duties—The main duties of the Andaman and Nicobar Police are :—

(a) The prevention and detection of crime and the proper prosecution of offenders.

(b) The maintenance of law, order and the public safety.

(c) The provision of guards and escorts over property and persons.

(d) The proper performance of all duties relative to the training and administration of the force.

1·3 Command—(1) The administration of the Andaman and Nicobar Police vests in the Chief Commissioner as Inspector-General of Police.

(2) The Superintendent of Police is the executive head of the Andaman and Nicobar Police and is directly responsible for all matters relating to its internal economy, training and management, and for the maintenance of its discipline and the efficient performance of all its duties.

(3) The Assistant Superintendent of Police is directly subordinate to the Superintendent of Police and it is his duty to assist the Superintendent in the efficient discharge of his responsibilities. To this end, the authority of the Superintendent is delegated to the Assistant Superintendent to the extent prescribed by these rules and by executive order issued from time to time in this behalf.

1·4 Classification, Strength and Distribution—(1) The force consists of the following ranks :—

Inspectors.

Sub-Inspectors.

Assistant Sub-Inspectors.

Head Constables.

Lance Head Constables.

Foot Constables—Selection Grade.

Foot Constables—Time Scale.

In relation to the foregoing ranks :—

(a) the expression "enrolled police officers" means and includes Inspectors, Sub-Inspectors, Assistant Sub-Inspectors, Head Constables, Lance Head Constables and Foot Constables.

(b) the expression "upper subordinate" means and includes Inspectors, Sub-Inspectors and Assistant Sub-Inspectors.

(c) the expression "lower subordinates" means and includes Head Constables, Lance Head Constables and Foot Constables.

(2) The strength of the force in the various ranks has been fixed by the Government of India and no alteration may be made therein save with their approval.

1·5 Calculation of strength—The strengths required for various duties are normally calculated in accordance with the following principles :—

(1) The strength required for police stations is calculated as follows :—

(a) Investigating staff—1 Sub-Inspector, 1 Assistant Sub-Inspector and 4 F. Cs. for the first 75 cases registered as the annual average. 1 Assistant Sub-Inspector and 2 F.Cs. extra for every additional 50 cases shown to be registered as the annual average.

(b) Clerical Staff—1 Head Constable and 1 Foot Constable as a minimum, subject to increase where it can be shown that the volume of work is such as to be beyond the capacity of this staff to handle efficiently.

(c) Miscellaneous—2 F. Cs. to every investigating officer for escort of criminals, carriage of case property and havalat guard. 1 L. H. C. to every 10 or less F. Cs. on miscellaneous duty.

(d) Watch & Ward—calculated according to requirements in the light of the number of beats and fixed points required to be manned, of the distances to be covered and the number of villages to be visited on patrol, of the criminality of the area to be patrolled, etc., but on the basis of each man doing 8 hours duty in every 24 hour period.

(2) The strength required for administrative and training duties in Lines and office is calculated strictly in accordance with the number of posts which can be shown to be necessary, and the relative responsibility attaching to each.

(3) The strength required for outposts is calculated strictly in accordance with the duties to be performed, and on the general basis of calculations for watch and ward given in sub-rule 1(d) above.

(4) The strength for standing guards is calculated as follows :—

(a) where the guard is relieved daily, 3 F. Cs. for every sentry post manned by the guard—4 hours on and 8 off per man in rotation.

(b) where the guard is not relieved daily, 4 F. Cs. for every sentry post manned by the guard—3 hours on and 9 off per man in rotation.

(c) 1 Head Constable or Lance Head Constable to each guard, with a second Head Constable or Lance Head Constable for each guard which mans more than 2 sentry posts.

(5) The strength for escorts is calculated on the scales laid down in Appendix 1·5(5) and in relation to the average demands for the escort of treasure and prisoners. The strength for orderlies is fixed by the Government of India in accordance with actual requirements.

(6) The strength for specialists, e.g., signallers, intelligence staff, fire brigade, etc., is calculated strictly in accordance with actual requirements.

(7) Supervision for watch and ward duties is in general, provided on the following basis :—

1 Head Constable or Lance Head Constable—to every 10 F. Cs.

1 Assistant Sub-Inspector—to every 50 F. Cs.

1 Sub-Inspector—to every 100 F. Cs.

(8) Contingent reserve is calculated as follows :—

In the rank of S. I.—15 per cent. of the strength of Inspectors and Sub-Inspectors sanctioned for fixed duties, subject to a minimum of 1 Sub-Inspector.

In the rank of H. C.—15 per cent. of the strength of Assistant Sub-Inspectors and Head Constables sanctioned for fixed duties.

In the rank of F. C.—20 per cent. of the strength of Lance Head Constables and Constables sanctioned for fixed duties.

(9) The strength of the Armed Reserve is fixed by the Government of India in accordance with internal security requirements.

1·6 Relations with the Magistracy—(1) The District Magistrate is the head of the criminal administration of the district and the Police is, therefore, placed by law under his general control and direction in all matters relating to the maintenance of law, order and the public safety. The District Magistrate, however, exercises no executive authority in matters which concern solely the internal administration and training of the force, or in question of discipline as between police officers and their departmental superiors ; in such matters, therefore, the Superintendent of Police is directly subordinate to the Chief Commissioner in his capacity of Inspector-General.

(2) The District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police should frequently seek opportunities for personal discussion of matters affecting the criminal administration of the District, and the Superintendent of Police should keep the District Magistrate fully and promptly informed, by written reports and by discussion, of the occurrence of any serious crimes, of any sudden increases of crime generally, of all other matters affecting the maintenance of law, order and the public safety, and of matters affecting the relations between the Police and the public.

(3) In exercising his powers of control the District Magistrate will avoid doing anything to weaken the authority of the Superintendent of Police, and all communications, instructions and orders which the District Magistrate may wish to convey to the Police will, therefore, as far as possible, be conveyed through the Superintendent of Police.

(4) In the event of any difference of opinion arising between the District Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police over matters concerning the criminal administration, effect will be given to the orders of the District Magistrate. The Superintendent of Police, however, will be at liberty subsequently to require the District Magistrate in writing to refer the question in dispute to the Chief Commissioner f r a decision.

(5) The controlling authority of subordinate magistrates is strictly confined to the powers given to them by law in the exercise of their judicial functions. In cases in which they consider that the proceedings of the Police have evidenced neglect, or lack of intelligence, they will report the facts to the District Magistrate who will take such action as he considers necessary.

Entries in service books shall be in English and shall be properly attested by the Superintendent.

(3) Service books shall be taken up for verification of pensionable service in January each year. After satisfying himself that the services of the Government servant concerned are correctly recorded in his service book, the Superintendent should record in it a certificate in the following form over his signature :—

"Service verified up to——(date) from———(the record from which the verification is made)." The Superintendent in recording the annual certificate of verification should, in the case of any portion of service that cannot be verified from office records, distinctly state that for the excepted periods (naming them) a statement in writing by the Government servant, as well as a record of the evidence of his contemporaries, is attached to the book.

(4) When a Government servant is transferred from one office to another, the head of the office under whom he was last employed should record in the service book over his signature the result of the verification of service—with reference to pay bills and acquittance rolls, in respect of the whole period during which the officer was employed under him.

(5) In this connection the character roll of lower subordinates should be considered to be service books, and before a lower subordinate is transferred his services up to the date of transfer should be verified from office records and the necessary certificate given in the character roll.

3·13. Vernacular personal files.—(1) A vernacular personal file (Fauji misal) shall be maintained by the Orderly Head Constable for every Upper and Lower Subordinate in the force. These files are intended for the record of original orders and papers concerning an officer's service and conduct, and are supplementary to the character roll.

(2) Each Police Officer's personal file shall contain :—

(i) the character verification certificate [form 3·7].

(ii) the character verification search slip.

(iii) all punishment files or attested copies or orders of punishment [rule 6·5(10)].

(v) any other papers which it may be desirable to keep on record.

(3) Personal files shall be arranged according to district constabulary numbers and each file shall be paged and an index thereof kept in form 3·13(3). They shall be kept in a locked cupboard under the custody of the Head Clerk, who will be responsible that they are neither damaged nor tampered with.

3·14. Confidential Files.—(1) A confidential file shall be maintained by and kept in the custody of, the Superintendent for each Upper Subordinate and Head Constable on list "D".

(2) Confidential files shall be indexed and shall contain in the case of Upper Subordinates :—

(i) Marking and Current Remarks Sheet (in the case of officers promoted from Lower Subordinate rank).

(iii) Declarations of private income [rule 5·6(3)].

(iv) Annual confidential reports [rule 4·6].

Nominal Roll.—(1) An English nominal ro[ll] in form 3·15 containing the name of every enrolle[d] police officer subordinate to the Superintendent sha[ll] be maintained by the Orderly Head Constable as [a] permanent record. Entries shall be made by co[n]stabulary numbers, and space shall be left under ea[ch] number for six fresh entries.

(2) When any enrolled police officer is struck [off] the establishment for any cause, his constabular[y] number shall be given to his successor in office, who[se] name shall be entered immediately below the form[er] entry.

(3) Constabulary numbers once allotted sha[ll] not be changed.

(4) In the column of remarks a note shall [be] made of each punishment awarded, giving the seri[al] number and year of the entry in the punishme[nt] register.

(5) The nominal roll is a most important reco[rd] and shall be checked twice a year, in January a[nd] July, by a Gazetted Officer who will be responsib[le] for correcting any errors or omissions discovere[d]. It is essential that this checking be thoroughly a[nd] carefully done as the nominal roll is the basis for t[he] preparation of discharge certificates, is frequent[ly] required for reference in pension cases and is the on[ly] record of the service of a man who has left the for[ce] after his character roll has been destroyed under ru[le] 3·11(4).

3·16. Discharge of inefficients.—Appointmen[ts] and enlistments of enrolled police officers being ma[de] on three years' probation :—

(2) Any directly appointed Upper Subordina[te] who is found unlikely to prove an efficient pol[ice] officer may be similarly discharged, with the co[n]currence of the Inspector-General, at any time wit[hin] three years of appointment.

There shall be no appeal against an order of d[is]charge under this rule.

3·17. Resignations.—(1) Resignations of pol[ice] officers may be accepted only by the officers empow[er]ed to appoint them.

(2) An enrolled police officer who intends [to] resign shall give notice to that effect in writing a[nd] ordinarily shall not be permitted to withdraw hims[elf] from duty until two months have elapsed from [the] date on which his resignation was tendered. If, ho[w]ever, the reasons given for wishing to resign [are] genuinely pressing, the period of two months' no[tice] may be waived, in part or in whole, by the autho[rity] empowered to accept the resignation, subject to [the] resigning officer's crediting to Government in lieu [of] notice a sum equivalent to the pay he would h[ave] drawn during the period of notice waived.

(3) Ordinarily a Lower Subordinate who has agreed to serve for three years shall not be permitted to resign within that period.

(4) A directly appointed Upper Subordinate, whose appointment involves training at a Provincial Police Training School, shall not be permitted to resign within three years of the date of his appointment.

3·18. General instructions regarding discharges, etc.—(1) Any enrolled police officer quitting the force by reason of discharge, resignation or dismissal shall be called into Headquarters at least a week before the date on which he is to be discharged. He shall there surrender his certificate of appointment, arms, equipment, uniform and all other Government property in his possession. He shall also render a true account of all Government monies and property for which he may be responsible. The property and monies surrendered by him shall be surveyed and his accounts finally settled up before he leaves the force. The Superintendent will be responsible that, prior to the making of final payment to a man about to be discharged, all lawful deductions are made and all dues to Government realised.

(2) Every enrolled officer on quitting the service shall be given a discharge certificate in form 3·17(2). The certificate shall invariably be signed, after careful verification, by a Gazetted Officer, and column 8 thereof shall be filled in and signed by the Superintendent personally.

CHAPTER IV

Promotions

4.1. General Provisions—(1) Promotion from one rank to another, and from one grade to another in the same rank, shall, be made by selection tempered by seniority. Efficiency, honesty and general conduct shall be the main factors governing selection, but specific qualifications, whether in the nature of training courses passed or practical experience, shall also be carefully considered in each case.

(2) All promotions in permanent vacancies [shall] be on probation, for three years in the case of Constables promoted to the Selection Grade, [and] one year in all other cases.

(3) Any enrolled police officer promo[ted on] probation may, within the period of such pro[bation,] be reverted to his substantive rank without [any] departmental proceedings if he fails to maint[ain an] exemplary standard of conduct and efficiency. [Such] reversion shall not be considered reduction, and [shall] not be ground for appeal.

(4) If, at the conclusion of the period [of pro]bation required by P. R. 3.2 (2) or by P. R. [...] the authority empowered to make the appointme[nt or] promotion, as the case may be, considers tha[t the] standard of work shown by the police officer co[ncern]ed has been such as to justify neither discha[rge,] reversion nor confirmation, or for any other r[eason] considers that an equitable decision cannot imme[diate]ly be made, that authority may, for reasons t[o be] recorded in writing and formally communicate[d to] the police officer concerned, extend the probatio[nary] period by not more than one year.

4.2. Powers to make promotions—(1) Pr[omotions] to the rank of upper sub ordinate, whether [acting or] probationary, shall be made by the Inspector-Ge[neral.] Promotions, whether acting or probationary, u[p to] and including, the rank of Head Constable shal[l be] made directly by the Superintendent.

(2) Orders regarding the confirmation or r[ever]sion of enrolled officers promoted on probation [shall] be passed by the authority empowered to make [the] promotion.

4.3 System of selection for promotion—(1) F[or] the purposes of regulating promotion amongst e[n]rolled police officers, five promotion lists will be mai[n]tained in card index form :—

List A—Time scale Constables considered fit fo[r] promotion to the Selection Grade.

List B (1)—Selection Grade Constables consider[ed] fit for promotion to Lance Head Constable.

List B(2)—Constables and Lance Head Constables considered suitable for specialist training, e.g., as [Dr]ill Instructor, Finger Print Proficient, etc.

List C—Lance Head Constables considered fit for training in the lower class at a Provincial Police Training School, with a view to promotion to Head Constable.

List D—Head Constables considered fit for training in the Intermediate Class at a Provincial Police Training School, with a view to promotion to Assistant Sub-Inspector.

List E—Assistant Sub-Inspectors considered fit for training in the Upper Class at a Provincial Police Training School, with a view to promotion to Sub-Inspector.

(2) Candidates for entry in lists A, B(1), B(2), C, D and E, shall be required to pass an examination (the severity of which will be graded according to the list for which selection is being made) for proficiency in law, departmental rules and orders, drill and musketry, general knowledge, and practical police work, but final selection for entry in each list will be made in accordance with the principles laid down in rule 4.1 (1).

(3) Entries in, and removals from, promotion lists shall be made by the Superintendent in the case of lists A, B (1), B(2) and C, and by the Superintendent with the approval of the Inspector-General in the case of lists D and E.

(4) The infliction of any major punishment within five years of the date of selection shall bar admission to any promotion list ; and failure to maintain an exemplary standard of conduct and efficiency subsequent to admission to any promotion list shall be grounds for summary removal from that list.

Removal from a promotion list shall not be ground for appeal.

(5) Notwithstanding the provisions of rule 4·3(4) above, the Superintendent may, for special reasons and subject to confirmation by the Inspector-General, both waive the " major " punishment disqualification for original admission, and authorise readmission, to any promotion list.

4.4. Promotion of illiterates—Promotion to the Selection Grade of Constables and to the rank of Lance Head Constable being the first stages in the whole chain of promotion, no constable who is not fully literate shall normally be promoted to those ranks. Vacancies up to 25 per cent of the sanctioned strength of the Selection Grade and up to 15 per cent of the sanctioned strength of Lance Head Constables may, however, be reserved for illiterate and semi-literate constables of good character and outstanding professional ability, who would otherwise receive no recognition of their worth.

4.5 Marking and current remarks sheet—(1) With a view to facilitating selection for entry in promotion lists, a Marking and Current Remarks Sheet in form 4.5 shall be attached with the Character Roll of every lower subordinate.

(4) When a lower subordinate is promoted to Upper Subordinate rank, his Marking and Current Remarks Sheet will be removed from his Character Roll to form the opening page of his Confidential File.

(2) The Inspector-General, after recording his remarks on each report, will return the reports to the Superintendent.

(3) On return of annual reports by the Inspector-General, the Superintendent will, in the case of officers on deputation, forward the reports to the Inspector-General of Police concerned for disposal and in other cases file them in the respective Confidential Files of the police officers whom they concern.

(4) The reports contained in Confidential Files will be taken into consideration when decisions are being made regarding crossing of efficiency bars, punishments, promotions, recommendations for honours and titles, and the like.

(5) Annual reports shall be of two kinds, ' A ' and ' B ' and shall be remarked as such, viz.:—

(i) " A " reports indicating that incremental promotion should NOT be withheld.

(ii) " B " reports indicating that the withholding of incremental promotion should be considered unless the police officer concerned reaches a satisfactory standard by the time his next increment falls due.

Ordinarily, any police officer earning two " B " reports in succession shall automatically be subjected to departmental proceedings with a view to stoppage of increment. The purport of all " B " reports sha

4.7. Powers to grant increments—(1) Increments of pay to all enrolled police officers shall be granted, when due, by the Superinteudent provided that the work and conduct of the officers concerned has been satisfactory.

(2) Increments can only be withheld permanenly after formal departmental proceedings held as provided in Chapter VI, but if, when an increment is due, there is any doubt as to the fitness of the police officer concerned to draw it, by reason of adverse remarks having been recorded against that officer which, if repeated or aggravated by others might render him liable to formal departmental proceedings for stopage of increment, the Superintendent may—

(i) in the case of Lower Subordinates himself pass orders withholding the increment provisionally for a period not exceeding 6 months at one time and 1 year in all ; or

(ii) in the case of Upper Subordinates recommend to the Inspector-General that he should pass orders withholding the increment provisionally for a period not exceeding 6 months at one time and 1 year in all, pending further evidence as to the officer's fitness for the increment.

(4) Non-gazetted police officers in uniform shall salute all civil officials of gazetted rank, and all Navy, Army and Air Force officers senior in rank to themselves, when addressing or addressed by them.

5.3. Conduct in relation to the public.—Police officers usually act individually in the execution of their duty. They should remember therefore, that on the behaviour of each individual depends the reputation of the force and the degree to which the law-abiding section of the public will be willing to co-operate against law breakers. In particular, the following matters shall receive constant attention :—

(1) All ranks shall at all times carry themselves smartly, and be cleanly and decently dressed, special attention being paid to the cleanliness and proper wearing of uniform.

(2) All ranks shall wear uniform when on duty, except for those men employed on detective and similar duties where the wearing of uniform might be prejudicial to the successful execution of the duty concerned. When on duty in plain clothes, police officers shall invariably carry their appointment certificates in order that they may be able to establish their identity should their authority be challenged.

Provided further that nothing contained in these rules shall be deemed to supersede or over-ride the provisions of Section 270 of the Government of India Act, 1935.

(v) When the reason for not instituting a prosecution is that the charge is believed to be baseless, no further action will be necessary. If the charge is believed to be true but a prosecution is not undertaken due to insufficient evidence or other reasons, the Superintendent may, when the final report under section 173, Criminal Procedure Code has been accepted by the District Magistrate, take departmental action in the case in the manner prescribed by rule 6.5.

6·7. Suspension—general provisions—(1) Any police officer above the rank of Head Constable may suspend, pending enquiry or investigation, any police officer junior to him in rank who is guilty or reasonably suspected of serious misconduct :

Provided that an Upper Subordinate shall not suspend an Upper Subordinate junior to him save when the latter is concerned in the gravest misconduct, and then only if the matter cannot be brought to the notice of a Gazetted Officer without such delay as might be prejudicial to the maintenance of discipline or to the public welfare.

(2) Unnecessary suspensions should be avoided as they not only increase the number of non-effectives but also, unless the officer suspended is acquitted, involve under Fundamental Rule 53, the additional penalty, over and above the punishment awarded, of the substitution for pay of a subsistence grant.

(3) A police officer whose conduct is under departmental enquiry shall ordinarily be placed under suspension when it appears likely that a charge will be framed which, if proved, would render him liable to reduction or dismissal ; or when the nature of the accusations against him is such that his remaining on duty is prejudicial to the public interests ; or when his remaining on duty is prejudicial to the investigation into those accusations. Provided that any police officer concerned, or believed to have been concerned, either directly or by neglect, in the escape of any person from lawful custody, or in the loss or theft of any Government firearm, ammunition or monies shall invariably be suspended pending full enquiry or investigation into the circumstances.

(4) A police officer charged with a criminal offence shall, unless the Inspector-General, for special reasons to be recorded in writing, otherwise direct be placed under suspension from the date on which he is sent for trial, if such action has not already been taken under Sub-rule (1) or (3) above.

Suspension is compulsory during any period in which a police officer is committed to prison.

A police officer who may be arrested by order of a Civil Court, in execution of a decree or otherwise, shall be considered as under suspension from the date of arrest till his release from custody is ordered by the Court.

(5) A police officer placed under suspension shall ordinarily remain under suspension until the decision of the proceedings, departmental or judicial, being taken against him, when his release from suspension will be decided in the light of the circumstances.

(6) A police officer may be released from suspension only by the officer empowered to appoint him.

(7) Every suspension of a Lower Subordinate shall be reported to the Superintendent, and every suspension of an Upper Subordinate to the Inspector-General, in form 6·7 (7).

6·8. Status and treatment of officers under suspension—(1) A police officer shall not by reason of being suspended from office cease to be a police officer.

The powers, functions and privileges vested in him as a police officer shall be in abeyance, but he shall continue subject to the same responsibilities, discipline and penalties and to the same authorities, as if he had not been suspended.

(2) A police officer placed under suspension shall be transferred to lines, if not already posted there, and shall on arrival deposit his belt, his appointment certificate, and any arms and ammunition on issue to him. He shall attend all roll calls, shall be required to perform such duties and to attend such parades as the Superintendent may direct, and shall ordinarily not leave lines save under escort of an officer at least equivalent, and when possible senior in rank to himself deputed by the Reserve Inspector:

Provided that a suspended police officer shall not perform guard duty or any other duty entailing the exercise of the powers or functions of a police officer; shall not be placed on any duty involving the exercise of responsibility; and shall be allowed reasonable facilities for the preparation of his defence.

(3) A police officer under suspension shall be given a subsistence grant. If, as the result of an enquiry or trial, a police officer under suspension is punished, his subsistence allowance may not exceed one-fourth of his pay; if he is acquitted either as the result of an original enquiry or trial, or on appeal, the assessment of the subsistence grant is governed by Fundamental Rule 54.

6.9. Provisions regarding appeals in Departmental cases—(1) Appeals shall lie only against the award of a major punishment, to the Inspector-General in the case of a punishment awarded by the Superintendent, and to the Government of India in the case of a punishment awarded by the Inspector-General.

(2) There shall be one appeal only from the original order, and the order of the appellate authority shall be final.

(3) Appeals shall be in English, shall set forth the grounds of appeal in temperate language, and shall be accompanied by a copy of the order against which appeal is made.

Appeals shall be submitted through the proper channel and the Superintendent shall, when forwarding them, attach therewith the relevant record of departmental proceedings together with the character roll, personal file and (in the case of Upper Subordinates) the confidential file of the officer concerned.

(4) An appeal which is not filed within one month of the date of the original order, exclusive of the time taken to obtain a copy of the order or record, shall ordinarily be barred by limitation:

Provided that the appellate authority may take up for consideration an appeal received out of time if he sees fit to do so.

(5) Any police officer wishing to appeal in accordance with the provisions of this rule, may apply to the Superintendent for a copy of the order against which appeal is to be made, or for a copy of the complete record or for any portion thereof.

Provided that such copies shall not be given for any purpose during the pendency of the original proceedings, save as provided by rule 6.5 (4) (i) and (vi) and that copies of the record of preliminary enquiries shall not be given for purposes of appeal.

(6) Applications for copies made under sub-rule (5) above shall bear a stamp to the value of two annas and shall be accompanied by a deposit of the copying fees chargeable under the scale in force in the criminal courts of the district.

(7) Copies applied for in accordance with the provisions of sub-rule (6) above shall be given with as little delay as possible and their correctness, and the date on which given to the applicant, shall be certified by a gazetted officer.

6.10. Punishment Register—(1) A punishment register in form 6.10(1) shall be maintained by the Orderly Head Constable.

(2) Every award of a Departmental punishment other than punishment drill for a period less than 10 days, and extra guard or fatigue duty, shall be entered therein in black ink.

(3) Every punishment inflicted by a criminal court upon a police officer shall be entered therein in red ink:

Provided that an award of of dismissal in consequence of a criminal conviction shall not be shown separately as a departmental punishment.

(4) If the punishment awarded is punishment drill for a period less than 10 days or extra guard or fatigue duty, the entry in the Order Book shall be the only record of such punishment.

(5) When an award is quashed or altered by an authority empowered to do so, a fresh order shall be entered in the Order Book cancelling or amending the original order of punishment, and the entry in the Punishment Register shall be cancelled or amended accordingly.

(6) In order that the Inspector-General and the Superintendent may be in a position to exercise the discretion vested in them by rule 6.2 (4), the Punishment Register shall be submitted to the Inspector-General, through the Superintendent, on the 1st of each month for his information, and return with any orders which he may wish to record.

No. 1403—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 2 of the Naval Discipline Ordinance, 1945 (VII of 1945), the Central Government is pleased to make the following Regulations :—

1. In these Regulations, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context—

(i) "His Majesty's Navy" and "His Majesty's Ships" shall include His Majesty's Indian Navy and His Majesty's Indian Ships :

(ii) "Commanding Officer" shall, as respects persons subject to the Indian Army Act, 1911, have the same meaning as in clause 6 of section 7 of that Act, and as respects persons subject to the Indian Air Force Act, 1932, as in clause 6 of section 6 of that Act.

(iii) "These Acts" mean the Indian Army Act, 1911 (VIII of 1911) and the Indian Air Force Act, 1932 (XIV of 1932).

2. Whenever any persons subject to either of these Acts shall be embarked as passengers in any of His Majesty's Ships, they shall, from the time of embarkation, strictly observe tha laws and regulations established for the government and discipline of His Majesty's Navy, and shall for these purposes be under the command of the Captain of the ship as well as the Senior Naval Officer present ; and all such persons or other passengers under the equivalent rank of Captain of His Majesty's Navy taking passage, and all military or air force officers in actual command for the time being of any of the troops or body of the air force embarked, through whom orders given by the officer of the watch to the troops or body of the air force are required to pass shall be under the command of the Officer of the Watch.

3. Any act against the good order and discipline of the ship shall be deemed an act to the prejudice of good order and military or air force discipline under the provisions of either of these Acts unless the breach of discipline constitutes some other military or air force offence for which provision is otherwise made in these Acts.

4. Whenever a person subject to either of these Acts commits any act against the good order and discipline of the ship, the Captain of the ship may, by his own authority, and without reference to any other person, cause him to be put under arrest or confined as a close prisoner ; and may, if he thinks the case requires it, order the prisoner to be disembarked at the first convenient opportunity, transmitting a report in writing through the senior naval officer present to the senior military or air force officer in command of the land or air forces in order that the offender may be brought before a military or air force court-martial.

5. The Captain of the ship shall have full power, on his own authority, to order an offender, whether officer, soldier or airman or other persons subject to either of these Acts, to be placed in either naval, military or air force custody, as he shall consider most desirable, observing that where an offender is to be disembarked for trial by military or air force authority, he must be placed in military or air force custody on board the ship.

6. If any person subject to either of these Acts commits any act which, in the opinion of the Commanding Officer of the troops or of the body of the air force embarked, can only be adequately dealt with by a general or district court-martial, the offender shall, with the concurrence of the Captain of the ship, be disembarked on the first opportunity for the purpose of being proceeded against according to military or air force law. When the forces are on active service within the meaning of section 7 (13) of the Indian Army Act, 1911, or section 6(11) of the Indian Air Force Act, 1932, or section 2 of the Active Service Ordinance, 1941, the Commanding Officer of the troops or body of the air force embarked may, subject to the approval of the Captain of the ship, convene a summary general court-martial or field general court-martial as the case may be and confirm the finding and sentence thereof as provided in section 98(1) of the Indian Army Act, 1911 and section 104(2) of the Indian Air Force Act, 1932.

7. If any person subject to either of these Acts of or deemed to be of a rank below a non-commissioned officer shall commit any act against the good order and discipline of the ship which, in the opinion of the Captain of the ship, requires the infliction of any summary punishment for which a warrant is required by the summary punishment tables appended hereto, and which he is hereby authorised to award, the Captain of the ship shall confer with the Commanding Officer of the troops or body of the air force embarked as to the nature and amount of such punishment, if any, to be inflicted, and on their concurrence, the Captain shall, by warrant under his hand which should also bear the signature of the Commanding Officer of troops or body of the air force embarked as concurring, sentence the offender to suffer such punishment accordingly. In the event of the Commanding Officer of troops or body of the air force not concurring with Captain of the ship, the latter is to cause the offender to be placed under arrest or confined as a close prisoner, until the case can be referred to superior military or air force authority.

8. When any persons subject to either of these Acts other than officers are embarked as passengers in any of His Majesty's ships, and there is no commissioned officer of the land or air forces on board, the Captain of the ship shall possess and may exercise in regard to any such soldiers or airmen all the powers conferred upon him by Regulation 7 without conferring with or obtaining the concurrence or signature of any officer of His Majesty's land or air forces.

The second amendment which clause 3 seeks to make is also, as the House will see, very necessary. In section 5, provision is made for the payment of an employee who is discharged from service. The section as it stands today provides that the payment to a discharged employee should be on the second working day. Now, Sir, if the Payment of Wages Act was only applicable to perennial factories which are working throughout the day, there can be no difficulty arising from the section as it stands now. Extract from the Legislative Assembly Debates, dated the 16th November, 1944

THE PAYMENT OF WAGES (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar (Labour ember): Mr. Deputy President, I move:

"That the Bill further to amend the Payment of Wages Act, 1936, referred to a Select Committee consisting of Seth Yusuf Abdoola roon, Mr. Muhammad Hussain Chaudhury, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, A C. Inskip, Sir Vithal N. Chandavarkar, Mr. N. M. Joshi, Dr. Sir tanji Dinshaw Dalal, Mr. D. S. Joshi, and the mover, and that the mber of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a eting of the Committee shall be five."

Sir, the Payment of Wages Act, to which the present ill proposes to make certain amendments, was passed the year 1936. This Bill, at the time when it was ssed, was recognised as an experimental measure for the mple reason that when the Bill was drafted we had not efore us any model piece of legislation on which we uld have modelled the measure which is embodied in is Act. We have had now an experience of practically x years of this measure and in the course of the working has been discovered that the Bill suffers from many fects. If I may tell the House, it has been pointed out at there are practically 30 or 40 amendments which it necessary to make to improve the Payment of Wages ct. The Government of India realises that at present ey have not got the time to devote to all the amendments the measure which different parties have suggested d consequently they do not propose to engage themselves pon improving the Act and to remove all the defects at have been suggested. What the Government of India oposes to do through the present amending Bill is to ke certain defects which are of such administrative portance that unless and until those defects are remov-, it will be difficult to administer the measure with the tention which lay behind the Act when it was passed.

Sir, taking the Bill clause by clause: Clause 2 of the ill seeks to make certain amendments in the definition the word "wages". I do not wish to weary the House by peating seriatim the defects which different parties to e Bill have suggested that they have found in the present finition of the word 'wages' as it stands. But I might ention some important ones. It has been said in a dicial decision given by the High Court of Bombay that e present definition of "wages" is so drafted that it is ssible for a workman not only to claim wages which he s earned but also wages which might be called potential ges—wages which he might earn. That certainly s not the intention of the original measure. Another fect which has been suggested with regard to this defini-on is that it allows a workman employed on the outturn sis to claim wages irrespective of his outturn. It has en suggested that there is a confusion in the definition hich does not quite distinguish the case of a workman ployed on a time basis and a workman employed on tturn basis. It has also been suggested in certain arters that some of the words which now occur in the finition are superfluous, that they need not be there d that their presence only causes confusion. I might fer to the words: "includes any bonus or additional muneration of the nature aforesaid which would be so payable". It has been suggested to us that these words may not have any meaning other than the one which is already included in the previous part of this definition. It has also been suggested that while the definition of 'wages' was adequate before the system of dearness allowance brought about by the war came into existence, the definition today is inadequate because it is open for an employer to argue that the dearness allowance is not part of wages.

Now, the definition that we have suggested in the amending Bill seeks to remove all these difficulties. It seems to make the definition simple. I ought to tell the House that I am myself not very confident that the draft, as it stands in the amending Bill, carries out the intention which lies behind this original Act. I do not regard the definition which we have proposed as sacrosanct and if the members of the Select Committee are able to suggest a better one I should certainly raise no objection to the further amendment of the definition as it now stands in the amending Bill.

Coming to clause 3, it is a clause which makes two amendments to the present section 5. As the Honourable Members will remember, section 5 is a section which prescribes the period during which wages must be paid; and for the purpose of prescribing the period for the payment of wages, the section divides factories into two categories. In one category are placed factories which employ workmen whose number is less than 1,000. In the second category are placed factories which employ more than 1,000 employees. After making this division, the section provides that in the factories which come into category No. 1, payment must be made within 7 days, while in the case of the latter the limit of the period is prescribed to be 10 days. In actual practice it has been found difficult to observe the terms of this section, and the reason for that is very simple. The division of the factories is based upon the number of employees. As the House will realise, the number of workmen is never a constant figure; it always changes. For instance, if the number of employees goes down by one, the category automatically shifts from category No. 1 to category No. 2. Similarly, if the number of employees is increased by one category No. 2 goes into category No. 1. It is believed—and I think very rightly—that this discriminating principle is neither very just nor administratively feasible. Consequently what the amendment seeks to do is to abolish this distinction whereby the factories have been divided into two categories and adopt the general principle that in all factories, irrespective of the number of employees that are working there, there shall be a uniform rule, namely that the payment must be made within ten days. The second amendment which clause 3 seeks to make is also, as the House will see, very necessary. In section 5, provision is made for the payment of an employee who is discharged from service. The section as it stands today provides that the payment to a discharged employee should be on the second working day. Now, Sir, if the Payment of Wages Act was only applicable to perennial factories which are working throughout the day, there can be no difficulty arising from the section as it stands now. But in the case of seasonal factories, the difficulty that would arise is absolutely genuine because, supposing an employee was discharged on the last working day of the factory and the factory being a seasonal factory was closed down thereafter, then the second working day would come after a long interval which it would be difficult for anybody to imagine or to stipulate. Consequently the payment of wages to a discharged employee working in a seasonal factory would be indefinitely postponed if the provision as it now stands was not amended in the way suggested in the Bill. What we have therefore done by the amending Bill is to take away the word 'working' and substitute for the word 'second', the word 'third' so that where the factory is a seasonal factory or where the factory is a perennial factory every discharged workman will be paid on the seventh day and would not have to wait as he would have to in case the factory was a seasonal factory and the Act stood as it is now.

Now, I come to clause 4 of the Bill. As Honourable Members will see clause 4 proposes to make certain amendments in section 7 of this Act. Section 7 is a section which lays down what deductions can be made from the wages of workman. Honourable Members will see presently, that the section as it stands now does not cover all legitimate cases of deductions. I will draw the attention of Honourable Members to what are the omissions in the present Act. For instance, the Act as it stands now, or the section of the Act, does not cover the case of an employee who has left his employment, taken his provident fund and his gratuity and has lost the privileges which he would otherwise get if he had continued to be in service. It may be that for certain reasons, he had to resort to the expedience of obtaining a discharge from service in order to get his provident fund and his gratuity to meet certain economic demands that may be very pressing upon him. After that, he is re-employed and obviously he is anxious to get back all the privileges which he enjoyed before his discharge and his privileges depend upon whether or not he is prepared to return the provident fund which he had obtained and the gratuity which he got. The workman is willing and prepared for such deductions being made, but the law does not permit this. I think it will be agreed that such deduction should be allowed because it is in the interest of the employee himself. But, as I said such a provision does not find a place in the Act, as it now stands. Then, Sir, there are certain deductions which may be beneficial to the employee and the employee may be willing that the deductions made be made in order to cover such beneficial purposes. Again, there is no provision for allowing the workman voluntarily to agree to make deductions which he thinks are beneficial to himself. The law is made by the amendment in order to make this permissible, subject of course to the Provincial Governments coming to the conclusion that the purposes are beneficial really. There are other omissions in section 7 as it stands and those omissions relate to cases of workmen who are employed in what are called incremental scales. This is a new thing in the Bill and I wish to explain to the House not only what the provisions are but the circumstances which have led us to bring forward this amendment. The sub-section (3) of section 4 deals with three cases. It deals with the case of withholding of increment of an employee who is employed on an incremental scale. It deals with the case of demotion from a higher grade to a lower grade with consequent deduction in salary. Thirdly, it deals with the case of retention of an employee in a grade, the deduction of salary being due to loss of efficiency. The reason why it has become necessary to bring forward these amendments embodied in sub-section (3) of section 4 is that it has its origin in a decision given by the Judicial Commissioner of Sind. It was a case in which an employee who is, I believe an Engine driver, was concerned. His grade was maintained, but his salary was reduced. He went to a court of law for redress and pleaded that the reduction of his salary, while he was continued in the grade, was a deduction unauthorised by law. The Judge upheld the contention and said that that was an unauthorised de[duction]. But the Judge observed that if there was a new [contract] entered into with an employee telling him that as [his effi]ciency was not of the required level and standard [to dis]charge his duties that are incumbent upon an [officer] holding that particular grade, and if the new [contract] was accepted by him, then the deduction would be [justifi]able. Now, what I have done in the Bill is to acc[ept the] suggestion made by the Judge, namely, that wh[ere] there is a case of an officer whose grade is not r[educed] but whose salary is reduced on account of the fact [that he] is not found to be as efficient as the responsibilities [of the] post require, the deduction shall not come into e[ffect] unless the period of notice that his service requires [shall] be fulfilled. Now, Sir, the object of that provi[sion is] really to give him one month's notice. The co[mmon] or simplified procedure would be to give him a legal [notice] and to say, "We are not prepared to pay you the salary that we paid before; if you like, continue [on the] new basis; if you do not like it, discontinue and go [out of] service". Instead of having that elongated p[rocess] of two equations, notice and reply, offer and reje[ction, we] have combined the process by delaying the operation [of the] reduction decision by the period of notice, so that [when] the period of notice expires if he tells his employer [that he] is not prepared to accept, he would be at liberty [to go] out. I should like to make this point clear because it [may] be argued that in bringing forward these amend[ments] we have really tried to counteract or set at naug[ht or] nullify the decision of the Additional Judicial Comm[issioner] and I want to tell the House that I am doing no[thing of] the kind but am merely following the decision [of the] Judicial Commissioner in the amendments which [are] proposed.

With regard to the other two amendments, v[iz.,] withholding of increments and demotion from a [higher] grade to a lower grade, there can be no matter of [contro]versy, for the simple reason that a person is pr[omoted] from a lower to a higher grade only when the emp[loyer is] satisfied that by the experience that he has had [in the] grade in which he has been serving he will be able to [show] such greater experience and greater efficiency that he [can be] legitimately expected to discharge the responsibilities [of the] higher grade. When, for instance, he has not bee[n pro]moted there is no grievance, for the simple reason th[at he] has not earned something which is sought to be [taken] away.

Similarly with regard to the other provision, [viz.,] demotion from a higher to a lower grade, I do not [think] there can be any legitimate grievance in this kind of [demo]tion, for the simple reason that when a man has [lost so] much efficiency that an employer does not think th[at he] can be retained in the same grade, I think it is jus[tifiable] to reduce him because the reduction in salary is a[lso ac]companied by reduction of responsibility.

Now coming to clause 5 of the Bill it is a very s[imple] clause. It seems to amend sub-section (7) of s[ection 8]. Sub-section (6) of section 8 deals with the questio[n of the] time within which the fine imposed by an employ[er can] be recovered. The question that arises is, when doe[s the] time run? Does it run from the date when the o[ffence] was committed or does it runs from the date whe[n the] employer came to know that a certain act or omission [was] done? Obviously it is not always possible for an emp[loyer] to know at the very time when an act was comm[itted] that it had been committed; it often happens that [an] act is committed and knowledge of it comes to the emp[loyer] after a very long time. Consequently, it is felt neces[sary] that the point of time from which limitation should [run] should not be the date of the offence but the date of [the] knowledge; and I should like to tell the House that [in] amending this provision we are not introducing any[thing] that is novel. As lawyer Members of the House w[ill] know, there are many provisions in the law of limi[tation] where the time in some cases runs from the date of the [act] and in some cases from the knowledge of the act.

Coming to clause 6, this seeks to amend section 9 of Act. Section 7 (2) (b) permits deductions being made ccount of absence from duty. Unfortunately there definition given in the Act itself as to what is meant bsence from duty'. This clause removes this lacuna adds a second explanation to section 9 where the ssion 'absence from duty' is now sought to be defined. e 7 amends section 13, and that again is purely conntial; it is not a substantial provision. It makes on 13 applicable to the two of the new deductions ined in clause 4 of the Bill. As Honourable Members , section 13 makes deductions permissible subject ich conditions as the Provincial Government may se. We also want that the new deductions which ew amendment permits shall also be subject to the proviso.

The l[?] clause amends section 17 of the Act which ates the right of appeal. As it stands the section s a right of appeal to an employed person but does not it to the Inspector who is the administrative rity for administering this particular Act. It is felt it would be advisable in the interest of all, and partily in the interest of the employees, for the Inspector to have the right to make an appeal.

These, Sir, are the provisions of the Bill. I submit are non-controversial and I believe and hope that the e will be able to accept my motion.

Sir, I move.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): on moved:

Unfortunately the Honoure Labour Member did not do anything of the kind. rhaps thought that that was not administrative ; it was something else. That is not my explana- My explanation for the Honourable Member not aking these important improvements in the legisthat only recently the Honourable Member introduc- got committed.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Mr. Deputy President. I rise to a point of order. We are discussing a Bill with a certain number of clauses which go to amend certain sections of an Act. Can any Honourable Member address the House on other sections of the Act which are not included in the Bill. He is speaking outside the scope of the Bill.

Dr. P. N. Banerjea (Calcutta Suburbs: Non-Muhammadan Urban): It is a general discussion.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir: The general discussion is confined to the Bill: it is not on the whole Act. If he wants to move other amendments to other sections of the Act he must bring forward a Bill of his own. This is not the place or the time. I contend, Mr. Deputy President, to discuss other sections of the Act which are not mentioned in the Bill. I consider his speech, therefore, to that extent is out of order.

Mr. N. C. Chunder (Calcutta: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Is it not open to a member to speak here and suggest that the Bill does not go far enough?

Mr. N. M. Joshi: Sir, the Statement of Objects and Reasons says:

"The Payment of Wages Act, 1936, when passed, was recognised to be an experimental piece of legislation. During its working a number of defects and difficulties have come to notice. While many of them can be left to be dealt with by comprehensive legislation at a later date, it is considered necessary to remove a few even during war time and the Bill seek to achieve this object."

The Honourable Member stated in his speech that he did not undertake the extensive reforms which are needed. I am only saying that the Honourable Member should have done that. I have not gone out of the scope of the Bill at all. I therefore appeal that I am quite in order in saying that the Honourable Member should have introduced a better measure.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): I think that Mr. Joshi is perfectly in order. He is criticising the speech of the Honourable Member as regards the scope of amendments. He suggests that there are many other amendments to make and I think that he is quite within his rights to say so.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: Sir, my explanation for the Honourable Member's failure to introduce improvements in the Bill is that recently the Honourable Member introduced a Bill which I consider to be quite progressive, though inadequate it was—the Bill regarding holdiays with pay—and I expected that the Honourable Member will keep up his progressive spirit. But, Sir, I feel that the Honourable Member somehow was afraid that if he introduced progressive Bills one after another then the character of the Government of India for being a conservative Government may be lost, and he did not like to take discredit for that.

Dr. P. N. Banerjea: Discredit or credit?

Mr. N. M. Joshi: I thought that in his opinion it may be discredit. Therefore, I thought, Sir, that the Honourable Member having introduced one progressive measure wanted to introduce at least one which may be regarded as reactionary so that the Government of India's character may be maintained.

Mr. Sri Prakasa (Allahabad and Jhansi Divisions: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Which has no character!

Mr. N. M. Joshi: Sir, that is my explanation, but I shall not deal with that aspect any further.

As regard the amendments themselves, after having studied all the amendments I feel that most of them are of reactionary nature and most of them are not also such that the Honourable Members of the legislatures should not have taken a little more time to study them: I feel Sir, that the Honourable Member should have chosen, if he wanted any urgent reforms, some other improvements than those which he has introduced in this Bill.

Now, Sir, I am suggesting that the Bill be circulated because I had not heard at all about some of the amendments before. As a matter of fact, before I came to Delhi I had just read in a newspaper that the Honourable Member was going to introduce a Bill for amending Payment of Wages Act. I myself did not know what the amendments were and when the Bill was introduced I read those amendments and I thought that the Honourable Member should not have been in a hurry to introduce these amendments. There is no doubt that there are one or two amendments about which I had heard before although definite proposals of the Government of India were not known to me. I do feel that this Bill affects the working classes of this country adversely and there is absolutely no urgency for it. This Bill should be circulated. Let the working classes know what the Bill is. Let their opinions be elicited. Then certainly the Legislature is entitled to consider this Bill, although in my judgment it is a very reactionary Bill. So I feel, Sir, that the House will support the motion which I have made that the Bill be circulated.

Now I shall not be long in dealing with the various amendments which the Honourable Member has introduced.

First he took up the question of the new definition of wages. The Statement of Objects and Reasons and also the Honourable Member's speech indicated why he thought that the amendment was necessary. He stated that this Bill would permit, what I may call, payment, or what the Honourable Member stated payment according to the outturn, or payment by results. I do not think that the Honourable Member should have felt any difficulty about this. Payment by results or payment by outturn has been going on for six years after the Bill was passed and I do not think, Sir, any real difficulty has been experienced. Then the Statement of Objects and Reasons had stated something about profit-sharing and also dearness allowance. Personally, I feel that a real difficulty has not arisen about these matters at all and the Government of India has anticipated difficulties and are trying to take measures in anticipation. I feel there was no urgency from that point of view also. If the Bill is passed, it will certainly introduce a definition which will bring into being certain practices which the original Act was intended to prevent.

I shall give you an example. The original Act wanted to prevent payment of bonuses for regularity of attendance. There are practices where employers pay a certain bonus if a workman attends a certain number of days in a month, or if a workman's conduct is considered to be good by the employer he is given certain bonuses. The Legislature in 1936 deliberately framed the definition of wages in such a way that these practices should be stopped. The Legislature thought that by giving inducements for regularity or for good conduct, the workman himself may be demoralised and also the employer. Therefore they wanted to stop these practices. From the labour point of view there is another objection to these bonuses, namely, the labour strength and solidarity is weakened when half of them are paid some bonus and half of them are not paid.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): May I point out to the Honourable Mover of the motion that his motion must be given a date. This is obligatory under the rules.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: If it is obligatory then you may permit me to move:

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon by the 28th February, 1945."

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): It is in order now and you may proceed.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: This definition that the Honourable Member has introduced is changing the original intention of that Act. I personally believe, Sir, that the working classes in this country do not require special inducements of bonuses to make them good honest workman and therefore this practice of giving special inducements—what I may call in vulgar language bribes—should not be allowed, and the Legislature should never tolerate this practice because when we do our work as legislators we do not [ask] for special inducements in order to make us do our [work] quite honestly. We never ask for titles and hon[ours] for doing our work honestly. Similarly, a good work[man] asks nothing more but to be paid well and if he is p[aid] well he is ready to give honest, good, hard work. There[fore], Sir, I feel that the change introduced by this measu[re is] a wrong one and requires to be examined fully. [That] is why I say let the working classes know what ch[ange] is going to be effected by this definition and there[after] we shall consider the amendment.

Then the Honourable Member has introduced cer[tain] amendments to section 5. One of the amendments [pro]vides that in respect of the smaller factories employ[ing] 1,000 persons or less and making payments before [the] seventh day of the month, they may be permitted to m[ake] payments up to the 10th. In England and in, wh[at I] may call, progressive countries wages are paid 2 or [3 days] after they are due. In India we have given longer pe[riod]. That period itself is a very long one and I thought w[hen] the Honourable Member for Labour was going to am[end] this Act he would amend it in a progressive way, i[f] he found any difficulty in having two kinds of peri[ods], that is the ten, and seven days, he would fix the se[ven] days as the period for making payment. But in o[rder] to keep up his character of being conservative or r[eac]tionary, he fixes the date of payment before ten d[ays]. I thought the amendment was really out of date and [not] in keeping with the progressive times.

Then the Honourable Member has made another ch[ange] about removing the words "second working" day and [re]placing it with the word "third". He said there is diffi[cul]ty regarding seasonal factories. Perhaps there may [be] some difficulty but it has not been experienced up to t[his] time; it has not come to my notice at any rate. Bu[t if] the Honourable Member felt that some amendment [was] necessary to enable payment to be made when a seaso[nal] factory closes, or even a perennial factory closes, th[en], Sir, he could make that as an exception. But he ma[de] an amendment by which all employers can refuse to p[ay] a workman who leaves his job till the third day. I[f] the original Act had done some injustice to the workm[an]. When a man terminates his services, a good empl[oyer] pays him on the date of his dismissal or discharge, bec[ause] if the payment is not made on that day the workman [has] to wait one or two days for receiving payment for [the] services rendered and he loses wages for those days. [If] a man is dismissed and if he has to go to the mill to re[ceive] his payment the next day, he loses one day's wages. [If] he has to come there on the third day he loses three d[ays'] wages. I feel that if the Honourable Member wanted [to] provide for the difficulty which is felt in the case of seaso[nal] factories and when a factory is closed, he could [have] removed that difficulty in a different way to what h[e is] doing.

Then, Sir, the Honourable Member has now intr[oduced] some other change, permitting some deductions, an[d the] Honourable Member has introduced a general clau[se by] which Provincial Governments are given power to p[ermit] any deductions which in the opinion of the Provin[cial] Government are beneficial to workmen. Now, Sir, [the] Honourable Member may have great confidence in [the] Provincial Governments and I too have some confide[nce] in them, and I know some of them sometimes do s[ome] good service to labour. But, Sir, I am not prepared [to] give such a wide power to the Provincial Governm[ents]. In his speech the Honourable the Labour Member sa[id] that these deductions may be voluntary but they may [not] be voluntary. In any case his Bill does not provide [that] these deductions which the Provincial Governments m[ay] sanction will be all voluntary. No, Sir, that is not pr[o]vided in the Bill itself: that may be his intention. I [do] not approve of this clause giving general power to [the] Provincial Government to sanction deductions, which [in] the opinion of the Provincial Government are benefi[cial]

Then there is this question about stopping of increments and degrading workmen or asking them to take up less skilled work, so that their wages may be reduced. The Honourable Member quoted a judgment of the Sind Government that certain practices which prevailed on Indian Railways should be sanctioned by law. When the Payment of Wages Act was passed the Railway authorities, who are in the habit of imposing large fines upon their employees, found, that they could not exercise their authority uncontrolled. The Payment of Wages Act controlled their authority to a great extent and they wanted to gain that authority again by a different way. Instead of fining a workman, they began to degrade him, stop his promotion or put him on a less paid job. I feel that these practices were against the spirit of the original Payment of Wages Act and therefore the amendments suggested by the Honourable Member are not in the interests of the working classes. In any case before these amendments are considered by a Select Committee, it is absolutely necessary that the Railway workmen, who will be mostly the persons affected by this amendment, should know what is being done by the Legislature and therefore the Bill should be circulated.

Then, Sir, the Honourable Member has also introduced certain other amendments, one of them regarding permitting certain deductions for absence.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I have only given the definition of absence. I have not permitted deductions: they are already there.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: I know. The Honourable Member is a very simple man. He has changed the definition of absence with the result that certain deductions may be permitted. The original Act permits deductions for absence up to a certain point. The deductions may be made for the actual time lost or work not done. But if this Amendment is made, and if I understand it rightly, it is quite possible for an employer to impose double fine on the employee.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: That is not correct.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: All right. We shall discuss it at the proper time. What may happen is this: an employee is absent for an hour. He cannot turn out work for that hour and therefore if he is paid on piece rate his wages are automatically reduced. Besides receiving less wages, it is quite possible that if this Amendment is made the man's wages may be deducted still further.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: No, no.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: The Honourable Member says No. We shall discuss that question, which is one of interpretation.

There is another amendment which the Honourable Member has suggested and that amendment is to enable the workmen to be fined after the offending or wrong act was detected. This amendment he considers to be very reasonable but I am afraid this amendment is one which enables the employer to keep the sword of Damocles hanging over the head of workmen, for how long, I do not know. A workman does some offending act, a small thing like coming late by an hour or two on a particular day. The employer's register is maintained by a timekeeper or somebody else but the employer has not noticed that the man was absent for an hour or two and therefore has not deducted his wages. After two or three years the employer finds out that the man was absent and therefore must be fined. I am not suggesting that this is a very happy example: there may be some other examples. But the offending act may be committed to-day and the employer may fine the workman after five or ten years. He says there is no law of limitation. The employer may be negligent, careless and not vigilant and yet if he discovers the offence of the workman after five or ten years, the latter must be fined. Sir, the Legislature should not sanction such a thing. The Legislature was very reasonable when it passed the Act. What the Legislature said was that a man after doing something wrong should not be fined after sixty days. That is, the Legislature has given the employer sixty days' time to find out if his employee has done anything wrong. I think sixty days are quite enough for a vigilant employer to find out the mistake or wrong committed by his employee. I do not wish to go into all the amendments which the Honourable Member has suggested. I feel that the amendments which are proposed are such that they will adversely affect the interests of the working classes in this country. In any case they are not very urgent. I therefore feel that the motion which I have made may be approved by the Legislature and after the Bill is circulated and the opinions of the working classes are obtained, the Legislature may consider the further stages of this Bill. In any case the Legislature should not consider this motion for committing the Bill to a Select Committee till the opinions of the working classes are obtained on this Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta) Amendment moved:

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon by the 28th February, 1945."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: (Sind: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Sir, at the very outset I should submit that I felt restrained when the Honourable Member said that this Bill is non-controversial and only administratively it is being improved or corrected. I should think that this Bill is of the utmost importance. A Bill which affects the interests of labour cannot be said to be an unimportant measure. And I may say how many times labour itself has contested the principal provisions of the Act.

Mr. Sri Prakasa: Labour should produce better Bills.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: Several questions as to the interpretation of the original Act have come before for consideration. How then is this Bill non-controversial? The Honourable Member in the same breath said that such questions have arisen before and gone to the High Courts............

Mr. Sri Prakasa: He is in labour!

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: He himself has said that the Chief Court of Sind decided a case which, according to him, has necessitated his coming forward with this amendment. I do not agree with him in the interpretation he puts on that decision. He has set forth in the Notes on Clauses what that court has held. It has held that when there is any deduction or reduction in pay or any demotion it will be considered that there has been a deduction from their pay. I think my Honourable friend said that according to him the decision of the Chief Court was not sustainable by the decision itself. I may inform the Honourable Member that I had to do something with that case, in the sense of giving advice when the matter was going to court; and it was decided accordingly—as has been stated in the Notes—

"The Sind Chief Court held some time ago that the temporary reduction of an employee from one step in an incremental scale to another amounted to a deduction within the meaning of the Act. Doubts have also been expressed whether reductions, demotions, etc., by way of disciplinary measures amounted to 'deductions'."

This is what the Chief Court held, that they are deductions; and therefore it looks as if the Honourable Member is attempting to override that decision of the Chief Court. I do not think the Legislature will allow that without very serious consideration. I am for circulation of the Bill, because it is a question of legal interpretation, and therefore it should be circulated not only to labour but to their representatives and their advisers and advocates, so that the right interpretation may be arrived at. It will lessen the work of the Honourable Member in Select Committee. He will get the opinions of some of the High Courts which override this decision of the Chief Court, if he wants that the law should be changed. We must have opinions to guide us in the Select Committee. It would be wise of the Honourable Member to accept the amendment that has been put in.

It is not only the question of demotion or reduction that has to be considered under this Bill—there is also the question of absence and also what will be the effect if a man is wrongly discharged or dismissed. Such cases have also recently come up before the tribunals and they have held in the case of absence, that if the absence is wilful or not right, then the deduction can be made. But in the case of discharge or dismissal, they have said that that can only be made by the authority which has the power, because many times the order of discharge was made by an authority to whom the power had been wrongly delegated. How can it therefore be said that all these questions are unimportant or non-controversial? On the contrary, I think that considering this Bill along with several other Bills which are coming before the House, this is a more important one than the others and I hope the Honourable Member will send this for cirulation.

Another reason is this. No opportunity has been given to the representatives of labour or to labour itself to consider this Bill. This was introduced on the very first day we came here, and to-day it is sought to refer it to Select Committee. We have therefore got no opinions before us. We have got absolutely no opinion......

The Honourablo Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I am sorry to have included my Honourable friend in the Select Committee when he has no opinion.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: This also will be one of the points I have raised. I am not going into the details of the clauses, but these are the more important things; and when the Honourable Member says that this is not a controversial Bill, I would leave the House to consider whether he is right. There are several other points which have to be considered before this Bill comes to the stage of going to the Select Committee. Mr. Joshi himself says he had not sufficient time to give his opinion on the Bill.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: We are here every day: where is the time to study it?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: Mr. Joshi is an expert in these matters and he has been working all along for labour and going into these questions for an age, and therefore his opinion that it should go for circulation should be accepted at once. He has experience and he has criticised some of the provisions; but I would also submit that this Bill should be circulated because there are certain things contained in it which must be decided once for all, if labour is to go on co-operating in a conciliatory manner: otherwise they will be disturbed. Labour is very powerful nowadays and we have to move cautiously; and when you make a law and subject them to certain conditions, you must proceed cautiously and not hustle the proceedings of this Bill. These are important questions. How many decisions have there been on the word "wages"? The lawyers know it—we know it; we know how much difference there has been between the interpretations of different High Courts. The definition of "wages" is being changed. Therefore, now that a new definition with additions and alterations is being made, that also should be considered by those concerned and those whom it affects.

Then, Sir, you are also changing the time when they should get the payment. They have always been crying that the payment should be made on the first day or the second day after it falls due. They were getting it in certain conditions within seven days. Now seven days are going to be increased to ten days. There will be a cry over that too. That also should be considered.

Then there is this question of demotion. When it suits the employer, he gives a man a higher type of work and when the employer does not require that higher type of work, you want to bring him down again to the old lesser pay. Is that fair? If you have selected the man question that you have got to consider.

I will not go into the details of the other provisions of the Bill which should, I think, go out for circulation. After circulation, we will sit together and then consider all the points of law as well as points of fact and come to a conclusion.

Mr. A. C. Inskip (United Provinces: European): As the Honourable Member for Labour has said, the object of this amendment Bill is to seek to clarify certain obscurities in the present Bill, particularly in regard to three items. It seeks to make it clear that wages have to be earned under the contract of employment, expressed or implied. It also seeks to make it clear that where there is an incremental scale, the increment may only be withheld as a disciplinary measure. It seeks further to lay down that a diminution of wages by reason of requirement to perform work involving a standard of skill or responsibility lower than that in the previous work, is not a deduction.

The Bill itself makes clear that "the withholding of an increment is to be treated in several important respects as if it were a fine and will not be permitted except when the employee has committed an offence against discipline in accordance with an approved detailed list of offences hung up on the factory's notice board. The existing Payment of Wages Rules make the Chief Inspector of Factories the final arbiter of this list and in making this decision he will depend on the guidance he can get from the Act."

Taking all these definite pointers together, then two facts emerge. Firstly, Government admits that the definition of wages—which is the most important and fundamental thing in the whole of this legislation—rests on the idea that there is always a contract of employment either express or implied. Wages mean the wages earned under the contract of employment.

Secondly, the legislation is intended to enforce payment of wages earned under the contract of employment without delay or deduction, but not to enforce anything beyond this. The clarification attempted by the present Bill apparently intends to make a clear distinction between payments that are wages and payments that are not.

If then what I have said correctly interpret Government's intentions then certain criticisms must be levelled against the new Bill.

Now, Sir, let me turn to the details of the proposed Bill, and in particular to Clause 2. In the new definition of "wages", the word "bonus" has been allowed to remain in. It seems to be quite-superfluous since the rest of the phrase "additional remuneration for increased output" is sufficiently clear and inclusive as it stands or in any case could easily be made so. The question of whether various kinds of bonus are or are not payable by employers as a matter of obligation has been one of the most fruitful sources of industrial disputes in recent years extending to an attempt to force the payment of annual bonuses at increased rates even when the payment of such bonus has clearly not been a term of the contract of employment and even when the rate of profits has not increased. In other words, such attempts have been directed towards the very object of trying to get ex gratia bonuses treated as a compulsory and unconditional part of earnings. Why then, in the process of clearing up the most important and most obscure definition in the present Act should this ill-fated word of many meanings be retained in the sense of a payment due to the worker under his contract of employment. It makes the meaning of the term "wages" depend on the exact meaning of the word "bonus", and it would be difficult to find a more unsuitable foundation on which to rest an Act, or one more certain to lead directly or indirectly to disputes. All this applies with the same force even to the wording as published in the draft has the further disadvantage that even a slight error in punctuation—such as the insertion of a comma after the word "bonus"—might make it much worse. It is noticeable also that in this clause a specific reference to the money being "earned under the terms of his contract of employment" appears in the second line, after which there is a whole list of particular cases hanging in the air with no further reference to the contract of employment at all. In particular, the word "payable" in the sixth line might mean almost anything. If "payable under the terms of the contract of employment" is meant, then there can be no objection to saying so and there is every objection to the matter being left in any doubt. As it stands, there is a probability of dispute about whether an amount is payable because it has been paid in the past or for any other such reason.

Then, Sir, the Amending Bill seeks to include Dearness Allowance in the definition of wages. This, I fear, will undoubtedly cause serious complications, particularly in concerns where a provident fund is in existence for the benefit of its employees. Unless many existing provident fund schemes are altered, the employee will now have to pay a percentage of allowance as well as of wages as his contribution; and the employer who has agreed to contribute a like amount to the fund will also be penalised.

Then, Sir, in regard to clause 4, paragraph 3, the expression "on an incremental basis" is extremely vague. Almost any employment where there is any prospect of financial improvement at all might be described as being on an incremental basis. The wording in the Statement of Objects and Reasons is not very precise, but that in the Bill itself is far vaguer still. The expression "for disciplinary reasons" also is not very clear. The most probable interpretation is open to criticism in principle. It seems from the wording that the intention is to make the withholding of an increment illegal except in cases of breach of discipline. If so, this amounts to forcing the employer to fulfil a most important part of the contract of employment on one side while leaving it open to the employee to fail to fulfil the corresponding obligation on the other side. The employee is not paid his wages solely in consideration of his preserving discipline. He is mainly paid for the use of his skill. This is the main reason why different wage rates and incremental rates exist at all, and this fact incidentally is recognised in section 4, paragraph 4 of the Bill. The main reason and justification for a scale of increments is to make the rate of pay match the value of work when the value increases with increasing skill resulting from experience. But although the value of the work usually increases with the lapse of time—and time scales exist in order to deal with this normal state of affairs—, skill does not always increase in this way. A man may be lazy, he may be unwilling to take increased responsibility, he may be suffering from disability or he may simply be below average, or the process at which he is working may be changed and he may be unable to respond to the changed conditions. None of these cases amounts to a clear breach of discipline. Is it right, then, to compel the employer, if he has a time-scale for the average cases, to raise the wage rates of less valuable workers unconditionally on the same scale? What would be the position if an employer wished to revise the scale of wages for a particular occupation? As long as the scale is unaltered, the individual employee is protected under the Bill from having his increment stopped or his wages reduced. Would the alteration of the scale itself in a downward direction be legal or would it be regarded as a wholesale breach of the provisions of this clause?

Then, Sir, turning to clause 4, paragraph 4: it will be seen that this clause clearly deals with the case where an employer requires an employee to accept a lower paid job, but it does not cover failure on the part of the employee to improve or maintain the standard of his work in line with the remuneration laid down in the wage scale relating to his job.

In regard to clause 4, paragraph 5, this clause stipulates that the provisions of section 8, paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 of the existing Act shall apply to the withholding of increments, etc., which again apparently confirms that the employer would be compelled to pay those of his workmen who are on time rates without reference to their individual skill or assiduity. Such one-sided protection seems calculated to put a premium on idleness and mediocrity and to hinder the employer in rewarding his employees according to their merits.

The points of criticism I have put forward represent the views of the Group to which I belong and I trust they will receive the attention of the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill and the Select Committee, for there would appear to be a tendency to think exclusively about protecting workmen from unscrupulous employers and to forget that if this protection is given unconditionally, it leaves the employer and the public unprotected against the slack and inefficient workman.

Sir, I support the original motion.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: Mr. Deputy President, if it can help to curtail the debate, I should like to state at this stage that I am prepared to accept the amendment.

Professor N. G. Ranga (Guntur-cum-Nellore: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Sir, I am glad the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill has agreed to accept the motion for circulation. Therefore, I do not wish to say much at this stage on the merits of the Bill except that in my view it is worse than a pill of poison. To take a pill of poison, the patient has to be coaxed to open his mouth and swallow it, but this Bill is a sort of an injection which is given while the patient is asleep by a very dreadful process. The patient does not know that poison is being injected into him; nevertheless, it has its deadly effect.

Sir, there does not seem to be any particular hurry for a Bill like this. I do not know why the Honourable Member in charge has lent his ear to those reactionaries who press on him the need for a Bill like this, as if the Bill is not bad enough. My Honourable friend the spokesman for the European Group has got up with his attempt to make it even more reactionary and more troublesome and unacceptable to the workers. Has it been found in practice during these days of crisis that production has been materially affected anywhere because these amendments have not been made to the original Act? We have not had any report to that effect. It cannot even be pleaded that the workers, because they are going on working from year to year in these days of war and are becoming senior workmen, are becoming less and less efficient and that the employers are unable to demote them, reduce their wages and even cut down their earnings and in that way cut down their labour bill. That, too, has not been established. On the other hand, what is happening is that more and more workers are being employed and the workers who have been there before the beginning of the war have been found to become more and more skilled and yielding also bigger and bigger profits for the employers and also the Government, which reaps its benefit through the Excess Profits Tax. My Honourable friend the spokesman of the European Group was talking about the failure of worker's skill to rise in consonance with the rise of pay. I wish he would turn his attention to what is happening in the Government of India and to its employees and also to many of his own compatriots in this country who are employed in various plantations and other European Companies. Is he sure that as they become more and more senior in their service, their skill is also increasing? Is he sure that as they are being assured of their annual increments of Rs. 50 or Rs. 100, their efficiency is also increasing? In fact, it is the other way about. But is there any provision on the Statute-book of this Government which provides for a corresponding reduction in the salaries, emoluments and allowances that are being given to many of these Government officials and European officials in this country who are employed either by Government or by commercial concerns, so that they may be made to realise that they are becoming eligible to superannuation, whereas they are only made eligible to-day to higher and higher increments as years go by.

Sir, there are a number of provisions to which I take very strong objection but I speak with trepidation in regard to the details because the Honourable Member has not vouchsafed to us the views of the organised labour in this country. I am glad he has agreed to our suggestion that it should be sent into circulation and I hope when the Bill comes back after circulation it may be possible for most of us who are laymen in regard to the trade union matters to form a judgment in regard to the merits of these different sections than is possible at present. Therefore, I support the motion for circulation.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: Sir, as I have said, I am prepared to accept the motion made by my friend Mr. Joshi. In that event, it is unnecessary for me to make any speech. All that I would like to say is this that I cannot agree that any strong case has been made out for circulation. As I said just now, I made myself very clear that the amendments which I have put forth were administrative in the sense that they will remove the difficulties that exist in the administration of the law. I have not seen that any of the amendments which are contained in this Bill were, if I may say so, beyond the capacity and the intelligence and the knowledge and the information of Honourable Members of the Select Committee. I, Sir, was surprised to see that my Honourable friend Mr. Joshi did not do enough credit to himself. If I circulate the Bill, and I am asked to circulate the Bill in order to canvass the opinion of the working classes, I wonder whether who would be the advocate that would be employed by the working classes except Mr. Joshi himself or my Honourable friend Mr. Lalchand Navalrai. It was in order to get the benefit of their representative character, their knowledge and information that I have taken care to include them in the Select Committee. However, Sir, if they feel that they cannot repose confidence in their ability to deal with what I regard as non-controversial points, I am quite prepared to fall in line with them and accept the amendment.

4 P.M.

Provided that, in the case of a return which he has reason to believe is incorrect or defective, the Collector shall not assess the duty at an amount higher than that at which it is assessable on the basis of the return without giving to the owner a reasonable opportunity of proving the correctness and completeness of the return.

(3) A notice under subsection (1) may be served on the owner of a mill either by post or by delivering it or tendering it to the owner or his agent at the mill.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

In view of the importance of rice as an agricultural crop and as the principal food of a very large proportion of the population of the country, it is considered necessary to put rice research, development and technology on a more permanent basis than it stands at present. Accordingly it is proposed to set up an Indian Central Rice Committee on lines similar to those of the Indian Central Cotton Committee, the Indian Lac Cess Committee, etc. The Committee which will have on it representatives of all the important interests concerned will devote exclusive attention to all problems connected with the improvement and development of the cultivation and marketing of paddy, the production and marketing of rice, and rice products and all matters incidental thereto. Since it is desirable that the Committee should have an independent source of income, it is proposed that as in the case of other similar Committees, e.g., the Indian Central Cotton Committee, the Indian Lac Cess Committee, etc., funds should be provided by the levy of a small excise duty not exceeding a rate of annas 6 per ton on all paddy which is hulled in power mills.

pon improving the Act and to remove all the defects hat have been suggested. What the Government of India roposes to do through the present amending Bill is to ake certain defects which are of such administrative nportance that unless and until those defects are remov- l, it will be difficult to administer the measure with the tention which lay behind the Act when it was passed.

Sir, taking the Bill clause by clause : Clause 2 of the ill seeks to make certain amendments in the definition the word "wages". I do not wish to weary the House by peating seriatim the defects which different parties to e Bill have suggested that they have found in the present finition of the word 'wages' as it stands. But I might ention some important ones. It has been said in a dicial decision given by the High Court of Bombay that e present definition of "wages" is so drafted that it is ssible for a workman not only to claim wages which he s earned but also wages which might be called potential ges—wages which he might earn. That certainly s not the intention of the original measure. Another which has been suggested with regard to this defini- n is that it allows a workman employed on the outturn sis to claim wages irrespective of his outturn. It has en suggested that there is a confusion in the definition ich does not quite distinguish the case of a workman ployed on a time basis and a workman employed on tturn basis. It has also been suggested in certain arters that some of the words which now occur in the finition are superfluous, that they need not be there d that their presence only causes confusion. I might er to the words : " includes any bonus or additional nuneration of the nature aforesaid which would be so

After making this division, the section provides that in the factories which come into category No. 1, payment must be made within 7 days, while in the case of the latter the limit of the period is prescribed to be 10 days. In actual practice it has been found difficult to observe the terms of this section, and the reason for that is very simple. The division of the factories is based upon the number of employees. As the House will realise, the number of workmen is never a constant figure ; it always changes. For instance, if the number of employees goes down by one, the category automatically shifts from category No. 1 to category No. 2. Similarly, if the number of employees is increased by one category No. 2 goes into category No. 1. It is believed—and I think very rightly—that this discriminating principle is neither very just nor administratively feasible. Consequently what the amendment seeks to do is to abolish this distinction whereby the factories have been divided into two categories and adopt the general principle that in all factories, irrespective of the number of employees that are working there, there shall be a uniform rule, namely that the payment must be made within ten days. The second amendment which clause 3 seeks to make is also, as the House will see, very necessary. In section 5, provision is made for the payment of an employee who is discharged from service. The section as it stands today provides that the payment to a discharged employee should be on the second working day. Now, Sir, if the Payment of Wages Act was only applicable to perennial factories which are working throughout the day, there can be no difficulty arising from the section as it stands now. But in the case of seasonal factories, the difficulty that would

Extract from the Legislative Assembly Debates, dated New Delhi, the 16th November, 1944

THE PAYMENT OF WAGES (AMENDMENT) BILL

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar (Labour ..ber): Mr. Deputy President, I move:

..That the Bill further to amend the Payment of Wages Act, 1936, referred to a Select Committee consisting of Seth Yusuf Abdoola ..roon, Mr. Muhammad Hussain Chaudhury, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, .. A C. Inskip, Sir Vithal N. Chandavarkar, Mr. N. M. Joshi, Dr. Sir ..tanji Dinshaw Dalal, Mr. D. S. Joshi, and the mover, and that the ..mber of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a ..eting of the Committee shall be five."

Sir, the Payment of Wages Act, to which the present ..ill proposes to make certain amendments, was passed .. the year 1936. This Bill, at the time when it was ..assed, was recognised as an experimental measure for the ..mple reason that when the Bill was drafted we had not ..efore us any model piece of legislation on which we ..uld have modelled the measure which is embodied in ..is Act. We have had now an experience of practically ..x years of this measure and in the course of the working .. has been discovered that the Bill suffers from many ..efects. If I may tell the House, it has been pointed out ..at there are practically 30 or 40 amendments which it .. necessary to make to improve the Payment of Wages ..ct. The Government of India realises that at present ..hey have not got the time to devote to all the amendments .. the measure which different parties have suggested ..nd consequently they do not propose to engage themselves ..pon improving the Act and to remove all the defects ..at have been suggested. What the Government of India ..oposes to do through the present amending Bill is to ..ke certain defects which are of such administrative ..portance that unless and until those defects are remov.., it will be difficult to administer the measure with the ..tention which lay behind the Act when it was passed.

Sir, taking the Bill clause by clause: Clause 2 of the ..ll seeks to make certain amendments in the definition .. the word "wages". I do not wish to weary the House by ..peating seriatim the defects which different parties to ..e Bill have suggested that they have found in the present ..finition of the word 'wages' as it stands. But I might ..ention some important ones. It has been said in a ..dicial decision given by the High Court of Bombay that .. present definition of "wages" is so drafted that it is ..ssible for a workman not only to claim wages which he ..s earned but also wages which might be called potential ..ges—wages which he might earn. That certainly ..s not the intention of the original measure. Another ..... which has been suggested with regard to this defini..n is that it allows a workman employed on the outturn ..sis to claim wages irrespective of his outturn. It has ..en suggested that there is a confusion in the definition ..ich does not quite distinguish the case of a workman ..ployed on a time basis and a workman employed on ..tturn basis. It has also been suggested in certain ..arters that some of the words which now occur in the ..finition are superfluous, that they need not be there ..d that their presence only causes confusion. I might ..er to the words: "includes any bonus or additional ..muneration of the nature aforesaid which would be so payable". It has been suggested to us that these words may not have any meaning other than the one which is already included in the previous part of this definition. It has also been suggested that while the definition of 'wages' was adequate before the system of dearness allowance brought about by the war came into existence, the definition today is inadequate because it is open for an employer to argue that the dearness allowance is not part of wages.

Now, the definition that we have suggested in the amending Bill seeks to remove all these difficulties. It seems to make the definition simple. I ought to tell the House that I am myself not very confident that the draft, as it stands in the amending Bill, carries out the intention which lies behind this original Act. I do not regard the definition which we have proposed as sacrosanct and if the members of the Select Committee are able to suggest a better one I should certainly raise no objection to the further amendment of the definition as it now stands in the amending Bill.

Coming to clause 3, it is a clause which makes two amendments to the present section 5. As the Honourable Members will remember, section 5 is a section which prescribes the period during which wages must be paid; and for the purpose of prescribing the period for the payment of wages, the section divides factories into two categories. In one category are placed factories which employ workmen whose number is less than 1,000. In the second category are placed factories which employ more than 1,000 employees. After making this division, the section provides that in the factories which come into category No. 1, payment must be made within 7 days, while in the case of the latter the limit of the period is prescribed to be 10 days. In actual practice it has been found difficult to observe the terms of this section, and the reason for that is very simple. The division of the factories is based upon the number of employees. As the House will realise, the number of workmen is never a constant figure; it always changes. For instance, if the number of employees goes down by one, the category automatically shifts from category No. 1 to category No. 2. Similarly, if the number of employees is increased by one category No. 2 goes into category No. 1. It is believed—and I think very rightly—that this discriminating principle is neither very just nor administratively feasible. Consequently what the amendment seeks to do is to abolish this distinction whereby the factories have been divided into two categories and adopt the general principle that in all factories, irrespective of the number of employees that are working there, there shall be a uniform rule, namely that the payment must be made within ten days. The second amendment which clause 3 seeks to make is also, as the House will see, very necessary. In section 5, provision is made for the payment of an employee who is discharged from service. The section as it stands today provides that the payment to a discharged employee should be on the second working day. Now, Sir, if the Payment of Wages Act was only applicable to perennial factories which are working throughout the day, there can be no difficulty arising from the section as it stands now. But in the case of seasonal factories, the difficulty that would arise is absolutely genuine because, supposing an employee was discharged on the last working day of the factory and the factory being a seasonal factory was closed down thereafter, then the second working day would come after a long interval which it would be difficult for anybody to imagine or to stipulate. Consequently the payment of wages to a discharged employee working in a seasonal factory would be indefinitely postponed if the provision as it now stands was not amended in the way suggested in the Bill. What we have therefore done by the amending Bill is to take away the word 'working' and substitute for the word 'second', the word 'third' so that where the factory is a seasonal factory or where the factory is a perennial factory every discharged workman will be paid on the seventh day and would not have to wait as he would have to in case the factory was a seasonal factory and the Act stood as it is now.

Now, I come to clause 4 of the Bill. As Honourable Members will see clause 4 proposes to make certain amendments in section 7 of this Act. Section 7 is a section which lays down what deductions can be made from the wages of workman. Honourable Members will see presently, that the section as it stands now does not cover all legitimate cases of deductions. I will draw the attention of Honourable Members to what are the omissions in the present Act. For instance, the Act as it stands now, or the section of the Act, does not cover the case of an employee who has left his employment, taken his provident fund and his gratuity and has lost the privileges which he would otherwise get if he had continued to be in service. It may be that for certain reasons, he had to resort to the expedience of obtaining a discharge from service in order to get his provident fund and his gratuity to meet certain economic demands that may be very pressing upon him. After that, he is re-employed and obviously he is anxious to get back all the privileges which he enjoyed before his discharge and his privileges depend upon whether or not he is prepared to return the provident fund which he had obtained and the gratuity which he got. The workman is willing and prepared for such deductions being made, but the law does not permit this. I think it will be agreed that such deduction should be allowed because it is in the interest of the employee himself. But, as I said such a provision does not find a place in the Act, as it now stands. Then, Sir, there are certain deductions which may be beneficial to the employee and the employee may be willing that the deductions made be made in order to cover such beneficial purposes. Again, there is no provision for allowing the workman voluntarily to agree to make deductions which he thinks are beneficial to himself. The law is made by the amendment in order to make this permissible, subject of course to the Provincial Governments coming to the conclusion that the purposes are beneficial really. There are other omissions in section 7 as it stands and those omissions relate to cases of workmen who are employed in what are called incremental scales. This is a new thing in the Bill and I wish to explain to the House not only what the provisions are but the circumstances which have led us to bring forward this amendment. The sub-section (3) of section 4 deals with three cases. It deals with the case of withholding of increment of an employee who is employed on an incremental scale. It deals with the case of demotion from a higher grade to a lower grade with consequent deduction in salary. Thirdly, it deals with the case of retention of an employee in a grade, the deduction of salary being due to loss of efficiency. The reason why it has become necessary to bring forward these amendments embodied in sub-section (3) of section 4 is that it has its origin in a decision given by the Judicial Commissioner of Sind. It was a case in which an employee who is, I believe an Engine driver, was concerned. His grade was maintained, but his salary was reduced. He went to a court of law for redress and pleaded that the reduction of his salary, while he was continued in the grade, was a deduction unauthorised by law. The contention and said that that was an unauthorised deducti[on]. But the Judge observed that if there was a new contra[ct] entered into with an employee telling him that as his ef[fi]ciency was not of the required level and standard to di[s]charge his duties that are incumbent upon an offi[cer] holding that particular grade, and if the new contra[ct] was accepted by him, then the deduction would be justi[fi]able. Now, what I have done in the Bill is to accept t[he] suggestion made by the Judge, namely, that whene[ver] there is a case of an officer whose grade is not redu[ced] but whose salary is reduced on account of the fact that [he] is not found to be as efficient as the responsibilities of t[he] post require, the deduction shall not come into existe[nce] unless the period of notice that his service requires sh[all] be fulfilled. Now, Sir, the object of that provision [is] really to give him one month's notice. The complet[e] or simplified procedure would be to give him a legal noti[ce] and to say, "We are not prepared to pay you the sa[me] salary that we paid before; if you like, continue on [a] new basis; if you do not like it, discontinue and go out o[f] service". Instead of having that elongated proce[ss] of two equations, notice and reply, offer and rejection, w[e] have combined the process by delaying the operation of t[he] reduction decision by the period of notice, so that befo[re] the period of notice expires if he tells his employer that [he] is not prepared to accept, he would be at liberty to [go] out. I should like to make this point clear because it mi[ght] be argued that in bringing forward these amendme[nts] we have really tried to counteract or set at naught [or] nullify the decision of the Additional Judicial Commissi[oner] and I want to tell the House that I am doing nothing [of] the kind but am merely following the decision of [the] Judicial Commissioner in the amendments which we h[ave] proposed.

With regard to the other two amendments, viz., [the] withholding of increments and demotion from a hig[her] grade to a lower grade, there can be no matter of contr[o]versy, for the simple reason that a person is promo[ted] from a lower to a higher grade only when the employe[r is] satisfied that by the experience that he has had in t[he] grade in which he has been serving he will be able to acqu[ire] such greater experience and greater efficiency that he can [be] legitimately expected to discharge the responsibilities of [the] higher grade. When, for instance, he has not been pr[o]moted there is no grievance, for the simple reason that [he] has not earned something which is sought to be tak[en] away.

Similarly with regard to the other provision, vi[z.], demotion from a higher to a lower grade, I do not th[ink] there can be any legitimate grievance in this kind of ded[uc]tion, for the simple reason that when a man has lost [so] much efficiency that an employer does not think that [he] can be retained in the same grade, I think it is justifia[ble] to reduce him because the reduction in salary is also ac[]companied by reduction of responsibility.

Now coming to clause 5 of the Bill it is a very sim[ple] clause. It seems to amend sub-section (7) of sectio[n 8]. Sub-section (6) of section 8 deals with the question of [the] time within which the fine imposed by an employer ma[y] be recovered. The question that arises is, when does [the] time run? Does it run from the date when the [act] was committed or does it run from the date when [the] employer came to know that a certain act or omission wa[s] done? Obviously it is not always possible for an employ[er] to know at the very time when an act was committ[ed] that it had been committed; it often happens that a[n] act is committed and knowledge of it comes to the employe[r] after a very long time. Consequently, it is felt necessar[y] that the point of time from which limitation should r[un] should not be the date of the offence but the date of t[he] knowledge; and I should like to tell the House that [in] amending this provision we are not introducing anythi[ng] that is novel. As lawyer Members of the House wel[l] know, there are many provisions in the law of limitatio[n] where the time in some cases runs from the date of th[e]

Coming to clause 6, this seeks to amend section 9 of the Act. Section 7 (2) (b) permits deductions being made on account of absence from duty. Unfortunately there is no definition given in the Act itself as to what is meant by 'absence from duty'. This clause removes this lacuna and adds a second explanation to section 9 where the expression 'absence from duty' is now sought to be defined. Clause 7 amends section 13, and that again is purely consequential; it is not a substantial provision. It makes section 13 applicable to the two of the new deductions contained in clause 4 of the Bill. As Honourable Members know, section 13 makes deductions permissible subject to such conditions as the Provincial Government may impose. We also want that the new deductions which the new amendment permits shall also be subject to the same proviso.

The last clause amends section 17 of the Act which regulates the right of appeal. As it stands the section gives a right of appeal to an employed person but does not give it to the Inspector who is the administrative authority for administering this particular Act. It is felt that it would be advisable in the interest of all, and particularly in the interest of the employees, for the Inspector also to have the right to make an appeal.

These, Sir, are the provisions of the Bill. I submit they are non-controversial and I believe and hope that the House will be able to accept my motion.

Sir, I move.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): Motion moved:

"That the Bill further to amend the Payment of Wages Act, 1936 be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Seth Yusuf Abdoola Haroon, Mr. Muhammad Hussain Chaudhury, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, Mr. A. C. Inskip, Sir Vithal N. Chandavarkar, Mr. N. M. Joshi, Dr. Sir Rattanji Dinshaw Dalal, Mr. D. S. Joshi, and the mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Mr. N. M. Joshi (Nominated Non-Official): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon."

Sir, the Honourable Mover said that the amendments proposed by him to the Payment of Wages Act were only administrative amendments and were non-controversial. I do not understand the meaning of administrative difficulties or administrative amendments, nor do I understand the meaning of the phrase 'non-controversial'; because I feel myself that most of these amendments proposed are controversial, at least in the sense that I do not approve of them.

The Statement of Objects and Reasons indicates and the speech of the Honourable the Labour Member also indicated that this legislation requires modification in order that it may be improved. I have no doubt, Sir, that it requires improvement, and I feel that the most important improvement which this piece of legislation requires is the extension of this legislation to the industries to which at present it does not apply. The present Act applies to what are known as 'factory industries' as well as to the Indian Railways, but the Act has given power to the Provincial Governments to extend its application to various industries like mines, plantations, transport industry (besides Railways), and several other industries. Unfortunately the Provincial Governments have not made use of the power given to them, and I therefore thought that the Honourable the Labour Member having waited for action on behalf of the Provincial Governments for six years would extend the application of the Act to the various industries to which the application was thought necessary by the Legislature when it passed the legislation. Unfortunately the Honourable the Labour Member did not do anything of the kind. He perhaps thought that that was not administrative reform; it was something else. That is not my explanation. My explanation for the Honourable Member not undertaking these important improvements in the legistion is that only recently the Honourable Member introduced and got committed.

3 p. m.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Mr. Deputy President. I rise to a point of order. We are discussing a Bill with a certain number of clauses which go to amend certain sections of an Act. Can any Honourable Member address the House on other sections of the Act which are not included in the Bill. He is speaking outside the scope of the Bill.

Dr. P. N. Banerjea (Calcutta Suburbs: Non-Muhammadan Urban): It is a general discussion.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir: The general discussion is confined to the Bill: it is not on the whole Act. If he wants to move other amendments to other sections of the Act he must bring forward a Bill of his own. This is not the place or the time. I contend, Mr. Deputy President, to discuss other sections of the Act which are not mentioned in the Bill. I consider his speech, therefore, to that extent is out of order.

Mr. N. C. Chunder (Calcutta: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Is it not open to a member to speak here and suggest that the Bill does not go far enough?

Mr. N. M. Joshi: Sir, the Statement of Objects and Reasons says:

"The Payment of Wages Act, 1936, when passed, was recognised to be an experimental piece of legislation. During its working a number of defects and difficulties have come to notice. While many of them can be left to be dealt with by comprehensive legislation at a later date, it is considered necessary to remove a few even during war time and the Bill seek to achieve this object."

The Honourable Member stated in his speech that he did not undertake the extensive reforms which are needed. I am only saying that the Honourable Member should have done that. I have not gone out of the scope of the Bill at all. I therefore appeal that I am quite in order in saying that the Honourable Member should have introduced a better measure.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): I think that Mr. Joshi is perfectly in order. He is criticising the speech of the Honourable Member as regards the scope of amendments. He suggests that there are many other amendments to make and I think that he is quite within his rights to say so.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: Sir, my explanation for the Honourable Member's failure to introduce improvements in the Bill is that recently the Honourable Member introduced a Bill which I consider to be quite progressive, though inadequate it was—the Bill regarding holdiays with pay—and I expected that the Honourable Member will keep up his progressive spirit. But, Sir, I feel that the Honourable Member somehow was afraid that if he introduced progressive Bills one after another then the character of the Government of India for being a conservative Government may be lost, and he did not like to take discredit for that.

Dr. P. N. Banerjea: Discredit or credit?

Mr. N. M. Joshi: I thought that in his opinion it may be discredit. Therefore, I thought, Sir, that the Honourable Member having introduced one progressive measure wanted to introduce at least one which may be regarded as reactionary so that the Government of India's character may be maintained.

Mr. Sri Prakasa (Allahabad and Jhansi Divisions: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Which has no character!

Mr. N. M. Joshi: Sir, that is my explanation, but I shall not deal with that aspect any further.

As regard the amendments themselves, after having studied all the amendments I feel that most of them are of reactionary nature and most of them are not also such that the Honourable Members of the legislatures should not have taken a little more time to study them: I feel Sir, that the Honourable Member should have chosen, if he wanted any urgent reforms, some other improvements than those which he has introduced in this Bill.

Now, Sir, I am suggesting that the Bill be circulated because I had not heard at all about some of the amendments before. As a matter of fact, before I came to Delhi I had just read in a newspaper that the Honourable Member was going to introduce a Bill for amending Payment of Wages Act. I myself did not know what the amendments were and when the Bill was introduced I read those amendments and I thought that the Honourable Member should not have been in a hurry to introduce these amendments. There is no doubt that there are one or two amendments about which I had heard before although definite proposals of the Government of India were not known to me. I do feel that this Bill affects the working classes of this country adversely and there is absolutely no urgency for it. This Bill should be circulated. Let the working classes know what the Bill is. Let their opinions be elicited. Then certainly the Legislature is entitled to consider this Bill, although in my judgment it is a very reactionary Bill. So I feel, Sir, that the House will support the motion which I have made that the Bill be circulated.

Now I shall not be long in dealing with the various amendments which the Honourable Member has introduced.

First he took up the question of the new definition of wages. The Statement of Objects and Reasons and also the Honourable Member's speech indicated why he thought that the amendment was necessary. He stated that this Bill would permit, what I may call, payment, or what the Honourable Member stated payment according to the outturn, or payment by results. I do not think that the Honourable Member should have felt any difficulty about this. Payment by results or payment by outturn has been going on for six years after the Bill was passed and I do not think, Sir, any real difficulty has been experienced. Then the Statement of Objects and Reasons had stated something about profit-sharing and also dearness allowance. Personally, I feel that a real difficulty has not arisen about these matters at all and the Government of India has anticipated difficulties and are trying to take measures in anticipation. I feel there was no urgency from that point of view also. If the Bill is passed, it will certainly introduce a definition which will bring into being certain practices which the original Act was intended to prevent.

I shall give you an example. The original Act wanted to prevent payment of bonuses for regularity of attendance. There are practices where employers pay a certain bonus if a workman attends a certain number of days in a month, or if a workman's conduct is considered to be good by the employer he is given certain bonuses. The Legislature in 1936 deliberately framed the definition of wages in such a way that these practices should be stopped. The Legislature thought that by giving inducements for regularity or for good conduct, the workman himself may be demoralised and also the employer. Therefore they wanted to stop these practices. From the labour point of view there is another objection to these bonuses, namely, the labour strength and solidarity is weakened when half of them are paid some bonus and half of them are not paid.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): May I point out to the Honourable Mover of the motion that his motion must be given a date. This is obligatory under the rules.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: If it is obligatory then you may permit me to move:

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon by the 28th February, 1945."

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): It is in order now and you may proceed.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: This definition that the Honourable Member has introduced is changing the original intention of that Act. I personally believe, Sir, that the working classes in this country do not require special inducements of bonuses to make them good honest workman and therefore this practice of giving special inducements—what I may call in vulgar language bribes—should not be allowed, and the Legislature should never tolerate this practice because when we do our work as legislators we do not ask for special inducements in order to make us do our work quite honestly. We never ask for titles and honours for doing our work honestly. Similarly, a good workman asks nothing more but to be paid well and if he is paid well he is ready to give honest, good, hard work. Therefore, Sir, I feel that the change introduced by this measure is a wrong one and requires to be examined fully. That is why I say let the working classes know what change is going to be effected by this definition and thereafter we shall consider the amendment.

Then the Honourable Member has introduced certain amendments to section 5. One of the amendments provides that in respect of the smaller factories employing 1,000 persons or less and making payments before the seventh day of the month, they may be permitted to make payments up to the 10th. In England and in, what I may call, progressive countries wages are paid 2 or 3 days after they are due. In India we have given longer period. That period itself is a very long one and I thought when the Honourable Member for Labour was going to amend this Act he would amend it in a progressive way, i.e., if he found any difficulty in having two kinds of periods that is the ten, and seven days, he would fix the seven days as the period for making payment. But in order to keep up his character of being conservative or reactionary, he fixes the date of payment before ten days. I thought the amendment was really out of date and not in keeping with the progressive times.

Then the Honourable Member has made another change about removing the words "second working" day and replacing it with the word "third". He said there is difficulty regarding seasonal factories. Perhaps there may be some difficulty but it has not been experienced up to this time; it has not come to my notice at any rate. But if the Honourable Member felt that some amendment was necessary to enable payment to be made when a seasonal factory closes, or even a perennial factory closes, then, Sir, he could make that as an exception. But he makes an amendment by which all employers can refuse to pay a workman who leaves his job till the third day. Now the original Act had done some injustice to the workman. When a man terminates his services, a good employer pays him on the date of his dismissal or discharge, because if the payment is not made on that day the workman has to wait one or two days for receiving payment for the services rendered and he loses wages for those days. If a man is dismissed and if he has to go to the mill to receive his payment the next day, he loses one day's wages. If he has to come there on the third day he loses three days' wages. I feel that if the Honourable Member wanted to provide for the difficulty which is felt in the case of seasonal factories and when a factory is closed, he could have removed that difficulty in a different way to what he is doing.

Then, Sir, the Honourable Member has now introduced some other change, permitting some deductions, and the Honourable Member has introduced a general clause by which Provincial Governments are given power to permit any deductions which in the opinion of the Provincial Government are beneficial to workmen. Now, Sir, the Honourable Member may have great confidence in the Provincial Governments and I too have some confidence in them, and I know some of them sometimes do some good service to labour. But, Sir, I am not prepared to give such a wide power to the Provincial Government. In his speech the Honourable the Labour Member said that these deductions may be voluntary but they may not be voluntary. In any case his Bill does not provide that these deductions which the Provincial Governments may sanction will be all voluntary. No, Sir, that is not provided in the Bill itself: that may be his intention. I do not approve of this clause giving general power to the Provincial Government to sanction deductions, which, in the opinion of the Provincial Government, are beneficial

Then there is this question about stopping of increments and degrading workmen or asking them to take up less skilled work, so that their wages may be reduced. The Honourable Member quoted a judgment of the Sind Government that certain practices which prevailed on Indian Railways should be sanctioned by law. When the Payment of Wages Act was passed the Railway authorities, who are in the habit of imposing large fines upon their employees, found, that they could not exercise their authority uncontrolled. The Payment of Wages Act controlled their authority to a great extent and they wanted to gain that authority again by a different way. Instead of fining a workman, they began to degrade him, stop his promotion or put him on a less paid job. I feel that these practices were against the spirit of the original Payment of Wages Act and therefore the amendments suggested by the Honourable Member are not in the interests of the working classes. In any case before these amendments are considered by a Select Committee, it is absolutely necessary that the Railway workmen, who will be mostly the persons affected by this amendment, should know what is being done by the Legislature and therefore the Bill should be circulated.

Then, Sir, the Honourable Member has also introduced certain other amendments, one of them regarding permitting certain deductions for absence.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I have only given the definition of absence. I have not permitted deductions: they are already there.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: I know. The Honourable Member is a very simple man. He has changed the definition of absence with the result that certain deductions may be permitted. The original Act permits deductions for absence up to a certain point. The deductions may be made for the actual time lost or work not done. But if this Amendment is made, and if I understand it rightly, it is quite possible for an employer to impose double fine on the employee.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: That is not correct.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: All right. We shall discuss it at the proper time. What may happen is this: an employee is absent for an hour. He cannot turn out work for that hour and therefore if he is paid on piece rate his wages are automatically reduced. Besides receiving less wages, it is quite possible that if this Amendment is made the man's wages may be deducted still further.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: No, no.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: The Honourable Member says No. We shall discuss that question, which is one of interpretation.

There is another amendment which the Honourable Member has suggested and that amendment is to enable the workmen to be fined after the offending or wrong act was detected. This amendment he considers to be very reasonable but I am afraid this amendment is one which enables the employer to keep the sword of Damocles hanging over the head of workmen, for how long, I do not know. A workman does some offending act, a small thing like coming late by an hour or two on a particular day. The employer's register is maintained by a time-keeper or somebody else but the employer has not noticed that the man was absent for an hour or two and therefore has not deducted his wages. After two or three years the employer finds out that the man was absent and therefore must be fined. I am not suggesting that this is a very happy example: there may be some other examples. But the offending act may be committed to-day and the employer may fine the workman after five or ten years. He says there is no law of limitation. The employer may be negligent, careless and not vigilant and yet if he discovers the offence of the workman after five or ten years, the latter must be fined. Sir, the Legislature should not sanction such a thing. The Legislature was very reasonable when it passed the Act. What the Legislature said was that a man after doing something wrong should not be fined after sixty days. That is, the Legislature has given the employer sixty days' time to find out if his employee has done anything wrong. I think sixty days are quite enough for a vigilant employer to find out the mistake or wrong committed by his employee. I do not wish to go into all the amendments which the Honourable Member has suggested. I feel that the amendments which are proposed are such that they will adversely affect the interests of the working classes in this country. In any case they are not very urgent. I therefore feel that the motion which I have made may be approved by the Legislature and after the Bill is circulated and the opinions of the working classes are obtained, the Legislature may consider the further stages of this Bill. In any case the Legislature should not consider this motion for committing the Bill to a Select Committee till the opinions of the working classes are obtained on this Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta) Amendment moved:

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon by the 28th February, 1945."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: (Sind: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Sir, at the very outset I should submit that I felt restrained when the Honourable Member said that this Bill is non-controversial and only administratively it is being improved or corrected. I should think that this Bill is of the utmost importance. A Bill which affects the interests of labour cannot be said to be an unimportant measure. And I may say how many times labour itself has contested the principal provisions of the Act.

Mr. Sri Prakasa: Labour should produce better Bills.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: Several questions as to the interpretation of the original Act have come before for consideration. How then is this Bill non-controversial? The Honourable Member in the same breath said that such questions have arisen before and gone to the High Courts............

Mr. Sri Prakasa: He is in labour!

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: He himself has said that the Chief Court of Sind decided a case which, according to him, has necessitated his coming forward with this amendment. I do not agree with him in the interpretation he puts on that decision. He has set forth in the Notes on Clauses what that court has held. It has held that when there is any deduction or reduction in pay or any demotion it will be considered that there has been a deduction from their pay. I think my Honourable friend said that according to him the decision of the Chief Court was not sustainable by the decision itself. I may inform the Honourable Member that I had to do something with that case, in the sense of giving advice when the matter was going to court; and it was decided accordingly—as has been stated in the Notes—

"The Sind Chief Court held some time ago that the temporary reduction of an employee from one step in an incremental scale to another amounted to a deduction within the meaning of the Act. Doubts have also been expressed whether reductions, demotions, etc., by way of disciplinary measures amounted to 'deductions'."

This is what the Chief Court held, that they are deductions; and therefore it looks as if the Honourable Member is attempting to override that decision of the Chief Court. I do not think the Legislature will allow that without very serious consideration. I am for circulation of the Bill, because it is a question of legal interpretation, and therefore it should be circulated not only to labour but to their representatives and their advisers and advocates, so that the right interpretation may be arrived at. It will lessen the work of the Honourable Member in Select Committee. He will get the opinions of some of the High Courts which override this decision of the Chief Court, if he wants that the law should be changed. We must have opinions to guide us in the Select Committee. It would be wise of the Honourable Member to accept the amendment that has been put in.

It is not only the question of demotion or reduction that has to be considered under this Bill—there is also the question of absence and also what will be the effect if a man is wrongly discharged or dismissed. Such cases have also recently come up before the tribunals and they have held in the case of absence, that if the absence is wilful or not right, then the deduction can be made. But in the case of discharge or dismissal, they have said that that can only be made by the authority which has the power, because many times the order of discharge was made by an authority to whom the power had been wrongly delegated. How can it therefore be said that all these questions are unimportant or non-controversial? On the contrary, I think that considering this Bill along with several other Bills which are coming before the House, this is a more important one than the others and I hope the Honourable Member will send this for cirulation.

Another reason is this. No opportunity has been given to the representatives of labour or to labour itself to consider this Bill. This was introduced on the very first day we came here, and to-day it is sought to refer it to Select Committee. We have therefore got no opinions before us. We have got absolutely no opinion......

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I am sorry to have included my Honourable friend in the Select Committee when he has no opinion.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: This also will be one of the points I have raised. I am not going into the details of the clauses, but these are the more important things; and when the Honourable Member says that this is not a controversial Bill, I would leave the House to consider whether he is right. There are several other points which have to be considered before this Bill comes to the stage of going to the Select Committee. Mr. Joshi himself says he had not sufficient time to give his opinion on the Bill.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: We are here every day: where is the time to study it?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: Mr. Joshi is an expert in these matters and he has been working all along for labour and going into these questions for an age, and therefore his opinion that it should go for circulation should be accepted at once. He has experience and he has criticised some of the provisions; but I would also submit that this Bill should be circulated because there are certain things contained in it which must be decided once for all, if labour is to go on co-operating in a conciliatory manner: otherwise they will be disturbed. Labour is very powerful nowadays and we have to move cautiously; and when you make a law and subject them to certain conditions, you must proceed cautiously and not hustle the proceedings of this Bill. These are important questions. How many decisions have there been on the word "wages"? The lawyers know it—we know it; we know how much difference there has been between the interpretations of different High Courts. The definition of "wages" is being changed. Therefore, now that a new definition with additions and alterations is being made, that also should be considered by those concerned and those whom it affects.

Then, Sir, you are also changing the time when they should get the payment. They have always been crying that the payment should be made on the first day or the second day after it falls due. They were getting it in certain conditions within seven days. Now seven days are going to be increased to ten days. There will be a cry over that too. That also should be considered.

Then there is this question of demotion. When it suits the employer, he gives a man a higher type of work and when the employer does not require that higher type of work, you want to bring him down again to the old lesser pay. Is that fair? If you have selected the man for the higher type of work, you must keep him there, whether you have got work for him or not. That is a question that you have got to consider.

I will not go into the details of the other provisi[illegible] of the Bill which should, I think, go out for circulatio[illegible] After circulation, we will sit together and then consid[illegible] all the points of law as well as points of fact and come t[illegible] conclusion.

Mr. A. C. Inskip (United Provinces: Europea[illegible] As the Honourable Member for Labour has said, the obj[illegible] of this amendment Bill is to seek to clarify cert[illegible] obscurities in the present Bill, particularly in regard [illegible] three items. It seeks to make it clear that wages h[illegible] to be earned under the contract of employment, expre[illegible] or implied. It also seeks to make it clear that wh[illegible] there is an incremental scale, the increment may only [illegible] withheld as a disciplinary measure. It seeks further [illegible] lay down that a diminution of wages by reason of requi[illegible] ment to perform work involving a standard of skill [illegible] responsibility lower than that in the previous work, [illegible] not a deduction.

The Bill itself makes clear that "the withholdin[illegible] of an increment is to be treated in several importa[illegible] respects as if it were a fine and will not be permitt[illegible] except when the employee has committed an offence agai[illegible] discipline in accordance with an approved detailed lis[illegible] offences hung up on the factory's notice board. T[illegible] existing Payment of Wages Rules make the Chief Inspe[illegible] of Factories the final arbiter of this list and in making t[illegible] decision he will depend on the guidance he can get from [illegible] Act."

Taking all these definite pointers together, then [illegible] facts emerge. Firstly, Government admits that [illegible] definition of wages—which is the most important [illegible] fundamental thing in the whole of this legislation—[illegible] on the idea that there is always a contract of employ[illegible] either express or implied. Wages mean the wages ea[illegible] under the contract of employment.

Secondly, the legislation is intended to enforce paym[illegible] of wages earned under the contract of employment with[illegible] delay or deduction, but not to enforce anything bey[illegible] this. The clarification attempted by the present B[illegible] apparently intends to make a clear distinction betw[illegible] payments that are wages and payments that are not.

If then what I have said correctly interpret Gover[illegible] ment's intentions then certain criticisms must be lev[illegible] against the new Bill.

Now, Sir, let me turn to the details of the propo[illegible] Bill, and in particular to Clause 2. In the new defin[illegible] of "wages", the word "bonus" has been allowed [illegible] remain in. It seems to be quite-superfluous since the [illegible] of the phrase "additional remuneration for increa[illegible] output" is sufficiently clear and inclusive as it sta[illegible] or in any case could easily be made so. The question [illegible] whether various kinds of bonus are or are not paya[illegible] by employers as a matter of obligation has been one of the most fruitful sources of industrial disputes in recent y[illegible] extending to an attempt to force the payment of an[illegible] bonuses at increased rates even when the payment of [illegible] bonus has clearly not been a term of the contract of em[illegible] ployment and even when the rate of profits has [illegible] increased. In other words, such attempts have [illegible] directed towards the very object of trying to get ex [illegible] bonuses treated as a compulsory and unconditional part [illegible] earnings. Why then, in the process of clearing up the most important and most obscure definition in the pres[illegible] Act should this ill-fated word of many meanings be retain[illegible] in the sense of a payment due to the worker under h[illegible] contract of employment. It makes the meaning of the term "wages" depend on the exact meaning of the word "bonus", and it would be difficult to find a more unsuitab[illegible] foundation on which to rest an Act, or one more certai[illegible] to lead directly or indirectly to disputes. All this appl[illegible] with the same force even to the wording as published [illegible] the Bill. However carefully the word "bonus" is qualifi[illegible] the word itself is sure to provoke misinterpretation. B[illegible]

the draft has the further disadvantage that even a slight error in punctuation—such as the insertion of a comma after the word "bonus"—might make it much worse. It is noticeable also that in this clause a specific reference to the money being "earned under the terms of his contract of employment" appears in the second line, after which there is a whole list of particular cases hanging in the air with no further reference to the contract of employment at all. In particular, the word "payable" in the sixth line might mean almost anything. If "payable under the terms of the contract of employment" is meant, then there can be no objection to saying so and there is every objection to the matter being left in any doubt. As it stands, there is a probability of dispute about whether an amount is payable because it has been paid in the past or for any other such reason.

Then, Sir, the Amending Bill seeks to include Dearness Allowance in the definition of wages. This, I fear, will undoubtedly cause serious complications, particularly in concerns where a provident fund is in existence for the benefit of its employees. Unless many existing provident fund schemes are altered, the employee will now have to pay a percentage of allowance as well as of wages as his contribution; and the employer who has agreed to contribute a like amount to the fund will also be penalised.

Then, Sir, in regard to clause 4, paragraph 3, the expression "on an incremental basis" is extremely vague. Almost any employment where there is any prospect of financial improvement at all might be described as being on an incremental basis. The wording in the Statement of Objects and Reasons is not very precise, but that in the Bill itself is far vaguer still. The expression "for disciplinary reasons" also is not very clear. The most probable interpretation is open to criticism in principle. It seems from the wording that the intention is to make the withholding of an increment illegal except in cases of breach of discipline. If so, this amounts to forcing the employer to fulfil a most important part of the contract of employment on one side while leaving it open to the employee to fail to fulfil the corresponding obligation on the other side. The employee is not paid his wages solely in consideration of his preserving discipline. He is mainly paid for the use of his skill. This is the main reason why different wage rates and incremental rates exist at all, and this fact incidentally is recognised in section 4, paragraph 4 of the Bill. The main reason and justification for a scale of increments is to make the rate of pay match the value of work when the value increases with increasing skill resulting from experience. But although the value of the work usually increases with the lapse of time—and time scales exist in order to deal with this normal state of affairs—, skill does not always increase in this way. A man may be lazy, he may be unwilling to take increased responsibility, he may be suffering from disability or he may simply be below average, or the process at which he is working may be changed and he may be unable to respond to the changed conditions. None of these cases amounts to a clear breach of discipline. Is it right, then, to compel the employer, if he has a time-scale for the average cases, to raise the wage rates of less valuable workers unconditionally on the same scale? What would be the position if an employer wished to revise the scale of wages for a particular occupation? As long as the scale is unaltered, the individual employee is protected under the Bill from having his increment stopped or his wages reduced. Would the alteration of the scale itself in a downward direction be legal or would it be regarded as a wholesale breach of the provisions of this clause?

Then, Sir, turning to clause 4, paragraph 4: it will be seen that this clause clearly deals with the case where an employer requires an employee to accept a lower paid job, but it does not cover failure on the part of the employee to improve or maintain the standard of his work in line with the remuneration laid down in the wage scale relating to his job.

In regard to clause 4, paragraph 5, this clause stipulates that the provisions of section 8, paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 of the existing Act shall apply to the withholding of increments, etc., which again apparently confirms that the employer would be compelled to pay those of his workmen who are on time rates without reference to their individual skill or assiduity. Such one-sided protection seems calculated to put a premium on idleness and mediocrity and to hinder the employer in rewarding his employees according to their merits.

The points of criticism I have put forward represent the views of the Group to which I belong and I trust they will receive the attention of the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill and the Select Committee, for there would appear to be a tendency to think exclusively about protecting workmen from unscrupulous employers and to forget that if this protection is given unconditionally, it leaves the employer and the public unprotected against the slack and inefficient workman.

Sir, I support the original motion.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: Mr. Deputy President, if it can help to curtail the debate, I should like to state at this stage that I am prepared to accept the amendment.

Professor N. G. Ranga (Guntur-cum-Nellore: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Sir, I am glad the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill has agreed to accept the motion for circulation. Therefore, I do not wish to say much at this stage on the merits of the Bill except that in my view it is worse than a pill of poison. To take a pill of poison, the patient has to be coaxed to open his mouth and swallow it, but this Bill is a sort of an injection which is given while the patient is asleep by a very dreadful process. The patient does not know that poison is being injected into him; nevertheless, it has its deadly effect.

Sir, there does not seem to be any particular hurry for a Bill like this. I do not know why the Honourable Member in charge has lent his ear to those reactionaries who press on him the need for a Bill like this, as if the Bill is not bad enough. My Honourable friend the spokesman for the European Group has got up with his attempt to make it even more reactionary and more troublesome and unacceptable to the workers. Has it been found in practice during these days of crisis that production has been materially affected anywhere because these amendments have not been made to the original Act? We have not had any report to that effect. It cannot even be pleaded that the workers, because they are going on working from year to year in these days of war and are becoming senior workmen, are becoming less and less efficient and that the employers are unable to demote them, reduce their wages and even cut down their earnings and in that way cut down their labour bill. That, too, has not been established. On the other hand, what is happening is that more and more workers are being employed and the workers who have been there before the beginning of the war have been found to become more and more skilled and yielding also bigger and bigger profits for the employers and also the Government, which reaps its benefit through the Excess Profits Tax. My Honourable friend the spokesman of the European Group was talking about the failure of worker's skill to rise in consonance with the rise of pay. I wish he would turn his attention to what is happening in the Government of India and to its employees and also to many of his own compatriots in this country who are employed in various plantations and other European Companies. Is he sure that as they become more and more senior in their service, their skill is also increasing? Is he sure that as they are being assured of their annual increments of Rs. 50 or Rs. 100, their efficiency is also increasing? In fact, it is the other way about. But is there any provision on the Statute-book of this Government which provides for a corresponding reduction in the salaries, emoluments and allowances that are being given to many of these Government officials and European officials in this country who are employed either by Government or by commercial concerns, so that they may be made to realise that they are becoming eligible to superannuation, whereas they are only made eligible to-day to higher and higher increments as years go by.

Sir, there are a number of provisions to which I take very strong objection but I speak with trepidation in regard to the details because the Honourable Member has not vouchsafed to us the views of the organised labour in this country. I am glad he has agreed to our suggestion that it should be sent into circulation and I hope when the Bill comes back after circulation it may be possible for most of us who are laymen in regard to the trade union matters to form a judgment in regard to the merits of these different sections than is possible at present. Therefore, I support the motion for circulation.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: Sir, as I have said, I am prepared to accept the motion made by my friend Mr. Joshi. In that event, it is unnecessary for me to make any speech. All that I would like to say is this that I cannot agree that any strong case has been made out for circulation. As I said just now, I made myself very clear that the amendments which I have put forth were administrative in the sense that they will remove the difficulties that exist in the administration of the law. I have not seen that any of the amendments which are contained in this Bill were, if I may say so, beyond the capacity and the intelligence and the knowledge and the information of Honourable Members of the Select Committee. I, Sir, was surprised to see that my Honourable friend Mr. Joshi did not do enough credit to himself. If I circulate the Bill, and I am asked to circulate the Bill in order to canvass the opinion of the working classes, I wonder whether who would be the advocate that would be employed by the working classes except Mr. Joshi himself or my Honourable friend Mr. Lalchand Navalrai. It was in order to get the benefit of their representative character, their knowledge and information that I have taken care to include them in the Select Committee. However, Sir, if they feel that they cannot repose confidence in their ability to deal with what I regard as non-controversial points, I am quite prepared to fall in line with them and accept the amendment.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): The question is:

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon by the 28th February 1945."

The motion was adopted.

THE following Bill on the Indian Rice Committee, is published for the information of persons or public bodies likely to be affected thereby. Any person or public body desiring to submit any opinion on the Bill is invited to address the Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab, Development Department, before the 31st January 1945. opinions submitted direct to the Central Legislative Assembly Department or any other Department of the Government of India, will not be accepted :—

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

In view of the importance of rice as an agricultural crop and as the principal food of a very large proportion of the population of the country, it is considered necessary to put rice research, development and technology on a more permanent basis than it stands at present. Accordingly it is proposed to set up an Indian Central Rice Committee on lines similar to those of the Indian Central Cotton Committee, the Indian Lac Cess Committee, etc. The Committee which will have on it representatives of all the important interests concerned will devote exclusive attention to all problems connected with the improvement and development of the cultivation and marketing of paddy, the production and marketing of rice, and rice products and all matters incidental thereto. Since it is desirable that the Committee should have an independent source of income, it is proposed that as in the case of other similar Committees, e.g., the Indian Central Cotton Committee, the Indian Lac Cess Committee, etc., funds should be provided by the levy of a small excise duty not exceeding a rate of annas 6 per ton on all paddy which is hulled in power mills.

they have not got the time to devote to all the amendments to the measure which different parties have suggested and consequently they do not propose to engage themselves upon improving the Act and to remove all the defects that have been suggested. What the Government of India proposes to do through the present amending Bill is to take certain defects which are of such administrative importance that unless and until those defects are removed, it will be difficult to administer the measure with the intention which lay behind the Act when it was passed.

Sir, taking the Bill clause by clause : Clause 2 of the Bill seeks to make certain amendments in the definition of the word "wages". I do not wish to weary the House by repeating seriatim the defects which different parties to the Bill have suggested that they have found in the present definition of the word 'wages' as it stands. But I might mention some important ones. It has been said in a judicial decision given by the High Court of Bombay that the present definition of "wages" is so drafted that it is possible for a workman not only to claim wages which he has earned but also wages which might be called potential wages—wages which he might earn. That certainly was not the intention of the original measure. Another defect which has been suggested with regard to this definition is that it allows a workman employed on the outturn basis to claim wages irrespective of his outturn. It has been suggested that there is a confusion in the definition which does not quite distinguish the case of a workman employed on a time basis and a workman employed on outturn basis. It has also been suggested in certain quarters that some of the words which now occur in the definition are superfluous, that they need not be there and that their presence only causes confusion. I might refer to the words : " includes any bonus or additional remuneration of the nature aforesaid which would be so categories. In one category are placed factories which employ workmen whose number is less than 1,000. In the second category are placed factories which employ more than 1,000 employees. After making this division, the section provides that in the factories which come into category No. 1, payment must be made within 7 days, while in the case of the latter the limit of the period is prescribed to be 10 days. In actual practice it has been found difficult to observe the terms of this section, and the reason for that is very simple. The division of the factories is based upon the number of employees. As the House will realise, the number of workmen is never a constant figure ; it always changes. For instance, if the number of employees goes down by one, the category automatically shifts from category No. 1 to category No. 2. Similarly, if the number of employees is increased by one category No. 2 goes into category No. 1. It is believed—and I think very rightly—that this discriminating principle is neither very just nor administratively feasible. Consequently what the amendment seeks to do is to abolish this distinction whereby the factories have been divided into two categories and adopt the general principle that in all factories, irrespective of the number of employees that are working there, there shall be a uniform rule, namely that the payment must be made within ten days. The second amendment which clause 3 seeks to make is also, as the House will see, very necessary. In section 5, provision is made for the payment of an employee who is discharged from service. The section as it stands today provides that the payment to a discharged employee should be on the second working day. Now, Sir, if the Payment of Wages Act was only applicable to perennial factories which are working throughout the day, there can be no difficulty arising from the section as it stands now. But in the case of seasonal factories, the difficulty that would arise is absolutely genuine because, supposing an employee was discharged on the last working day of the factory and the factory being a seasonal factory was closed down thereafter, then the second working day would come after a long interval which it would be difficult for anybody to imagine or to stipulate. Consequently the payment of wages to a discharged employee working in a seasonal factory would be indefinitely postponed if the provision as it now stands was not amended in the way suggested in the Bill. What we have therefore done by the amending Bill is to take away the word 'working' and substitute for the word 'second', the word 'third' so that where the factory is a seasonal factory or where the factory is a perennial factory every discharged workman will be paid on the seventh day and would not have to wait as he would have to in case the factory was a seasonal factory and the Act stood as it is now.

Now, I come to clause 4 of the Bill. As Honourable Members will see clause 4 proposes to make certain amendments in section 7 of this Act. Section 7 is a section which lays down what deductions can be made from the wages of workman. Honourable Members will see presently, that the section as it stands now does not cover all legitimate cases of deductions. I will draw the attention of Honourable Members to what are the omissions in the present Act. For instance, the Act as it stands now, or the section of the Act, does not cover the case of an employee who has left his employment, taken his provident fund and his gratuity and has lost the privileges which he would otherwise get if he had continued to be in service. It may be that for certain reasons, he had to resort to the expedience of obtaining a discharge from service in order to get his provident fund and his gratuity to meet certain economic demands that may be very pressing upon him. After that, he is re-employed and obviously he is anxious to get back all the privileges which he enjoyed before his discharge and his privileges depend upon whether or not he is prepared to return the provident fund which he had obtained and the gratuity which he got. The workman is willing and prepared for such deductions being made, but the law does not permit this. I think it will be agreed that such deduction should be allowed because it is in the interest of the employee himself. But, as I said such a provision does not find a place in the Act, as it now stands. Then, Sir, there are certain deductions which may be beneficial to the employee and the employee may be willing that the deductions made be made in order to cover such beneficial purposes. Again, there is no provision for allowing the workman voluntarily to agree to make deductions which he thinks are beneficial to himself. The law is made by the amendment in order to make this permissible, subject of course to the Provincial Governments coming to the conclusion that the purposes are beneficial really. There are other omissions in section 7 as it stands and those omissions relate to cases of workmen who are employed in what are called incremental scales. This is a new thing in the Bill and I wish to explain to the House not only what the provisions are but the circumstances which have led us to bring forward this amendment. The sub-section (3) of section 4 deals with three cases. It deals with the case of withholding of increment of an employee who is employed on an incremental scale. It deals with the case of demotion from a higher grade to a lower grade with consequent deduction in salary. Thirdly, it deals with the case of retention of an employee in a grade, the deduction of salary being due to loss of efficiency. The reason why it has become necessary to bring forward these amendments embodied in sub-section (3) of section 4 is that it has its origin in a decision given by the Judicial Commissioner of Sind. It was a case in which an employee who is, I believe an Engine driver, was concerned. His grade was maintained, but his salary was reduced. He went to a court of law for redress and pleaded that the reduction of his salary, while he was continued in the grade, was a deduction unauthorised by law. The Judge upheld the contention and said that that was an unauthorised deducti[on]. But the Judge observed that if there was a new contra[ct] entered into with an employee telling him that as his [effi]ciency was not of the required level and standard to d[is]charge his duties that are incumbent upon an offic[er] holding that particular grade, and if the new contra[ct] was accepted by him, then the deduction would be justi[fi]able. Now, what I have done in the Bill is to accept t[he] suggestion made by the Judge, namely, that whene[ver] there is a case of an officer whose grade is not reduc[ed] but whose salary is reduced on account of the fact that [he] is not found to be as efficient as the responsibilities of t[he] post require, the deduction shall not come into existen[ce] unless the period of notice that his service requires sh[all] be fulfilled. Now, Sir, the object of that provision [is] really to give him one month's notice. The complet[e] or simplified procedure would be to give him a legal noti[ce] and to say, "We are not prepared to pay you the sam[e] salary that we paid before; if you like, continue on t[he] new basis; if you do not like it, discontinue and go ou[t of] service". Instead of having that elongated proce[ss] of two equations, notice and reply, offer and rejection, [we] have combined the process by delaying the operation of t[he] reduction decision by the period of notice, so that befo[re] the period of notice expires if he tells his employer that [he] is not prepared to accept, he would be at liberty to g[o] out. I should like to make this point clear because it mig[ht] be argued that in bringing forward these amendmen[ts] we have really tried to counteract or set at naught [or] nullify the decision of the Additional Judicial Commission[er] and I want to tell the House that I am doing nothing [of] the kind but am merely following the decision of t[he] Judicial Commissioner in the amendments which we hav[e] proposed.

With regard to the other two amendments, viz., th[e] withholding of increments and demotion from a high[er] grade to a lower grade, there can be no matter of contr[o]versy, for the simple reason that a person is promote[d] from a lower to a higher grade only when the employer i[s] satisfied that by the experience that he has had in th[e] grade in which he has been serving he will be able to acqu[ire] such greater experience and greater efficiency that he can b[e] legitimately expected to discharge the responsibilities of th[e] higher grade. When, for instance, he has not been pro[]moted there is no grievance, for the simple reason that he has not earned something which is sought to be taken away.

Similarly with regard to the other provision, viz., demotion from a higher to a lower grade, I do not think there can be any legitimate grievance in this kind of deduc[]tion, for the simple reason that when a man has lost so much efficiency that an employer does not think that he can be retained in the same grade, I think it is justifiable to reduce him because the reduction in salary is also ac[]companied by reduction of responsibility.

Now coming to clause 5 of the Bill it is a very simple clause. It seems to amend sub-section (7) of section 8. Sub-section (6) of section 8 deals with the question of the time within which the fine imposed by an employer may be recovered. The question that arises is, when does the time run? Does it run from the date when the offence was committed or does it run from the date when the employer came to know that a certain act or omission was done? Obviously it is not always possible for an employer to know at the very time when an act was committed that it had been committed; it often happens that an act is committed and knowledge of it comes to the employer after a very long time. Consequently, it is felt necessary that the point of time from which limitation should run should not be the date of the offence but the date of the knowledge; and I should like to tell the House that in amending this provision we are not introducing anything that is novel. As lawyer Members of the House would know, there are many provisions in the law of limitation where the time in some cases runs from the date of the act and in some cases from the knowledge of the act.

Coming to clause 6, this seeks to amend section 9 of the Act. Section 7 (2) (b) permits deductions being made on account of absence from duty. Unfortunately there is no definition given in the Act itself as to what is meant by 'absence from duty'. This clause removes this lacuna and adds a second explanation to section 9 where the expression 'absence from duty' is now sought to be defined. Clause 7 amends section 13, and that again is purely consequential; it is not a substantial provision. It makes section 13 applicable to the two of the new deductions contained in clause 4 of the Bill. As Honourable Members know, section 13 makes deductions permissible subject to such conditions as the Provincial Government may impose. We also want that the new deductions which the new amendment permits shall also be subject to the same proviso.

The last clause amends section 17 of the Act which regulates the right of appeal. As it stands the section gives a right of appeal to an employed person but does not give it to the Inspector who is the administrative authority for administering this particular Act. It is felt that it would be advisable in the interest of all, and particularly in the interest of the employees, for the Inspector also to have the right to make an appeal.

These, Sir, are the provisions of the Bill. I submit they are non-controversial and I believe and hope that the House will be able to accept my motion.

Sir, I move.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): Motion moved:

"That the Bill further to amend the Payment of Wages Act, 1936 be referred to a Select Committee consisting of Seth Yusuf Abdoola Haroon, Mr. Muhammad Hussain Chaudhury, Mr. Lalchand Navalrai, Mr. A. C. Inskip, Sir Vithal N. Chandavarkar, Mr. N. M. Joshi, Dr. Sir Rattanji Dinshaw Dalal, Mr. D. S. Joshi, and the mover, and that the number of members whose presence shall be necessary to constitute a meeting of the Committee shall be five."

Mr. N. M. Joshi (Nominated Non-Official): Sir, I move:

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon."

Sir, the Honourable Mover said that the amendments proposed by him to the Payment of Wages Act were only administrative amendments and were non-controversial. I do not understand the meaning of administrative difficulties or administrative amendments, nor do I understand the meaning of the phrase 'non-controversial'; because I feel myself that most of these amendments proposed are controversial, at least in the sense that I do not approve of them.

The Statement of Objects and Reasons indicates and 3 p. m. the speech of the Honourable the Labour Member also indicated that this legislation requires modification in order that it may be improved. I have no doubt, Sir, that it requires improvement, and I feel that the most important improvement which this piece of legislation requires is the extension of this legislation to the industries to which at present it does not apply. The present Act applies to what are known as 'factory industries' as well as to the Indian Railways, but the Act has given power to the Provincial Governments to extend its application to various industries like mines, plantations, transport industry (besides Railways), and several other industries. Unfortunately the Provincial Governments have not made use of the power given to them, and I therefore thought that the Honourable the Labour Member having waited for action on behalf of the Provincial Governments for six years would extend the application of the Act to the various industries to which the application was thought necessary by the Legislature when it passed the legislation. Unfortunately the Honourable the Labour Member did not do anything of the kind. He perhaps thought that that was not administrative reform; it was something else. That is not my explanation. My explanation for the Honourable Member not undertaking these important improvements in the legislation is that only recently the Honourable Member introduced and got committed.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir (Bombay City: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Mr. Deputy President. I rise to a point of order. We are discussing a Bill with a certain number of clauses which go to amend certain sections of an Act. Can any Honourable Member address the House on other sections of the Act which are not included in the Bill. He is speaking outside the scope of the Bill.

Dr. P. N. Banerjea (Calcutta Suburbs: Non-Muhammadan Urban): It is a general discussion.

Sir Cowasji Jehangir: The general discussion is confined to the Bill: it is not on the whole Act. If he wants to move other amendments to other sections of the Act he must bring forward a Bill of his own. This is not the place or the time. I contend, Mr. Deputy President, to discuss other sections of the Act which are not mentioned in the Bill. I consider his speech, therefore, to that extent is out of order.

Mr. N. C. Chunder (Calcutta: Non-Muhammadan Urban): Is it not open to a member to speak here and suggest that the Bill does not go far enough?

Mr. N. M. Joshi: Sir, the Statement of Objects and Reasons says:

"The Payment of Wages Act, 1936, when passed, was recognised to be an experimental piece of legislation. During its working a number of defects and difficulties have come to notice. While many of them can be left to be dealt with by comprehensive legislation at a later date, it is considered necessary to remove a few even during war time and the Bill seek to achieve this object."

The Honourable Member stated in his speech that he did not undertake the extensive reforms which are needed. I am only saying that the Honourable Member should have done that. I have not gone out of the scope of the Bill at all. I therefore appeal that I am quite in order in saying that the Honourable Member should have introduced a better measure.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): I think that Mr. Joshi is perfectly in order. He is criticising the speech of the Honourable Member as regards the scope of amendments. He suggests that there are many other amendments to make and I think that he is quite within his rights to say so.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: Sir, my explanation for the Honourable Member's failure to introduce improvements in the Bill is that recently the Honourable Member introduced a Bill which I consider to be quite progressive, though inadequate it was—the Bill regarding holidays with pay—and I expected that the Honourable Member will keep up his progressive spirit. But, Sir, I feel that the Honourable Member somehow was afraid that if he introduced progressive Bills one after another then the character of the Government of India for being a conservative Government may be lost, and he did not like to take discredit for that.

Dr. P. N. Banerjea: Discredit or credit?

Mr. N. M. Joshi: I thought that in his opinion it may be discredit. Therefore, I thought, Sir, that the Honourable Member having introduced one progressive measure wanted to introduce at least one which may be regarded as reactionary so that the Government of India's character may be maintained.

Mr. Sri Prakasa (Allahabad and Jhansi Divisions: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Which has no character!

Mr. N. M. Joshi: Sir, that is my explanation, but I shall not deal with that aspect any further.

As regard the amendments themselves, after having studied all the amendments I feel that most of them are of reactionary nature and most of them are not also such that the Honourable Members of the legislatures should not have taken a little more time to study them: I feel Sir, that the Honourable Member should have chosen, if he wanted any urgent reforms, some other improvements than those which he has introduced in this Bill.

Now, Sir, I am suggesting that the Bill be circulated because I had not heard at all about some of the amendments before. As a matter of fact, before I came to Delhi I had just read in a newspaper that the Honourable Member was going to introduce a Bill for amending Payment of Wages Act. I myself did not know what the amendments were and when the Bill was introduced I read those amendments and I thought that the Honourable Member should not have been in a hurry to introduce these amendments. There is no doubt that there are one or two amendments about which I had heard before although definite proposals of the Government of India were not known to me. I do feel that this Bill affects the working classes of this country adversely and there is absolutely no urgency for it. This Bill should be circulated. Let the working classes know what the Bill is. Let their opinions be elicited. Then certainly the Legislature is entitled to consider this Bill, although in my judgment it is a very reactionary Bill. So I feel, Sir, that the House will support the motion which I have made that the Bill be circulated.

Now I shall not be long in dealing with the various amendments which the Honourable Member has introduced.

First he took up the question of the new definition of wages. The Statement of Objects and Reasons and also the Honourable Member's speech indicated why he thought that the amendment was necessary. He stated that this Bill would permit, what I may call, payment, or what the Honourable Member stated payment according to the outturn, or payment by results. I do not think that the Honourable Member should have felt any difficulty about this. Payment by results or payment by outturn has been going on for six years after the Bill was passed and I do not think, Sir, any real difficulty has been experienced. Then the Statement of Objects and Reasons had stated something about profit-sharing and also dearness allowance. Personally, I feel that a real difficulty has not arisen about these matters at all and the Government of India has anticipated difficulties and are trying to take measures in anticipation. I feel there was no urgency from that point of view also. If the Bill is passed, it will certainly introduce a definition which will bring into being certain practices which the original Act was intended to prevent.

I shall give you an example. The original Act wanted to prevent payment of bonuses for regularity of attendance. There are practices where employers pay a certain bonus if a workman attends a certain number of days in a month, or if a workman's conduct is considered to be good by the employer he is given certain bonuses. The Legislature in 1936 deliberately framed the definition of wages in such a way that these practices should be stopped. The Legislature thought that by giving inducements for regularity or for good conduct, the workman himself may be demoralised and also the employer. Therefore they wanted to stop these practices. From the labour point of view there is another objection to these bonuses, namely, the labour strength and solidarity is weakened when half of them are paid some bonus and half of them are not paid.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): May I point out to the Honourable Mover of the motion that his motion must be given a date. This is obligatory under the rules.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: If it is obligatory then you may permit me to move:

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon by the 28th February, 1945."

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): It is in order now and you may proceed.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: This definition that the Honourable Member has introduced is changing the original intention of that Act. I personally believe, Sir, that the working classes in this country do not require special inducements of bonuses to make them good honest workman and therefore this practice of giving special inducements—what I may call in vulgar language bribes—should not be allowed, and the Legislature should never tolerate this practice because when we do our work as legislators we do not ask for special inducements in order to make us do our work quite honestly. We never ask for titles and honours for doing our work honestly. Similarly, a good workman asks nothing more but to be paid well and if he is paid well he is ready to give honest, good, hard work. Therefore, Sir, I feel that the change introduced by this measure is a wrong one and requires to be examined fully. That is why I say let the working classes know what change is going to be effected by this definition and thereafter we shall consider the amendment.

Then the Honourable Member has introduced certain amendments to section 5. One of the amendments provides that in respect of the smaller factories employing 1,000 persons or less and making payments before the seventh day of the month, they may be permitted to make payments up to the 10th. In England and in, what I may call, progressive countries wages are paid 2 or 3 days after they are due. In India we have given longer period. That period itself is a very long one and I thought when the Honourable Member for Labour was going to amend this Act he would amend it in a progressive way, i.e., if he found any difficulty in having two kinds of periods that is the ten, and seven days, he would fix the seven days as the period for making payment. But in order to keep up his character of being conservative or reactionary, he fixes the date of payment before ten days. I thought the amendment was really out of date and not in keeping with the progressive times.

Then the Honourable Member has made another change about removing the words "second working" day and replacing it with the word "third". He said there is difficulty regarding seasonal factories. Perhaps there may be some difficulty but it has not been experienced up to this time; it has not come to my notice at any rate. But if the Honourable Member felt that some amendment was necessary to enable payment to be made when a seasonal factory closes, or even a perennial factory closes, then Sir, he could make that as an exception. But he makes an amendment by which all employers can refuse to pay a workman who leaves his job till the third day. Now the original Act had done some injustice to the workman. When a man terminates his services, a good employer pays him on the date of his dismissal or discharge, because if the payment is not made on that day the workman has to wait one or two days for receiving payment for the services rendered and he loses wages for those days. If a man is dismissed and if he has to go to the mill to receive his payment the next day, he loses one day's wages. If he has to come there on the third day he loses three days' wages. I feel that if the Honourable Member wanted to provide for the difficulty which is felt in the case of seasonal factories and when a factory is closed, he could have removed that difficulty in a different way to what he is doing.

Then, Sir, the Honourable Member has now introduced some other change, permitting some deductions, and the Honourable Member has introduced a general clause by which Provincial Governments are given power to permit any deductions which in the opinion of the Provincial Government are beneficial to workmen. Now, Sir, the Honourable Member may have great confidence in the Provincial Governments and I too have some confidence in them, and I know some of them sometimes do some good service to labour. But, Sir, I am not prepared to give such a wide power to the Provincial Government. In his speech the Honourable the Labour Member said that these deductions may be voluntary but they may not be voluntary. In any case his Bill does not provide that these deductions which the Provincial Governments may sanction will be all voluntary. No, Sir, that is not provided in the Bill itself: that may be his intention. I do not approve of this clause giving general power to the Provincial Government to sanction deductions, which, in the opinion of the Provincial Government, are beneficial.

Then there is this question about stopping of increments and degrading workmen or asking them to take up less skilled work, so that their wages may be reduced. The Honourable Member quoted a judgment of the Sind Government that certain practices which prevailed on Indian Railways should be sanctioned by law. When the Payment of Wages Act was passed the Railway authorities, who are in the habit of imposing large fines upon their employees, found, that they could not exercise their authority uncontrolled. The Payment of Wages Act controlled their authority to a great extent and they wanted to gain that authority again by a different way. Instead of fining a workman, they began to degrade him, stop his promotion or put him on a less paid job. I feel that these practices were against the spirit of the original Payment of Wages Act and therefore the amendments suggested by the Honourable Member are not in the interests of the working classes. In any case before these amendments are considered by a Select Committee, it is absolutely necessary that the Railway workmen, who will be mostly the persons affected by this amendment, should know what is being done by the Legislature and therefore the Bill should be circulated.

Then, Sir, the Honourable Member has also introduced certain other amendments, one of them regarding permitting certain deductions for absence.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I have only given the definition of absence. I have not permitted deductions: they are already there.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: I know. The Honourable Member is a very simple man. He has changed the definition of absence with the result that certain deductions may be permitted. The original Act permits deductions for absence up to a certain point. The deductions may be made for the actual time lost or work not done. But if this Amendment is made, and if I understand it rightly, it is quite possible for an employer to impose double fine on the employee.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: That is not correct.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: All right. We shall discuss it at the proper time. What may happen is this: an employee is absent for an hour. He cannot turn out work for that hour and therefore if he is paid on piece rate his wages are automatically reduced. Besides receiving less wages, it is quite possible that if this Amendment is made the man's wages may be deducted still further.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: No, no.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: The Honourable Member says No. We shall discuss that question, which is one of interpretation.

There is another amendment which the Honourable Member has suggested and that amendment is to enable the workmen to be fined after the offending or wrong act was detected. This amendment he considers to be very reasonable but I am afraid this amendment is one which enables the employer to keep the sword of Damocles hanging over the head of workmen, for how long, I do not know. A workman does some offending act, a small thing like coming late by an hour or two on a particular day. The employer's register is maintained by a time-keeper or somebody else but the employer has not noticed that the man was absent for an hour or two and therefore has not deducted his wages. After two or three years the employer finds out that the man was absent and therefore must be fined. I am not suggesting that this is a very happy example: there may be some other examples. But the offending act may be committed to-day and the employer may fine the workman after five or ten years. He says there is no law of limitation. The employer may be negligent, careless and not vigilant and yet if he discovers the offence of the workman after five or ten years, the latter must be fined. Sir, the Legislature should not sanction such a thing. The Legislature was very reasonable when it passed the Act. What the Legislature said was that a man after doing something wrong should not be fined after sixty days. That is, the Legislature has given the employer sixty days' time to find out if his employee has done anything wrong. I think sixty days are quite enough for a vigilant employer to find out the mistake or wrong committed by his employee. I do not wish to go into all the amendments which the Honourable Member has suggested. I feel that the amendments which are proposed are such that they will adversely affect the interests of the working classes in this country. In any case they are not very urgent. I therefore feel that the motion which I have made may be approved by the Legislature and after the Bill is circulated and the opinions of the working classes are obtained, the Legislature may consider the further stages of this Bill. In any case the Legislature should not consider this motion for committing the Bill to a Select Committee till the opinions of the working classes are obtained on this Bill.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta) Amendment moved:

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon by the 28th February, 1945."

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: (Sind: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Sir, at the very outset I should submit that I felt restrained when the Honourable Member said that this Bill is non-controversial and only administratively it is being improved or corrected. I should think that this Bill is of the utmost importance. A Bill which affects the interests of labour cannot be said to be an unimportant measure. And I may say how many times labour itself has contested the principal provisions of the Act.

Mr. Sri Prakasa: Labour should produce better Bills.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: Several questions as to the interpretation of the original Act have come before for consideration. How then is this Bill non-controversial? The Honourable Member in the same breath said that such questions have arisen before and gone to the High Courts............

Mr. Sri Prakasa: He is in labour!

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: He himself has said that the Chief Court of Sind decided a case which, according to him, has necessitated his coming forward with this amendment. I do not agree with him in the interpretation he puts on that decision. He has set forth in the Notes on Clauses what that court has held. It has held that when there is any deduction or reduction in pay or any demotion it will be considered that there has been a deduction from their pay. I think my Honourable friend said that according to him the decision of the Chief Court was not sustainable by the decision itself. I may inform the Honourable Member that I had to do something with that case, in the sense of giving advice when the matter was going to court; and it was decided accordingly—as has been stated in the Notes—

"The Sind Chief Court held some time ago that the temporary reduction of an employee from one step in an incremental scale to another amounted to a deduction within the meaning of the Act. Doubts have also been expressed whether reductions, demotions, etc., by way of disciplinary measures amounted to 'deductions'."

This is what the Chief Court held, that they are deductions; and therefore it looks as if the Honourable Member is attempting to override that decision of the Chief Court. I do not think the Legislature will allow that without very serious consideration. I am for circulation of the Bill, because it is a question of legal interpretation, and therefore it should be circulated not only to labour but to their representatives and their advisers and advocates, so that the right interpretation may be arrived at. It will lessen the work of the Honourable Member in Select Committee. He will get the opinions of some of the High Courts which override this decision of the Chief Court, if he wants that the law should be changed. We must have opinions to guide us in the Select Committee. It would be wise of the Honourable Member to accept the amendment that has been put in.

It is not only the question of demotion or reduction that has to be considered under this Bill—there is also the question of absence and also what will be the effect if a man is wrongly discharged or dismissed. Such cases have also recently come up before the tribunals and they have held in the case of absence, that if the absence is wilful or not right, then the deduction can be made. But in the case of discharge or dismissal, they have said that that can only be made by the authority which has the power, because many times the order of discharge was made by an authority to whom the power had been wrongly delegated. How can it therefore be said that all these questions are unimportant or non-controversial? On the contrary, I think that considering this Bill along with several other Bills which are coming before the House, this is a more important one than the others and I hope the Honourable Member will send this for cirulation.

Another reason is this. No opportunity has been given to the representatives of labour or to labour itself to consider this Bill. This was introduced on the very first day we came here, and to-day it is sought to refer it to Select Committee. We have therefore got no opinions before us. We have got absolutely no opinion......

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: I am sorry to have included my Honourable friend in the Select Committee when he has no opinion.

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: This also will be one of the points I have raised. I am not going into the details of the clauses, but these are the more important things; and when the Honourable Member says that this is not a controversial Bill, I would leave the House to consider whether he is right. There are several other points which have to be considered before this Bill comes to the stage of going to the Select Committee. Mr. Joshi himself says he had not sufficient time to give his opinion on the Bill.

Mr. N. M. Joshi: We are here every day: where is the time to study it?

Mr. Lalchand Navalrai: Mr. Joshi is an expert in these matters and he has been working all along for labour and going into these questions for an age, and therefore his opinion that it should go for circulation should be accepted at once. He has experience and he has criticised some of the provisions; but I would also submit that this Bill should be circulated because there are certain things contained in it which must be decided once for all, if labour is to go on co-operating in a conciliatory manner: otherwise they will be disturbed. Labour is very powerful nowadays and we have to move cautiously; and when you make a law and subject them to certain conditions, you must proceed cautiously and not hustle the proceedings of this Bill. These are important questions. How many decisions have there been on the word "wages"? The lawyers know it—we know it; we know how much difference there has been between the interpretations of different High Courts. The definition of "wages" is being changed. Therefore, now that a new definition with additions and alterations is being made, that also should be considered by those concerned and those whom it affects.

Then, Sir, you are also changing the time when they should get the payment. They have always been crying that the payment should be made on the first day or the second day after it falls due. They were getting it in certain conditions within seven days. Now seven days are going to be increased to ten days. There will be a cry over that too. That also should be considered.

Then there is this question of demotion. When it suits the employer, he gives a man a higher type of work and when the employer does not require that higher type of work, you want to bring him down again to the old lesser pay. Is that fair? If you have selected the man for the higher type of work, you must keep him there, whether ...

question that you have got to consider.

I will not go into the details of the other provisions of the Bill which should, I think, go out for circulation. After circulation, we will sit together and then consider all the points of law as well as points of fact and come to a conclusion.

Mr. A. C. Inskip (United Provinces: European): As the Honourable Member for Labour has said, the object of this amendment Bill is to seek to clarify certain obscurities in the present Bill, particularly in regard to three items. It seeks to make it clear that wages have to be earned under the contract of employment, expressed or implied. It also seeks to make it clear that where there is an incremental scale, the increment may only be withheld as a disciplinary measure. It seeks further to lay down that a diminution of wages by reason of requirement to perform work involving a standard of skill or responsibility lower than that in the previous work is not a deduction.

The Bill itself makes clear that "the withholding of an increment is to be treated in several important respects as if it were a fine and will not be permitted except when the employee has committed an offence against discipline in accordance with an approved detailed list of offences hung up on the factory's notice board. The existing Payment of Wages Rules make the Chief Inspector of Factories the final arbiter of this list and in making his decision he will depend on the guidance he can get from the Act."

Taking all these definite pointers together, three facts emerge. Firstly, Government admits that the definition of wages—which is the most important and fundamental thing in the whole of this legislation—rests on the idea that there is always a contract of employment either express or implied. Wages mean the wages earned under the contract of employment.

Secondly, the legislation is intended to enforce payment of wages earned under the contract of employment without delay or deduction, but not to enforce anything beyond this. The clarification attempted by the present Bill apparently intends to make a clear distinction between payments that are wages and payments that are not.

If then what I have said correctly interpret Government's intentions then certain criticisms must be levelled against the new Bill.

Now, Sir, let me turn to the details of the proposed Bill, and in particular to Clause 2. In the new definition of "wages", the word "bonus" has been allowed to remain in. It seems to be quite-superfluous since the use of the phrase "additional remuneration for increased output" is sufficiently clear and inclusive as it stands or in any case could easily be made so. The question whether various kinds of bonus are or are not payable by employers as a matter of obligation has been one of the most fruitful sources of industrial disputes in recent years extending to an attempt to force the payment of annual bonuses at increased rates even when the payment of such bonus has clearly not been a term of the contract of employment and even when the rate of profits has not increased. In other words, such attempts have been directed towards the very object of trying to get ex gratia bonuses treated as a compulsory and unconditional part of earnings. Why then, in the process of clearing up the most important and most obscure definition in the present Act should this ill-fated word of many meanings be retained in the sense of a payment due to the worker under his contract of employment. It makes the meaning of the term "wages" depend on the exact meaning of the word "bonus", and it would be difficult to find a more unsuitable foundation on which to rest an Act, or one more certain to lead directly or indirectly to disputes. All this applies with the same force even to the wording as published in the Bill. However carefully the word "bonus" is qualified ... interpretation. B...

the draft has the further disadvantage that even a slight error in punctuation—such as the insertion of a comma after the word "bonus"—might make it much worse. It is noticeable also that in this clause a specific reference to the money being "earned under the terms of his contract of employment" appears in the second line, after which there is a whole list of particular cases hanging in the air with no further reference to the contract of employment at all. In particular, the word "payable" in the sixth line might mean almost anything. If "payable under the terms of the contract of employment" is meant, then there can be no objection to saying so and there is every objection to the matter being left in any doubt. As it stands, there is a probability of dispute about whether an amount is payable because it has been paid in the past or for any other such reason.

Then, Sir, the Amending Bill seeks to include Dearness Allowance in the definition of wages. This, I fear, will undoubtedly cause serious complications, particularly in concerns where a provident fund is in existence for the benefit of its employees. Unless many existing provident fund schemes are altered, the employee will now have to pay a percentage of allowance as well as of wages as his contribution; and the employer who has agreed to contribute a like amount to the fund will also be penalised.

Then, Sir, in regard to clause 4, paragraph 3, the expression "on an incremental basis" is extremely vague. Almost any employment where there is any prospect of financial improvement at all might be described as being on an incremental basis. The wording in the Statement of Objects and Reasons is not very precise, but that in the Bill itself is far vaguer still. The expression "for disciplinary reasons" also is not very clear. The most probable interpretation is open to criticism in principle. It seems from the wording that the intention is to make the withholding of an increment illegal except in cases of breach of discipline. If so, this amounts to forcing the employer to fulfil a most important part of the contract of employment on one side while leaving it open to the employee to fail to fulfil the corresponding obligation on the other side. The employee is not paid his wages solely in consideration of his preserving discipline. He is mainly paid for the use of his skill. This is the main reason why different wage rates and incremental rates exist at all, and this fact incidentally is recognised in section 4, paragraph 4 of the Bill. The main reason and justification for a scale of increments is to make the rate of pay match the value of work when the value increases with increasing skill resulting from experience. But although the value of the work usually increases with the lapse of time—and time scales exist in order to deal with this normal state of affairs—, skill does not always increase in this way. A man may be lazy, he may be unwilling to take increased responsibility, he may be suffering from disability or he may simply be below average, or the process at which he is working may be changed and he may be unable to respond to the changed conditions. None of these cases amounts to a clear breach of discipline. Is it right, then, to compel the employer, if he has a time-scale for the average cases, to raise the wage rates of less valuable workers unconditionally on the same scale? What would be the position if an employer wished to revise the scale of wages for a particular occupation? As long as the scale is unaltered, the individual employee is protected under the Bill from having his increment stopped or his wages reduced. Would the alteration of the scale itself in a downward direction be legal or would it be regarded as a wholesale breach of the provisions of this clause?

Then, Sir, turning to clause 4, paragraph 4: it will be seen that this clause clearly deals with the case where an employer requires an employee to accept a lower paid job, but it does not cover failure on the part of the employee to improve or maintain the standard of his work in line with the remuneration laid down in the wage scale relating to his job.

In regard to clause 4, paragraph 5, this clause stipulates that the provisions of section 8, paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 of the existing Act shall apply to the withholding of increments, etc., which again apparently confirms that the employer would be compelled to pay those of his workmen who are on time rates without reference to their individual skill or assiduity. Such one-sided protection seems calculated to put a premium on idleness and mediocrity and to hinder the employer in rewarding his employees according to their merits.

The points of criticism I have put forward represent the views of the Group to which I belong and I trust they will receive the attention of the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill and the Select Committee, for there would appear to be a tendency to think exclusively about protecting workmen from unscrupulous employers and to forget that if this protection is given unconditionally, it leaves the employer and the public unprotected against the slack and inefficient workman.

Sir, I support the original motion.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: Mr. Deputy President, if it can help to curtail the debate, I should like to state at this stage that I am prepared to accept the amendment.

Professor N. G. Ranga (Guntur-cum-Nellore: Non-Muhammadan Rural): Sir, I am glad the Honourable Member in charge of the Bill has agreed to accept the motion for circulation. Therefore, I do not wish to say much at this stage on the merits of the Bill except that in my view it is worse than a pill of poison. To take a pill of poison, the patient has to be coaxed to open his mouth and swallow it, but this Bill is a sort of an injection which is given while the patient is asleep by a very dreadful process. The patient does not know that poison is being injected into him; nevertheless, it has its deadly effect.

Sir, there does not seem to be any particular hurry for a Bill like this. I do not know why the Honourable Member in charge has lent his ear to those reactionaries who press on him the need for a Bill like this, as if the Bill is not bad enough. My Honourable friend the spokesman for the European Group has got up with his attempt to make it even more reactionary and more troublesome and unacceptable to the workers. Has it been found in practice during these days of crisis that production has been materially affected anywhere because these amendments have not been made to the original Act? We have not had any report to that effect. It cannot even be pleaded that the workers, because they are going on working from year to year in these days of war and are becoming senior workmen, are becoming less and less efficient and that the employers are unable to demote them, reduce their wages and even cut down their earnings and in that way cut down their labour bill. That, too, has not been established. On the other hand, what is happening is that more and more workers are being employed and the workers who have been there before the beginning of the war have been found to become more and more skilled and yielding also bigger and bigger profits for the employers and also the Government, which reaps its benefit through the Excess Profits Tax. My Honourable friend the spokesman of the European Group was talking about the failure of worker's skill to rise in consonance with the rise of pay. I wish he would turn his attention to what is happening in the Government of India and to its employees and also to many of his own compatriots in this country who are employed in various plantations and other European Companies. Is he sure that as they become more and more senior in their service, their skill is also increasing? Is he sure that as they are being assured of their annual increments of Rs. 50 or Rs. 100, their efficiency is also increasing? In fact, it is the other way about. But is there any provision on the Statute-book of this Government which provides for a corresponding reduction in the salaries, emoluments and allowances that are being given to many of these Government officials and European officials in this country who are employed either by Government or by commercial concerns, so that they may be made to realise that they are becoming eligible to superannuation, whereas they are only made eligible to-day to higher and higher increments as years go by.

Sir, there are a number of provisions to which I take very strong objection but I speak with trepidation in regard to the details because the Honourable Member has not vouchsafed to us the views of the organised labour in this country. I am glad he has agreed to our suggestion that it should be sent into circulation and I hope when the Bill comes back after circulation it may be possible for most of us who are laymen in regard to the trade union matters to form a judgment in regard to the merits of these different sections than is possible at present. Therefore, I support the motion for circulation.

The Honourable Dr. B. R. Ambedkar: Sir, as I have said, I am prepared to accept the motion made by my friend Mr. Joshi. In that event, it is unnecessary for me to make any speech. All that I would like to say is this that I cannot agree that any strong case has been made out for circulation. As I said just now, I made myself very clear that the amendments which I have put forth were administrative in the sense that they will remove the difficulties that exist in the administration of the law. I have not seen that any of the amendments which are contained in this Bill were, if I may say so, beyond the capacity and the intelligence and the knowledge and the information of Honourable Members of the Select Committee. I, Sir, was surprised to see that my Honourable friend Mr. Joshi did not do enough credit to himself. If I circulate the Bill, and I am asked to circulate the Bill in order to canvass the opinion of the working classes, I wonder whether who would be the advocate that would be employed by the working classes except Mr. Joshi himself or my Honourable friend Mr. Lalchand Navalrai. It was in order to get the benefit of their representative character, their knowledge and information that I have taken care to include them in the Select Committee. However, Sir, if they feel that they cannot repose confidence in their ability to deal with what I regard as non-controversial points, I am quite prepared to fall in line with them and accept the amendment.

4 P.M.

Mr. Deputy President (Mr. Akhil Chandra Datta): The question is:

"That the Bill be circulated for the purpose of eliciting public opinion thereon by the 28th February 1945."

The motion was adopted.

THE following Bill on the Indian Rice Committee, is published for the information of persons or public bodies likely to be affected thereby. Any person or public body desiring to submit any opinion on the Bill is invited to address the Under-Secretary to Government, Punjab, Development Department, before the 31st January 1945. STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

In view of the importance of rice as an agricultural crop and as the principal food of a very large proportion of the population of the country, it is considered necessary to put rice research, development and technology on a more permanent basis than it stands at present. Accordingly it is proposed to set up an Indian Central Rice Committee on lines similar to those of the Indian Central Cotton Committee, the Indian Lac Cess Committee, etc. The Committee which will have on it representatives of all the important interests concerned will devote exclusive attention to problems connected with the improvement and development of the cultivation and marketing of paddy, the production and marketing of rice, and rice products and all matters incidental thereto. Since it is desirable that the Committee should have an independent source of income, it is proposed that as in the case of other similar Committees, e.g., the Indian Central Cotton Committee, the Indian Lac Cess Committee, etc., funds should be provided by the levy of a small excise duty not exceeding a rate of annas 6 per ton on all paddy which is hulled in power mills.

17. Licensing of banking companies incorporated outside British India or United Kingdom.—(1) No company incorporated elsewhere than in British India or the United Kingdom which is not at the commencement of this Act carrying on the business of banking in British India shall commence such business, or open any branch or office for the purpose of such business, in British India without previously obtaining a licence from the Reserve Bank.

(2) Before granting any such licence, the Reserve Bank may require to be satisfied that—

(a) the company is incorporated in a country, the Government or law of which does not discriminate in any way against banking companies registered in British India, and

(b) the company complies with all the provisions of this Act applicable to banking companies incorporated outside British India.

(3) The Reserve Bank may cancel any licence granted under this section on the breach of any condition required to be satisfied before the licence was granted, or if the company ceases to carry on the business of banking in British India or goes into liquidation.

18. Maintenance of a percentage of assets.—(1) After the expiry of two years from the commencement of this Act, every banking company shall maintain in cash, gold or unencumbered approved securities valued at a price not exceeding the current market price an amount which shall not at the close of business on any day be less than twenty-five per cent. of the total of its time and demand liabilities in British India.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section liabilities shall not include the paid-up capital or the reserve or any credit balance in the profit and loss account of the company or the amount of any loan taken from the Reserve Bank.

(2) In computing the amount for the purposes of sub-section (1), the deposit required under sub-section (2) of section 11 to be made with the Reserve Bank by a banking company incorporated elsewhere than in British India or the United Kingdom and the balance required under section 42 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (II of 1934), to be maintained with the Reserve Bank by a scheduled bank shall be deemed to be cash maintained.

(3) For the purpose of securing compliance with the provisions of this section, every banking company shall not later than two working days after the last date to which it relates, furnish to the Reserve Bank in the prescribed form and manner a weekly return showing the liabilities of the banking company at the close of each day of the week to which it relates.

19. Assets in British India.—(1) At the close of the last working day of each calendar year the assets in British India of every banking company shall not be less than seventy-five per cent. of its time and demand liabilities in British India.

(2) Every banking company shall before the 1st day of February in each year submit to the Reserve Bank a return in the prescribed form and manner of such assets and liabilities as at the close of the last working day of the previous calendar year.

(3) For the purposes of this section assets in British India shall be deemed to include such promissory notes, bills of exchange and securities as the Reserve Bank is under the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (II of 1934), empowered to purchase, discount or make advances against, and export bills drawn in India and expressed in such currencies as the Reserve Bank may from time to time approve in this behalf.

20. Monthly returns and information regarding advances and investments.—(1) Every banking company shall before the close of the month succeeding that to which it relates submit to the Reserve Bank a return in the prescribed form and manner showing its assets and liabilities in British India as at the close of business on the last Friday of every month or if that Friday is a public holiday under the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (XVI of 1881), at the close of business on the preceding working day.

(2) The Reserve Bank may call for information every half-year regarding the classification of advances and investments of banking companies in respect of industry, commerce and agriculture.

(3) The Reserve Bank may publish the information so obtained from the returns under this section in such consolidated form as it may think necessary.

21. Return of unclaimed deposits.—Every banking company shall, within thirty days after the close of each calendar year, submit a return in the prescribed form and manner to the Reserve Bank as at the end of such calendar year of all accounts in British India which have not been operated upon for ten years, giving particulars of the deposits standing to the credit of each such account:

Provided that in the case of moneys deposited for a fixed period the said term of ten years shall be reckoned from the date of the expiry of such fixed period.

22. Accounts and Balance-sheet.—(1) At the expiration of each calendar year every banking company incorporated in British India, in respect of all business transacted by it, and every banking company incorporated outside British India which carries on business in British India, in respect of all business transacted through its branches in British India, shall prepare with reference to that year a balance-sheet and profit and loss account as on the last working day of the year in the Forms set out in the Schedule or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

(2) The balance-sheet and profit and loss account shall be signed—

(a) in the case of a banking company incorporated in British India, by the manager or the principal officer of the company and where there are more than three directors of the company, by at least three of those directors, or where there are not more than three directors, by all the directors, and

(b) in the case of a banking company incorporated outside British India, by the manager or agent of the principal office of the company in British India.

(3) Notwithstanding that the balance-sheet of a banking company is under sub-section (1) required to be prepared in a form other than the form marked F in the Third Schedule to the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the provisions of that Act relating to the balance-sheet and profit and loss account of a company shall, in so far as they are not inconsistent with this Act, apply to the balance-sheet or profit and loss account, as the case may be, of a banking company.

23. Audit.—(1) The balance-sheet and profit and loss account prepared in accordance with section 22 shall be audited—

(a) in the case of a banking company incorporated in British India, by an auditor holding a certificate under section 144 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), entitling him to act as an auditor of companies, and

(b) in the case of a banking company incorporated outside British India, either by such an auditor as aforesaid, or by a person duly qualified to be an auditor under the law of the country in which the company is incorporated.

(2) The auditor shall have the powers of, exercise the functions vested in, and discharge the duties and be subject to the liabilities and penalties imposed on, auditors of companies by section 145 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913).

24. Submission of returns.—The accounts and balance sheet referred to in section 22 duly audited shall be printed, and three copies thereof shall be furnished as returns to the Reserve Bank within three months from the end of the period to which they refer.

Provided that the Central Government may in any case extend the said period of three months for the furnishing of such returns by a further period not exceeding three months.

25. Exemption from certain provisions of Act VII of 1943.—Where a banking company in any year furnishes its balance sheet and accounts in accordance with the provisions of section 24, it may at the same time send to the registrar three copies of such balance sheet and accounts, and where such copies are so sent, it shall not be necessary for the company to file copies of the balance sheet and accounts with the registrar as required by sub-section (1) of section 134 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), and such copies so sent shall be chargeable with the same fees and shall be dealt with in all respects as if they were filed in accordance with that section.

26. Display of audited balance-sheet by companies incorporated outside British India.—Every banking company incorporated outside British India which carries on business in British India shall, not later than the first Monday in August of any year in which it carries on business in British India, display in a conspicuous place in its principal office and in every branch office in British India a copy of its last audited balance-sheet and profit and loss account, and shall keep the copy so displayed until replaced by a copy of the subsequent balance-sheet and profit and loss account.

27. Accounting provisions of this Act not retrospective.—Nothing in his Act shall apply to the preparation of accounts by a banking company and the audit and submission thereof in respect of any accounting year which has expired prior to the commencement of this Act, and notwithstanding the other provisions of this Act, such accounts shall be prepared, audited and submitted in accordance with the law in force immediately before the commencement of this Act.

28. Inspection.—(1) Without prejudice to the provisions contained in sections 137, 138, and 139 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Central Government may, if it has any reason to believe that the interests of the depositors of a banking company are in danger or that a banking company is unable to meet its obligations or has made default in complying with any of the provisions of this Act or that an offence under this Act has been or is likely to be committed by a banking company or any officer of a banking company or that it is otherwise desirable or necessary, direct the Reserve Bank to inspect the banking company, its books and accounts and make a report thereon to the Central Government.

(2) On receipt of a report under sub-section (1), the Central Government, if it is satisfied from the report that the affairs of a banking company are being conducted to the detriment of the interest of its depositors, may—

(a) by order in writing prohibit the banking company from receiving fresh deposits, or

(b) if the banking company is a scheduled bank, notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (6) of section 42 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (II of 1934), by notification in the official Gazette, direct the exclusion of the banking company from the Second Schedule to that Act, or

(c) direct the Reserve Bank to apply for the winding up of the banking company, or

(d) act in respect of the banking company under more than one of the foregoing clauses:

Provided that the Central Government may cancel or modify any order passed under this sub-section upon such terms and conditions as it may think fit to impose.

PART III.

SUSPENSION OF BUSINESS AND WINDING UP OF BANKING COMPANIES

30. Suspension of business.—(1) The Court may on the application of a banking company which is temporarily unable to meet its obligations make an order staying the commencement or continuance of all actions and proceedings against the company for a fixed period of time on such terms and conditions as it shall think fit and proper, and may from time to time extend the period up to a total period not exceeding three months in all.

(2) No such application shall be maintainable unless it is accompanied by a report of the Reserve Bank indicating that in the opinion of the Reserve Bank the banking company will be able to pay its debts if the application is granted:

Provided that the Court may, for sufficient reasons, grant relief under this section even if the application is not accompanied by such report.

31. Winding up by Court.—(1) Without prejudice to the provisions contained in section 162 or section 271 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), and without prejudice to its powers under section 30, the Court shall order the winding up of a banking company if it is unable to pay its debts, and the Court shall also order the winding up of a banking company if the Reserve Bank, which is hereby authorised so to do, applies in this behalf to the Court on either of the following grounds, namely:—

(a) that it appears from the results of an inspection made under section 28 that the affairs of the company are being conducted to the detriment of the interest of its depositors, or

(b) that the company has failed to comply with the provisions of section 18 or section 19, and with a notice served upon it under sub-section (2) of section 29.

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions contained in section 163 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), a banking company shall be deemed to be unable to pay its debts if it has refused to meet any lawful demand for payment made at any of its offices or branches within two working days if such demand is made at a place where there is an office, branch or agency of the Reserve Bank, or within four working days if such demand is made elsewhere.

(3) A copy of every application by the Reserve Bank under sub section (1) shall be sent by the Reserve Bank to the registrar.

32. Reserve Bank to be official liquidator.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 175 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Reserve Bank shall be appointed as the official liquidator in relation to the winding up by Court of a banking company.

33. Stay of proceedings.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 177B of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Court shall not make any order staying the proceedings in relation to the winding up of a banking company, unless the Court is satisfied that an arrangement has been made whereby the company can pay its depositors in full as their claims accrue.

34. Report of liquidator.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 177B of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), where a winding up order is made in respect of a banking company, the official liquidator shall submit a preliminary report to the Court within two months from the date of the order giving the information required by that section so far as it is available to him, to enable the Court to order the payment of a preliminary dividend if sufficient assets are available.

35. Power to dispense with meetings of creditors, etc.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in sections 178A and 183 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Court may in the proceedings for winding up a banking company dispense with any meetings of creditors or contributories or with the appointment of a committee of inspection if it considers that no object will be secured thereby sufficient to justify the delay and expense.

36. Booked depositors' credits to be deemed proved.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 191 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Court shall deem that the amounts shown in the books of a banking company as standing to the credit of depositors are proved without requiring further proof from the depositors concerned unless the official liquidator shows that there is reason for doubting any particular entry.

37. Restriction on voluntary winding up.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 203 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), no banking company may be voluntarily wound up unless the Reserve Bank certifies in writing that the company is able to pay in full all its debts to its creditors as they accrue, and without prejudice to the provisions contained in sections 218 and 220 of that Act, the Court shall, on the application of the Reserve Bank, order the winding up of the company by the Court if at any stage during the voluntary winding up proceedings the company is not able to meet such debts as they accrue.

PART IV

MISCELLANEOUS.

38. Power of Central Government to make rules.—(1) The Central Government may, after consultation with the Reserve Bank, make rules consistent with this Act to provide for all matters for which provision is necessary or expedient for the purpose of giving effect to the provisions of this Act.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for the details to be included in the returns required by this Act and the manner in which such returns shall be submitted.

(3) All rules made under this section shall be published in the official Gazette and shall be subject to the condition of previous publication, and the date to be specified under clause (3) of section 23 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (X of 1897), shall not be less than six months from the date on which the draft of the proposed rules was published.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The provisions of law relating to banking companies at present form a subsidiary portion of the general law applicable to companies and are contained in Part XA of the Indian Companies Act, 1913. These provisions, which were first introduced in 1936 and which have undergone two subsequent modifications, have proved inadequate and difficult to administer. Moreover while the primary objective of Companies Law is to safeguard the interest of the stock-holder, that of banking legislation should be the protection of the interests of the depositor. It has therefore been felt for some time that separate legislation was necessary for the regulation of banking in India. This need has become the more insistent on account of the considerable development that has taken place in recent years in banking, especially the rapid growth of banking resources and of the number of banks and branches. The enactment of a separate and more detailed Act has in consequence now become imperative. Regard must also be had to the fact that the banking system is likely in the post-war period to be more vulnerable by reason of the great expansion, both quantitatively and relatively, that has taken place in demand deposits, as compared with time deposits, during the war years.

2. The provisions of Part XA of the Indian Companies Act, which part will now be repealed, are incorporated in the Bill with certain modifications and the addition of several new provisions designed to safeguard the interests of depositors and to ensure the development of banking in India on sound lines. The main features of the Bill are as follows:—

(i) A simple definition of banking with the object of limiting the scope of the legislation to institutions in which the funds are deposited primarily to ensure their safety and ready withdrawability;

(ii) Prescription of minimum capital standards;

(iii) Prohibition of trading with a view to eliminating non-banking risks;

(iv) Inclusion in the scope of the legislation of banks incorporated or registered outside British India;

(v) Provision of an expeditious procedure for liquidation;

(vi) Inspection of the books and accounts of a bank by the Reserve Bank when necessary;

(vii) Empowering the Central Government to take action against banks conducting their affairs in a manner detrimental to the interests of the depositors;

(viii) Prescription of a special form of balance sheet and conferring of powers on the Reserve Bank to call for periodical returns.

NOTES ON CLAUSES
THE BANKING COMPANIES BILL

Clause 1 (1).—The Bill is confined to companies carrying on the business of banking. It would be impracticable to include within its scope all institutions and individuals dealing in credit in view of the complex credit structure of the country and the fact that money-lending is an item of provincial legislation.

Clause 2.—Except in matters pertaining to banking it is desirable that the Indian Companies Act should continue to be applicable to banking companies.

Clause 3.—It is unnecessary to include co-operative banks, which are governed by special legislation.

Clause 4.—The object underlying this clause is that in cases of genuine emergency, e.g., a general run on banks or a run on some bank in a particular area, Government should have power to suspend the operation of the Act after considering the recommendations of the Reserve Bank. The suspension of clause 18 will, for instance, enable the Reserve Bank to give an advance to tide over a banking crisis against liquid assets maintained by banks under that clause.

Clause 5 (b).—The present definition of banking in Section 277F of the Indian Companies Act gives rise to administrative difficulties, particularly in respect of the words "principal business" in determining whether a company comes within its scope. The new definition is intended to connect banking definitely with the acceptance of demand deposits and to confine the scope of the legislation to those institutions in which funds are deposited primarily to ensure their safety and ready withdrawability. It has the further advantage that it automatically excludes non-banking companies which accept only time deposits or borrow money at call.

Clause 6.—Based on Sections 277F and 277G of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Clause 7.—Sub-clause (1) is considered necessary for the protection of the interests of the depositors while sub-clause (2) merely follows the existing proviso to Section 277F of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Clause 8.—This is intended to prohibit a bank from engaging directly or indirectly in trading activities and undertaking trading risks in addition to ordinary banking risks. Certain banks have been found to engage in such activities under the guise of agency business.

Clause 9.—It is not intended to prohibit a bank from conducting the management of industrial concerns which it may have acquired in satisfaction of its claims or from taking any other steps necessary in the interests of the bank. The period prescribed should be sufficient for the disposal of such non-banking assets.

Clause 10.—This embodies the new Section 277HH added to the Indian Companies Act, 1913, by the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1944, supplemented by a provision disallowing the employment of managing agents under some other name, or on a salary disproportionate to the resources of the bank.

Clause 11.—One of the chief defects of the Indian banking system is the weak and vulnerable capital structure of the vast majority of banks, as evidenced by the fact that during the years 1934-43, no less than 669 banking companies were liquidated or wound up, most of which possessed very poor capital resources. Even the minimum of Rs. 50,000 prescribed by the Indian Companies Act for banks incorporated after the 15th January 1937 is low as compared with many other countries, notwithstanding the lower standard of wealth in India. Another defect in the present banking system is the undue concentration of banking offices in a few cities and towns whereas a very large number of small towns have no banking facilities. Small banks with low capital have also a tendency to open branches in large towns which have already sufficient banking facilities. Clause 11 (1) seeks to remedy these defects.

In the case of banking companies incorporated outside British India, the provisions as regards capital do not afford any real protection; hence the safeguarding provisions of sub-clause (2).

Sub-clause (3) follows the recently enacted Section 277 I (2) of the Indian Companies Act.

Clause 12.—This reproduces Section 277J of the Indian C[...]

Clause 13.—This embodies sub-sections (1) and (2) of Section 277K of the Indian Companies Act. Sub-section (3) of that section has been omitted in view of clause 18 of the Bill which provides for a general reserve.

Clause 14.—This follows Section 277L(1) of the Indian Companies Act except that the prescribed returns are to be filled with the Reserve Bank and not the Registrar.

Sub section (2) of Section 277L, which defines the terms " demand liabilities " and " time liabilities ", has been removed to clause 5 of the Bill.

Clause 15.—The clause is more or less identical with Section 277M of the Indian Companies Act. The words " issued and subscribed share capital " however have been substituted for the words " issued share capital " as the latter term is somewhat confusing and is used indiscriminately.

Clause 16.—Past failures of several banks in India have been due mostly to indiscriminate advances to directors or their concerns. An absolute and unqualified ban on such transactions would, however, result in depriving the banks of the advantage of having on their directorate important and experienced industrial magnates. A check is therefore prescribed on advances to directors and their concerns.

Clause 17.—When the Reserve Bank's original " Proposals for an Indian Bank Act " were circulated by Government in 1940, suggestions were received that a system of licensing foreign banks doing business in British India should be introduced. The Banking Enquiry Committee had also recommended that banks should be required to take out licenses from the Reserve Bank, such licenses being granted freely to the existing banks. Clause 17 provides for the licensing of foreign banks intending to open branches in India on the basis of reciprocal treatment of Indian nationals and companies in the foreign countries concerned.

Clause 18.—This clause is an attempt to prescribe by law what has already been recognised as sound banking practice, viz., that a bank should keep a reserve of cash and liquid assets to meet its demand liabilities. One of the worst defects of Indian banking is the propensity of the smaller banks to overtrade at the expense of liquidity and it seems best to insist on all banks maintaining a reasonably large proportion of their cover in the form of cash or trustee securities as defined in the Indian Trusts Act, excluding immovable property. The proportion of 25 per cent is in accordance with the actual practice followed by smaller banks.

Clause 19.—The failure of a bank incorporated in an Indian State, which had the bulk of its deposits from British India but the greater part of its assets in Indian States, has brought out the necessity of protecting the interests of British Indian depositors by requiring such banks to maintain a reasonable proportion of their British India liability in the form of assets in British India. Export bills are included in such assets with a view to helping Indian exports.

Clause 20.—The existing return under Section 42 of the Reserve Bank Act applies only to scheduled banks and also omits important details like investments. For an adequate control of banking development, it is necessary that the Reserve Bank should have a full picture of the banking situation of the country through periodical returns of assets and liabilities.

Clause 21.—The intention in prescribing an annual return of deposits which remain unclaimed for 10 years is to enable the Reserve Bank to have the necessary data for consideration of the question whether deposits remaining unclaimed for a prescribed period should be transferred to Government, making it responsible for meeting any claim which may be established in future. Similar returns are called for, in the banking legislation of Canada, and it is provided there that after the lapse of a certain period of years the deposits will be paid over to Government.

Clause 22.—The Form F laid down by the Companies Act is meant for companies in general and is not suited to the special requirements of banking companies. Many of the smaller banks publish their balance sheets in different forms and there is no uniformity of presentation. The banks also close their books on different dates making it difficult to have a picture of the banking situation of the country as on a particular date. The Central Banking Inquiry Committee, which considered this question in detail, recommended a separate form for banking companies. As regards banks incorporated outside British India, there is no provision in the Companies Act for the publication of separate balance-sheets of their Indian business. In Forms A and B of the Schedule to the Banking Companies Bill, an attempt has been made to provide a form of balance sheet and profit and loss account specially suitable for banking companies.

Clause 23.—This provides for the audit of the statements prescribed under clause 22.

Clause 24.—At present, some of the banks publish their balance-sheets after a considerable period from the date to which they relate so that the position of the banks remains unknown for an unduly long period. The clause remedies this defect.

Clause 25.—This follows Section 17 of the Insurance Act, 1938.

Clause 26.—There is no provision in the Indian Companies Act for the publication of balance-sheets by banking companies incorporated outside British India similar to that contained in Section 136 applicable to companies incorporated in British India. This clause provides fo[r] uniformity of treatment as regards the publication o[f] balance-sheets.

Clause 27.—This provides for the period of transitio[n] and follows Section 17A of the Insurance Act, 1938.

Clause 28.—The opinions received on the Reserv[e] Bank's " Proposals for an Indian Bank Act " circulate[d] in 1940 revealed that public opinion was generally i[n] favour of the inspection of banks by Government or th[e] Reserve Bank. In view of this and in the light of th[e] experience gained by the Reserve Bank in connection wit[h] the inspection of banks for the purposes of Section 42(... of the Reserve Bank Act, and in view of possible post-wa[r] developments, provisions have been made for the inspe[c]tion, in certain circumstances, of a bank's books by th[e] Reserve Bank at the instance of the Central Governmen[t]. A regular system of inspection of all banks does not see[m] practicable and provision has therefore been made f[or] inspection only where necessary in the interests of dep[o]sitors. Sub-clause (1) generally follows the lines [of] Section 33 (1) of the Insurance Act, and sub-clauses (and (3) enumerate the various corrective measures whi[ch] the Central Government may take.

Clause 30.—This clause is a modification of Secti[on] 277N of the Indian Companies Act, the period of mo[ra]torium having been limited to three months. It is t[he] intention that the report under sub-clause (2) should [be] submitted by the Reserve Bank.

Clause 31.—The provisions of the Indian Compan[ies] Act in respect of liquidation do not seem to be suita[ble] for banking companies. A bank's business is conducted [on] an over-the-counter basis and it is important that curr[ent] accounts should be withdrawable at any time and dra[fts] etc., should be honoured on presentation; otherwise gr[eat] business dislocation is likely to result. A provision h[as], therefore, been made under this clause for the wind[ing] up of a banking company if it refuses to meet a law[ful] demand for payment at one of its offices or branches wi[th]in two working days, if such demand is made at a pl[ace] where there is an office or branch or agency of the Rese[rve] Bank, or within four working days, elsewhere. [The] clause also authorises the Reserve Bank to apply for [the] liquidation of a banking company if it appears from [the] results of an inspection made under clause 28 that [its] affairs are being conducted to the detriment of [the] interests of its depositors.

lause 32.—Experience has shown that the cost of ation proceedings under the Indian Companies Act h. It has, therefore, been provided in this clause he Reserve Bank should be empowered to carry out ations so that unnecessary expense and delay in ation proceedings may be avoided, and that the may be realised as speedily and cheaply as possible interests of the creditors.

lause 33.—This limits the power of the Court to stay dings to cases in which it is satisfied that the de- rs can be paid in full.

lause 34.—The period prescribed under Section of the Indian Companies Act for the submission of iminary report by the official liquidator is too long case of a banking company and the clause is in- l to remedy this defect.

lause 35.—In the case of a banking company, ty in liquidation is essential if the assets are not sold or to be dissipated. The provisions for calling ngs of creditors to discuss arrangements or to appoint an advisory committee to work with the official liquidator should, therefore, be rescinded in the case of banking companies unless the Court considers that this should be done.

Clause 36.—This simplifies the formalities for depositors proving their debts.

Clause 37.—It has been found that banking companies in a shaky condition take advantage of the voluntary winding up proceedings under the cover of a merger, or manipulate such proceedings to the disadvantage of the depositors who are a scattered body and are unlikely to take concerted action. The clause is intended to prevent such abuses.

Clause 38.—This empowers the Central Government to make regulations under the Act after consultation with the Reserve Bank.

Clause 39.—This is a consequential amendment.

Clause 40.—Repeals.

Provided that in the case of a banking company to which only sub-clause (c) of clause (ii) is applicable the minimum amount of paid-up capital and reserve for the purposes of this sub-section shall be one lakh of rupees:

Provided further that no banking company shall be required to have paid-up capital and reserve exceeding twenty lakhs of rupees.

(2) A banking company incorporated elsewhere than in British India or the United Kingdom shall be deemed to have complied with the provisions of sub-section (1) only if it keeps deposited with the Reserve Bank an amount not less than the minimum amount of paid-up capital and reserve required in its case under that sub-section either in cash or in unencumbered approved securities or partly in cash and partly in such securities.

(3) No banking company, whether incorporated in or outside British India, if incorporated on or after the 15th day of January 1937, shall after the 30th day of June 1946 carry on business in British India unless it satisfies the following conditions, namely:—

(a) that the subscribed capital of the company is not less than half the authorised capital, and the paid-up capital is not less than half the subscribed capital, and

(b) that the capital of the company consists of ordinary shares only, or ordinary shares and such preference shares as may have been issued before the 1st day of July 1944 only, and

(c) that the voting rights of all shareholders are strictly proportionate to the contribution made by the shareholder, whether a preference shareholder or an ordinary shareholder, to the paid-up capital of the company.

12. Prohibition of charge on unpaid capital.—No banking company shall create any charge upon any unpaid capital of the company, and any such charge shall be invalid.

13. Reserve fund.—Every banking company not being a scheduled bank shall maintain a reserve fund, and shall, out of the declared profits of each year and before any dividend is declared, transfer a sum equivalent to not less than twenty per cent of such profits to the reserve fund until the amount of the said fund is equal to the paid-up capital.

14. Cash reserve.—Every banking company not being a scheduled bank shall maintain by way of cash reserve in cash a sum equivalent to at least one and a half per cent. of its time liabilities and five per cent. of its demand liabilities and shall file with the Reserve Bank before the tenth day of every month three copies of a statement of the amount so held on the Friday of each week of the preceding month with particulars of its time and demand liabilities on each such Friday.

15. Restriction on nature of subsidiary companies.—(1) A banking company shall not form any subsidiary company except a subsidiary company formed for one or more of the following purposes, namely the undertaking and executing of trusts, the undertaking of the administration of estates as executor, trustee or otherwise, or such other purposes set out in section 6 as are incidental to the business of banking.

(2) Save as provided in sub-section (1), a banking company shall not hold shares in any company whether as pledges, mortgagee or absolute owner of an amount exceeding forty per cent. of the issued and subscribed share capital of that company:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to shares held by a banking company before the 15th day of January 1937.

16. Restrictions on loans and advances.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 54A of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), no banking company shall make any loans or advances on the security of its own shares, or grant unsecured loans or advances to its directors or to firms or companies in which it or any of its directors is interested as partner, director or managing agent.

(2) Before granting any such licence, the Reserve Bank may require to be satisfied that—

(a) the company is incorporated in a country, the Government or law of which does not discriminate in any way against banking companies registered in British India, and

(b) the company complies with all the provisions of this Act applicable to banking companies incorporated outside British India.

(3) The Reserve Bank may cancel any licence granted under this section on the breach of any condition required to be satisfied before the licence was granted, or if the company ceases to carry on the business of banking in British India or goes into liquidation.

18. Maintenance of a percentage of assets.—(1) After the expiry of two years from the commencement of this Act, every banking company shall maintain in cash, gold or unencumbered approved securities valued at a price not exceeding the current market price an amount which shall not at the close of business on any day be less than twenty-five per cent. of the total of its time and demand liabilities in British India.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section liabilities shall not include the paid-up capital or the reserve or any credit balance in the profit and loss account of the company or the amount of any loan taken from the Reserve Bank.

(2) In computing the amount for the purposes of sub-section (1), the deposit required under sub-section (2) of section 11 to be made with the Reserve Bank by a banking company incorporated elsewhere than in British India or the United Kingdom and the balance required under section 42 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (II of 1934), to be maintained with the Reserve Bank by a scheduled bank shall be deemed to be cash maintained.

(3) For the purpose of securing compliance with the provisions of this section, every banking company shall, not later than two working days after the last date to which it relates, furnish to the Reserve Bank in the prescribed form and manner a weekly return showing the liabilities of the banking company at the close of each day of the week to which it relates.

19. Assets in British India.—(1) At the close of the last working day of each calendar year the assets in British India of every banking company shall not be less than seventy-five per cent. of its time and demand liabilities in British India.

(2) Every banking company shall before the 1st day of February in each year submit to the Reserve Bank a return in the prescribed form and manner of such assets and liabilities as at the close of the last working day of the previous calendar year.

(3) For the purposes of this section assets in British [India] shall be deemed to include such promissory notes, [bills] of exchange and securities as the Reserve Bank is [under] the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (II of 1934), [empo]wered to purchase, discount or make advances [again]st, and export bills drawn in India and expressed [in su]ch currencies as the Reserve Bank may from time to [time] approve in this behalf.

20. Monthly returns and information regarding [adva]nces and investments.—(1) Every banking company [shall] before the close of the month succeeding that to [whic]h it relates submit to the Reserve Bank a return in [the p]rescribed form and manner showing its assets and [liabi]lities in British India as at the close of business on [the l]ast Friday of every month or if that Friday is a [publi]c holiday under the Negotiable Instruments Act, [1881] (XVI of 1881), at the close of business on the [prece]ding working day.

(2) The Reserve Bank may call for information every [half-]year regarding the classification of advances and [inves]tments of banking companies in respect of industry, [comm]erce and agriculture.

(3) The Reserve Bank may publish the information [ob]tained from the returns under this section in such [consol]idat ed form as it may think necessary.

21. Provided that in the case of moneys deposited for a [fixed] period the said term of ten years shall be reckoned [from] the date of the expiry of such fixed period.

(b) in the case of a banking company incorporated [outsi]de British India, by the manager or agent of the [princi]pal office of the company in British India.

(3) Notwithstanding that the balance-sheet of a [banki]ng company is under sub-section (1) required to be [prepa]red in a form other than the form marked F in the [Third] Schedule to the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII [of 191]3), the provisions of that Act relating to the [balan]ce-sheet and profit and loss account of a company [shall,] in so far as they are not inconsistent with this Act, [apply] to the balance-sheet or profit and loss account, as [the ca]se may be, of a banking company.

[2]3. Audit.—(1) The balance-sheet and profit and [loss a]ccount prepared in accordance with section 22 shall [be aud]ited—

(a) in the case of a banking company incorporated in [Britis]h India, by an auditor holding a certificate under [section] 144 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of [1913)] entitling him to act as an auditor of companies,

(b) in the case of a banking company incorporated outside British India, either by such an auditor as aforesaid, or by a person duly qualified to be an auditor under the law of the country in which the company is incorporated.

(2) The auditor shall have the powers of, exercise the functions vested in, and discharge the duties and be subject to the liabilities and penalties imposed on, auditors of companies by section 145 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913).

24. Submission of returns.—The accounts and balance sheet referred to in section 22 duly audited shall be printed, and three copies thereof shall be furnished as returns to the Reserve Bank within three months from the end of the period to which they refer.

Provided that the Central Government may in any case extend the said period of three months for the furnishing of such returns by a further period not exceeding three months.

25. Exemption from certain provisions of Act VII of 1943.—Where a banking company in any year furnishes its balance sheet and accounts in accordance with the provisions of section 24, it may at the same time send to the registrar three copies of such balance sheet and accounts, and where such copies are so sent, it shall not be necessary for the company to file copies of the balance sheet and accounts with the registrar as required by subsection (1) of section 134 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, (VII of 1913), and such copies so sent shall be chargeable with the same fees and shall be dealt with in all respects as if they were filed in accordance with that section.

26. Display of audited balance-sheet by companies incorporated outside British India.—Every banking company incorporated outside British India which carries on business in British India shall, not later than the first Monday in August of any year in which it carries on business in British India, display in a conspicuous place in its principal office and in every branch office in British India a copy of its last audited balance-sheet and profit and loss account, and shall keep the copy so displayed until replaced by a copy of the subsequent balance-sheet and profit and loss account.

27. Accounting provisions of this Act not retrospective.—Nothing in his Act shall apply to the preparation of accounts by a banking company and the audit and submission thereof in respect of any accounting year which has expired prior to the commencement of this Act, and notwithstanding the other provisions of this Act, such accounts shall be prepared, audited and submitted in accordance with the law in force immediately before the commencement of this Act.

28. Inspection.—(1) Without prejudice to the provisions contained in sections 137, 138, and 139 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Central Government may, if it has any reason to believe that the interests of the depositors of a banking company are in danger or that a banking company is unable to meet its obligations or has made default in complying with any of the provisions of this Act or that an offence under this Act has been or is likely to be committed by a banking company or any officer of a banking company or that it is otherwise desirable or necessary, direct the Reserve Bank to inspect the banking company, its books and accounts and make a report thereon to the Central Government.

(2) On receipt of a report under sub-section (1), the Central Government, if it is satisfied from the report that the affairs of a banking company are being conducted to the detriment of the interest of its depositors, may—

(a) by order in writing prohibit the banking company from receiving fresh deposits, or

(b) if the banking company is a scheduled bank, notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (6) of section 42 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (II of 1934), by notification in the official Gazette, direct the exclusion of the banking company from the Second Schedule to that Act, or

(c) direct the Reserve Bank to apply for the winding up of the banking company, or

(d) act in respect of the banking company under more than one of the foregoing clauses:

Provided that the Central Government may cancel or modify any order passed under this sub-section upon such terms and conditions as it may think fit to impose.

(3) The Central Government may, after giving reasonable notice to the banking company, publish the report submitted by the Reserve Bank or such portion of it as may appear necessary to the Central Government.

29. Penalties.—(1) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this Part, every director or other officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of sub-section (1), if any banking company fails to comply with the provisions of section 18 or section 19, the Reserve Bank shall by notice in writing make a demand to the banking company to comply with the said provisions within thirty days from the receipt of the notice, and if the banking company fails so to do, the Reserve Bank shall apply to the Court for the winding up of the banking company.

PART III.

SUSPENSION OF BUSINESS AND WINDING UP OF BANKING COMPANIES

30. Suspension of business.—(1) The Court may on the application of a banking company which is temporarily unable to meet its obligations make an order staying the commencement or continuance of all actions and proceedings against the company for a fixed period of time on such terms and conditions as it shall think fit and proper, and may from time to time extend the period up to a total period not exceeding three months in all.

(2) No such application shall be maintainable unless it is accompanied by a report of the Reserve Bank indicating that in the opinion of the Reserve Bank the banking company will be able to pay its debts if the application is granted:

Provided that the Court may, for sufficient reasons, grant relief under this section even if the application is not accompanied by such report.

31. Winding up by Court.—(1) Without prejudices to the provisions contained in section 162 or section 271 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), and without prejudice to its powers under section 30, the Court shall order the winding up of a banking company if it is unable to pay its debts, and the Court shall also order the winding up of a banking company if the Reserve Bank, which is hereby authorised so to do, applies in this behalf to the Court on either of the following grounds, namely:—

(a) that it appears from the results of an inspection made under section 28 that the affairs of the company are being conducted to the detriment of the interest of its depositors, or

(b) that the company has failed to comply with the provisions of section 18 or section 19, and with a notice served upon it under sub-section (2) of section 29.

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions contained in section 163 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), a banking company shall be deemed to be unable to pay its debts if it has refused to meet any lawful demand for payment made at any of its offices or branches within two working days if such demand is made at a place where there is an office, branch or agency of the Reserve Bank, or within four working days if such demand is made elsewhere.

(3) A copy of every application by the Reserve Bank under sub-section (1) shall be sent by the Reserve Bank to the registrar.

32. Reserve Bank to be official liquidator.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 175 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Reserve Bank shall be appointed as the official liquidator in relation to the winding up by Court of a banking company.

33. Stay of proceedings.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 173 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Court shall not make any order staying the proceedings in relation to the winding up of a banking company, unless the Court is satisfied that an arrangement has been made whereby the company can pay its depositors in full as their claims accrue.

34. Report of liquidator.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 177B of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), where a winding up order is made in respect of a banking company, the official liquidator shall submit a preliminary report to the Court within two months from the date of the order giving the information required by that section so far as it is available to him, to enable the Court to order the payment of a preliminary dividend if sufficient assets are available.

35. Power to dispense with meetings of creditors, etc.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in sections 178A and 183 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Court may in the proceedings for winding up a banking company dispense with any meetings of creditors or contributories or with the appointment of a committee of inspection if it considers that no object will be secured thereby sufficient to justify the delay and expense.

36. Booked depositors' credits to be deemed proved.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 191 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Court shall deem that the amounts shown in the books of a banking company as standing to the credit of depositors are proved without requiring further proof from the depositors concerned unless the official liqoidator shows that there is reason for doubting any particular entry.

37. Restriction on voluntary winding up.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 203 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), no banking company may be voluntarily wound up unless the Reserve Bank certifies in writing that the company is able to pay in full all its debts to its creditors as they accrue, and without prejudice to the provisions contained in sections 218 and 220 of that Act, the Court shall, on the application of the Reserve Bank, order the winding up of the company by the Court if at any stage during the voluntary winding up proceedings the company is not able to meet such debts as they accrue.

PART IV

MISCELLANEOUS.

38. Power of Central Government to make rules.—

(1) The Central Government may, after consultation with the Reserve Bank, make rules consistent with this Act to provide for all matters for which provision is necessary or expedient for the purpose of giving effect to the provisions of this Act.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for the details to be included in the returns required by this Act and the manner in which such returns shall be submitted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The provisions of law relating to banking companies ...present form a subsidiary portion of the general law ...plicable to companies and are contained in Part XA of ...e Indian Companies Act, 1913. These provisions, ...hich were first introduced in 1936 and which have ...dergone two subsequent modifications, have proved in...equate and difficult to administer. Moreover while the ...imary objective of Companies Law is to safeguard the ...terest of the stock-holder, that of banking legislation ...ould be the protection of the interests of the depositor. ...has therefore been felt for some time that separate ...gislation was necessary for the regulation of banking ...India. This need has become the more insistent on ...count of the considerable development that has taken ...ce in recent years in banking, especially the rapid ...owth of banking resources and of the number of banks ...d branches. The enactment of a separate and more ...tailed Act has in consequence now become imperative. ...gard must also be had to the fact that the banking ...tem is likely in the post-war period to be more vulner...le by reason of the great expansion, both quantitatively ...d relatively, that has taken place in demand deposits, ...compared with time deposits, during the war years.

2. The provisions of Part XA of the Indian Com...nies Act, which part will now be repealed, are incor...rated in the Bill with certain modifications and the ...dition of several new provisions designed to safeguard ...interests of depositors and to ensure the development ...banking in India on sound lines. The main features ...the Bill are as follows :—

(i) A simple definition of banking with the object ...limiting the scope of the legislation to institutions in ...the funds are deposited primarily to ensure their ...y and ready withdrawability;

(ii) Prescription of minimum capital standards;

(iii) Prohibition of trading with a view to eliminat... non-banking risks;

(iv) Inclusion in the scope of the legislation of banks ...porated or registered outside British India;

(v) Provision of an expeditious procedure for ...dation;

(vi) Inspection of the books and accounts of a bank ...the Reserve Bank when necessary;

(vii) Empowering the Central Government to take ...on against banks conducting their affairs in a manner ...imental to the interests of the depositors;

(viii) Prescription of a special form of balance sheet and conferring of powers on the Reserve Bank to call for periodical returns.

NEW DELHI;
The 14th November 1944.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT

A

to consolidate and amend the law relating to banking companies; and Annexure.

The Governor-General has been pleased to give the previous sanction required by section 153 of the Government of India Act, 1935, to the introduction in the Legislative Assembly of this Bill.

MD. RAFI,
Secretary of the Legislative Assembly.

(The Honourable Sir Jeremy Raisman.)

THE BANKING COMPANIES BILL

(Published in the Gazette of India, Part V, dated the 18th November, 1944, and in the Punjab Gazette. Part IV, dated the 26th January 1945).

NOTES ON CLAUSES

Clause 1 (1).—The Bill is confined to companies carrying on the business of banking. It would be impracticable to include within its scope all institutions and individuals dealing in credit in view of the complex credit structure of the country and the fact that money-lending is an item of provincial legislation.

Clause 2.—Except in matters pertaining to banking it is desirable that the Indian Companies Act should continue to be applicable to banking companies.

Clause 3.—It is unnecessary to include co-operative banks, which are governed by special legislation.

Clause 4.—The object underlying this clause is that in cases of genuine emergency, e.g., a general run on all banks or a run on some bank in a particular area, Government should have power to suspend the operation of the Act after considering the recommendations of the Reserve Bank. The suspension of clause 18 will, for instance, enable the Reserve Bank to give an advance to tide over a banking crisis against liquid assets maintained by banks under that clause.

Clause 5 (b).—The present definition of banking in Section 277F of the Indian Companies Act gives rise to administrative difficulties, particularly in respect of the words " principal business " in determining whether a company comes within its scope. The new definition is intended to connect banking definitely with the acceptance of demand deposits and to confine the scope of the legislation to those institutions in which funds are deposited primarily to ensure their safety and ready withdrawability. It has the further advantage that it automatically excludes non-banking companies which accept only time deposits or borrow money at call.

Clause 6.—Based on Sections 277F and 277G(2) of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Clause 7.—Sub-clause (1) is considered necessary for the protection of the interests of the depositors while sub-clause (2) merely follows the existing proviso to Section 277F of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Clause 8.—This is intended to prohibit a bank from engaging directly or indirectly in trading activities and undertaking trading risks in addition to ordinary banking risks. Certain banks have been found to engage in such activities under the guise of agency business.

Clause 9.—It is not intended to prohibit a bank from conducting the management of industrial concerns which it may have acquired in satisfaction of its claims or from taking any other steps necessary in the interests of the bank. The period prescribed should be sufficient for the disposal of such non-banking assets.

Clause 10.—This embodies the new Section 277HH added to the Indian Companies Act, 1913, by the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1944, supplemented by a provision disallowing the employment of managing agents under some other name, or on a salary disproportionate to the resources of the bank.

Clause 11.—One of the chief defects of the Indian banking system is the weak and vulnerable capital structure of the vast majority of banks, as evidenced by the fact that during the years 1934-43, no less than 669 banking companies were liquidated or wound up, most of which possessed very poor capital resources. Even the minimum of Rs. 50,000 prescribed by the Indian Companies Act for banks incorporated after the 15th January 1937 is low as compared with many other countries, notwithstanding the lower standard of wealth in India. Another defect in the present banking system is the undue concentration of banking offices in a few cities and towns whereas a very large number of small towns have no banking facilities. Small banks with low capital have also a tendency to open branches in larger towns which have already sufficient banking facilities. Clause 11 (1) seeks to remedy these defects.

In the case of banking companies incorporated outside British India, the provisions as regards capital do not afford any real protection; hence the safeguarding provisions of sub-clause (2).

Sub-clause (3) follows the recently enacted Section 277 I (2) of the Indian Companies Act.

Clause 12.—This reproduces Section 277J of the Indian Companies Act.

Clause 13.—This embodies sub-sections (1) and (2) of Section 277K of the Indian Companies Act. Sub-section (3) of that section has been omitted in view of clause 18 of the Bill which provides for a general reserve.

Clause 14.—This follows Section 277L(1) of the Indian Companies Act except that the prescribed returns are to be filled with the Reserve Bank and not the Registrar.

Sub section (2) of Section 277L, which defines the terms " demand liabilities " and " time liabilities ", has been removed to clause 5 of the Bill.

Clause 15.—The clause is more or less identical with Section 277M of the Indian Companies Act. The words " issued and subscribed share capital " however have been substituted for the words " issued share capital " as the latter term is somewhat confusing and is used indiscriminately.

Clause 16.—Past failures of several banks in India have been due mostly to indiscriminate advances to directors or their concerns. An absolute and unqualified ban on such transactions would, however, result in depriving the banks of the advantage of having on their directorate important and experienced industrial magnates. A check is therefore prescribed on advances to directors and their concerns.

Clause 17.—When the Reserve Bank's original " Proposals for an Indian Bank Act " were circulated by Government in 1940, suggestions were received that a system of licensing foreign banks doing business in British India should be introduced. The Banking Enquiry Committee had also recommended that banks should be required to take out licenses from the Reserve Bank, such licenses being granted freely to the existing banks. Clause 17 provides for the licensing of foreign banks intending to open branches in India on the basis of reciprocal treatment of Indian nationals and companies in the foreign countries concerned.

Clause 18.—This clause is an attempt to prescribe by law what has already been recognised as sound banking practice, viz., that a bank should keep a reserve of cash and liquid assets to meet its demand liabilities. One of the worst defects of Indian banking is the propensity of the smaller banks to overtrade at the expense of liquidity and it seems best to insist on all banks maintaining a reasonably large proportion of their cover in the form of cash or trustee securities as defined in the Indian Trusts Act, excluding immovable property. The proportion of 25 per cent is in accordance with the actual practice followed by smaller banks.

Clause 19.—The failure of a bank incorporated in an Indian State, which had the bulk of its deposits from British India but the greater part of its assets in Indian States, has brought out the necessity of protecting the interests of British Indian depositors by requiring such banks to maintain a reasonable proportion of their British India liability in the form of assets in British India. Export bills are included in such assets with a view to helping Indian exports.

Clause 20.—The existing return under Section 42 of the Reserve Bank Act applies only to scheduled banks and also omits important details like investments. For an adequate control of banking development, it is necessary that the Reserve Bank should have a full picture of the banking situation of the country through periodical returns of assets and liabilities.

Clause 21.—The intention in prescribing an annual return of deposits which remain unclaimed for 10 years is to enable the Reserve Bank to have the necessary data for consideration of the question whether deposits remaining unclaimed for a prescribed period should be transferred to Government, making it responsible for meeting any claim which may be established in future. Similar returns are called for, in the banking legislation of Canada, and it is provided there that after the lapse of a certain period of years the deposits will be paid over to Government.

Clause 22.—The Form F laid down by the Companies Act is meant for companies in general and is not suited to the special requirements of banking companies. Many of the smaller banks publish their balance sheets in different forms and there is no uniformity of presentation. The banks also close their books on different dates making it difficult to have a picture of the banking situation of the country as on a particular date. The Central Banking Inquiry Committee, which considered this question in detail, recommended a separate form for banking companies. As regards banks incorporated outside British India, there is no provision in the Companies Act for the publication of separate balance-sheets of their Indian business. In Forms A and B of the Schedule to the Banking Companies Bill, an attempt has been made to provide a form of balance sheet and profit and loss account specially suitable for banking companies.

Clause 23.—This provides for the audit of the state-

PART IV

[Third publication].

The following Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to banking companies introduced in the Central Legislative Assembly is published for the information of those likely to be affected thereby. Any person or public body desiring to submit an opinion on the Bill should do so through the Secretary to Government, Punjab, Electricity & Industries Departments only and that any opinion thereon which is submitted direct to the Central Legislative Department or to any other Department of the Government of India will not be accepted.

A.

to consolidate and amend the law relating to banking companies.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to banking companies;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I

PRELIMINARY.

1. Short title, extent and commencement.—(1) This Act may be called the Banking Companies Act, clause (b), clause (bb), clause (c) or clause (d) of section 20 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 (II of 1882);

(b) "banking" means the accepting of deposits repayable on demand;

(c) "banking company" means any company which may be wound up under the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913) and which transacts the business of banking in British India;

(d) "Court" means the Court having jurisdiction under the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913);

(e) "demand liabilities" means liabilities which must be met on demand, and "time liabilities" means liabilities which are not demand liabilities;

(f) "managing agent" means a person, firm or company entitled to the management of the whole affairs of a company by virtue of an agreement with the company, and under the control and direction of the directors except to the extent, if any, otherwise provided for in the agreement, and includes any person, firm or company occupying such position by whatever name called;

Explanation.—If a person occupying the position of managing agent calls himself manager or managing

Clause 24.—At present, some of the banks publish their balance-sheets after a considerable period from the date to which they relate so that the position of the banks remains unknown for an unduly long period. The clause remedies this defect.

Clause 25.—This follows Section 17 of the Insurance Act, 1938.

Clause 26.—There is no provision in the Indian Companies Act for the publication of balance-sheets by banking companies incorporated outside British India similar to that contained in Section 136 applicable to companies incorporated in British India. This clause provides for uniformity of treatment as regards the publication of balance-sheets.

Clause 27.—This provides for the period of transition and follows Section 17A of the Insurance Act, 1938.

Clause 28.—The opinions received on the Reserve Bank's "Proposals for an Indian Bank Act" circulated in 1940 revealed that public opinion was generally in favour of the inspection of banks by Government or the Reserve Bank. In view of this and in the light of the experience gained by the Reserve Bank in connection with the inspection of banks for the purposes of Section 42(6) of the Reserve Bank Act, and in view of possible post-war developments, provisions have been made for the inspection, in certain circumstances, of a bank's books by the Reserve Bank at the instance of the Central Government. A regular system of inspection of all banks does not seem practicable and provision has therefore been made for inspection only where necessary in the interests of depositors. Sub-clause (1) generally follows the lines of section 33 (1) of the Insurance Act, and sub-clauses (2) and (3) enumerate the various corrective measures which the Central Government may take.

Clause 30.—This clause is a modification of Section 277N of the Indian Companies Act, the period of moratorium having been limited to three months. It is the intention that the report under sub-clause (2) should be submitted by the Reserve Bank.

Clause 31.—The provisions of the Indian Companies Act in respect of liquidation do not seem to be suitable for banking companies. A bank's business is conducted on an over-the-counter basis and it is important that current accounts should be withdrawable at any time and drafts etc., should be honoured on presentation; otherwise great business dislocation is likely to result. A provision has, therefore, been made under this clause for the winding up of a banking company if it refuses to meet a lawful demand for payment at one of its offices or branches within two working days, if such demand is made at a place where there is an office or branch or agency of the Reserve Bank, or within four working days, elsewhere. The clause also authorises the Reserve Bank to apply for the liquidation of a banking company if it appears from the results of an inspection made under clause 28 that its affairs are being conducted to the detriment of the interests of its depositors.

Clause 32.—Experience has shown that the cost of liquidation proceedings under the Indian Companies Act is high. It has, therefore, been provided in this clause that the Reserve Bank should be empowered to carry out liquidations so that unnecessary expense and delay in liquidation proceedings may be avoided, and that the assets may be realised as speedily and cheaply as possible in the interests of the creditors.

Clause 33.—This limits the power of the Court to stay proceedings to cases in which it is satisfied that the depositors can be paid in full.

Clause 5 (b).—The present definition of banking in Section 277F of the Indian Companies Act gives rise to administrative difficulties, particularly in respect of the words " principal business " in determining whether a company comes within its scope. The new definition is intended to connect banking definitely with the acceptance of demand deposits and to confine the scope of the legislation to those institutions in which funds are deposited primarily to ensure their safety and ready withdrawability. It has the further advantage that it automatically excludes non-banking companies which accept only time deposits or borrow money at call.

Clause 6.—Based on Sections 277F and 277G(2) of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Clause 7.—Sub-clause (1) is considered necessary for the protection of the interests of the depositors while sub-clause (2) merely follows the existing proviso to Section 277F of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Clause 8.—This is intended to prohibit a bank from engaging directly or indirectly in trading activities and undertaking trading risks in addition to ordinary banking risks. Certain banks have been found to engage in such activities under the guise of agency business.

Clause 9.—It is not intended to prohibit a bank from conducting the management of industrial concerns which it may have acquired in satisfaction of its claims or from taking any other steps necessary in the interests of the bank. The period prescribed should be sufficient for the disposal of such non-banking assets.

Clause 10.—This embodies the new Section 277HH added to the Indian Companies Act, 1913, by the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1944, supplemented by a provision disallowing the employment of managing agents under some other name, or on a salary disproportionate to the resources of the bank.

Clause 16.—Past failures of several banks in India have been due mostly to indiscriminate advances to directors or their concerns. An absolute and unqualified ban on such transactions would, however, result in depriving the banks of the advantage of having on their directorate important and experienced industrial magnates. A check is therefore prescribed on advances to directors and their concerns.

Clause 17.—When the Reserve Bank's original " Proposals for an Indian Bank Act " were circulated by Government in 1940, suggestions were received that a system of licensing foreign banks doing business in British India should be introduced. The Banking Enquiry Committee had also recommended that banks should be required to take out licenses from the Reserve Bank, such licenses being granted freely to the existing banks. Clause 17 provides for the licensing of foreign banks intending to open branches in India on the basis of reciprocal treatment of Indian nationals and companies in the foreign countries concerned.

Clause 18.—This clause is an attempt to prescribe by law what has already been recognised as sound banking practice, viz., that a bank should keep a reserve of cash and liquid assets to meet its demand liabilities. One of the worst defects of Indian banking is the propensity of the smaller banks to overtrade at the expense of liquidity and it seems best to insist on all banks maintaining a reasonably large proportion of their cover in the form of cash or trustee securities as defined in the Indian Trusts Act, excluding immovable property. The proportion of 25 per cent is in accordance with the actual practice followed by smaller banks.

Clause 19.—The failure of a bank incorporated in an Indian State, which had the bulk of its deposits from British India but the greater part of its Clause 34.—The period prescribed under Section 177B of the Indian Companies Act for the submission of a preliminary report by the official liquidator is too long in the case of a banking company and the clause is intended to remedy this defect.

Clause 35.—In the case of a banking company, rapidity in liquidation is essential if the assets are not to grow cold or to be dissipated. The provisions for calling meetings of creditors to discuss arrangements or to appoint an advisory committee to work with the official liquidator should, therefore, be rescinded in the case of banking companies unless the Court considers that this should be done.

Clause 36.—This simplifies the formalities for depositors proving their debts.

Clause 37.—It has been found that banking companies in a shaky condition take advantage of the voluntary winding up proceedings under the cover of a merger, or manipulate such proceedings to the disadvantage of the depositors who are a scattered body and are unlikely to take concerted action. The clause is intended to prevent such abuses.

Clause 38.—This empowers the Central Government to make regulations under the Act after consultation with the Reserve Bank.

Clause 39.—This is a consequential amendment.

Clause 40.—Repeals.

Explanation.—The expression "goods" in this section does not include stock and shares.

9. Provided that the Reserve Bank may in any particular case extend the said period by such period not exceeding three years as it thinks fit where it is satisfied that such extension would be in the interest of the depositors of the banking company.

10. Prohibition of employment of managing agents and restrictions on certain forms of employment.—No banking company, whether incorporated in or outside British India, which carries on business in British India, shall after the 30th day of June 1946 employ, or be managed by, a managing agent, or any person whose remuneration or part of whose remuneration takes the form of commission or of a share in the profits of the company, or whose remuneration is on a scale disproportionate according to the normal standards prevailing in banking business to the resources of the company, or any person having a contract with the company for its management for a period exceeding five years at any one time:

Provided that the said period of five years shall, in relation to contracts subsisting on the 1st day of July 1944, be computed from that date:

Provided further that any contract with the company for its management may be renewed or extended for a further period not exceeding five years at a time if and so often as the directors think fit.

(a) five lakhs of rupees in respect of a place of business at Bombay or Calcutta, plus

(c) ten thousand rupees in respect of each place of business elsewhere:

Provided further that no banking company shall be required to have paid-up capital and reserve exceeding twenty lakhs of rupees.

(2) A banking company incorporated elsewhere than in British India or the United Kingdom shall be deemed to have complied with the provisions of sub-section (1) only if it keeps deposited with the Reserve Bank an amount not less than the minimum amount of paid-up capital and reserve required in its case under that sub-section either in cash or in unencumbered approved securities or partly in cash and partly in such securities.

(3) No banking company, whether incorporated in or outside British India, if incorporated on or after the ...th day of January 1937, shall after the 30th day of June 1946 carry on business in British India unless it satisfies the following conditions, namely:—

(a) that the subscribed capital of the company is not less than half the authorised capital, and the paid-up capital is not less than half the subscribed capital, and

(b) that the capital of the company consists of ordinary shares only, or ordinary shares and such preference shares as may have been issued before the 1st day of July 1944 only, and

(c) that the voting rights of all shareholders are strictly proportionate to the contribution made by the shareholder, whether a preference shareholder or an ordinary shareholder, to the paid-up capital of the company.

12. Prohibition of charge on unpaid capital.—No banking company shall create any charge upon any unpaid capital of the company, and any such charge shall be invalid.

13. Reserve fund.—Every banking company not being a scheduled bank shall maintain a reserve fund, and shall, out of the declared profits of each year and before any dividend is declared, transfer a sum equivalent to not less than twenty per cent of such profits to the reserve fund until the amount of the said fund is equal to the paid-up capital.

14. Cash reserve.—Every banking company not being a scheduled bank shall maintain by way of cash reserve in cash a sum equivalent to at least one and a half per cent. of its time liabilities and five per cent. of its demand liabilities and shall file with the Reserve Bank before the tenth day of every month three copies of a statement of the amount so held on the Friday of each week of the preceding month with particulars of its time and demand liabilities on each such Friday.

15. Restriction on nature of subsidiary companies.—A banking company shall not form any subsidiary company except a subsidiary company formed for one or more of the following purposes, namely the undertaking and executing of trusts, the undertaking of the administration of estates as executor, trustee or otherwise, or such other purposes set out in section 6 as are incidental to the business of banking.

(2) Save as provided in sub-section (1), a banking company shall not hold shares in any company whether as pledges, mortgagee or absolute owner of an amount exceeding forty per cent. of the issued and subscribed share capital of that company:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to shares held by a banking company before the 15th day of January 1937.

16. Restrictions on loans and advances.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 54A of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), no banking company shall make any loans or advances on the security of its own shares, or grant unsecured loans or advances to its directors or to firms or companies in which it or any of its directors is interested as partner, director or managing agent.

17. Licensing of banking companies incorporated outside British India or United Kingdom.—(1) No company incorporated elsewhere than in British India or the United Kingdom which is not at the commencement of this Act carrying on the business of banking in British India shall commence such business, or open any branch or office for the purpose of such business, in British India without previously obtaining a licence from the Reserve Bank.

(2) Before granting any such licence, the Reserve Bank may require to be satisfied that—

(a) the company is incorporated in a country, the Government or law of which does not discriminate in any way against banking companies registered in British India, and

(b) the company complies with all the provisions of this Act applicable to banking companies incorporated outside British India.

(3) The Reserve Bank may cancel any licence granted under this section on the breach of any condition required to be satisfied before the licence was granted, or if the company ceases to carry on the business of banking in British India or goes into liquidation.

18. Maintenance of a percentage of assets.—(1) After the expiry of two years from the commencement of this Act, every banking company shall maintain in cash, gold or unencumbered approved securities valued at a price not exceeding the current market price an amount which shall not at the close of business on any day be less than twenty-five per cent. of the total of its time and demand liabilities in British India.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section liabilities shall not include the paid-up capital or the reserve or any credit balance in the profit and loss account of the company or the amount of any loan taken from the Reserve Bank.

(2) In computing the amount for the purposes of sub-section (1), the deposit required under sub-section (2) of section 11 to be made with the Reserve Bank by a banking company incorporated elsewhere than in British India or the United Kingdom and the balance required under section 42 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (II of 1934), to be maintained with the Reserve Bank by a scheduled bank shall be deemed to be cash maintained.

(3) For the purpose of securing compliance with the provisions of this section, every banking company shall, not later than two working days after the last date to which it relates, furnish to the Reserve Bank in the prescribed form and manner a weekly return showing the liabilities of the banking company at the close of each day of the week to which it relates.

19. Assets in British India.—(1) At the close of the last working day of each calendar year the assets in British India of every banking company shall not be less than seventy-five per cent. of its time and demand liabilities in British India.

(2) Every banking company shall before the 1st day of February in each year submit to the Reserve Bank a return in the prescribed form and manner of such assets and liabilities as at the close of the last working day of the previous calendar year.

(3) For the purposes of this section assets in British India shall be deemed to include such promissory notes, bills of exchange and securities as the Reserve Bank is under the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (II of 1934), empowered to purchase, discount or make advances against, and export bills drawn in India and expressed in such currencies as the Reserve Bank may from time to time approve in this behalf.

20. Monthly returns and information regarding advances and investments.—(1) Every banking company shall before the close of the month succeeding that to which it relates submit to the Reserve Bank a return in the prescribed form and manner showing its assets and liabilities in British India as at the close of business on the last Friday of every month or if that Friday is a public holiday under the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (XVI of 1881), at the close of business on the preceding working day.

(2) The Reserve Bank may call for information every half-year regarding the classification of advances and investments of banking companies in respect of industry, commerce and agriculture.

(3) The Reserve Bank may publish the information so obtained from the returns under this section in such consolidated form as it may think necessary.

21. Return of unclaimed deposits.—Every banking company shall, within thirty days after the close of each calendar year, submit a return in the prescribed form and manner to the Reserve Bank as at the end of such calendar year of all accounts in British India which have not been operated upon for ten years, giving particulars of the deposits standing to the credit of each such account:

Provided that in the case of moneys deposited for a fixed period the said term of ten years shall be reckoned from the date of the expiry of such fixed period.

22. Accounts and Balance-sheet.—(1) At the expiration of each calendar year every banking company incorporated in British India, in respect of all business transacted by it, and every banking company incorporated outside British India which carries on business in British India, in respect of all business transacted through its branches in British India, shall prepare with reference to that year a balance-sheet and profit and loss account as on the last working day of the year in the Forms set out in the Schedule or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

(2) The balance-sheet and profit and loss account shall be signed—

(a) in the case of a banking company incorporated in British India, by the manager or the principal officer of the company and where there are more than three directors of the company, by at least three of those directors, or where there are not more than three directors, by all the directors, and

(b) in the case of a banking company incorporated outside British India, by the manager or agent of the principal office of the company in British India.

(3) Notwithstanding that the balance-sheet of a banking company is under sub-section (1) required to be prepared in a form other than the form marked F in the Third Schedule to the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the provisions of that Act relating to the balance-sheet and profit and loss account of a company shall, in so far as they are not inconsistent with this Act, apply to the balance-sheet or profit and loss account, as the case may be, of a banking company.

23. Audit.—(1) The balance-sheet and profit and loss account prepared in accordance with section 22 shall be audited—

(a) in the case of a banking company incorporated in British India, by an auditor holding a certificate under section 144 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), entitling him to act as an auditor of companies, and

(b) in the case of a banking company incorporated outside British India, either by such an auditor as aforesaid, or by a person duly qualified to be an auditor under the law of the country in which the company is incorporated.

(2) The auditor shall have the powers of, exercise the functions vested in, and discharge the duties and be subject to the liabilities and penalties imposed on, auditors of companies by section 145 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913).

24. Submission of returns.—The accounts and balance sheet referred to in section 22 duly audited shall be printed, and three copies thereof shall be furnished as returns to the Reserve Bank within three months from the end of the period to which they refer.

Provided that the Central Government may in any case extend the said period of three months for the furnishing of such returns by a further period not exceeding three months.

25. Exemption from certain provisions of Act VII of 1943.—Where a banking company in any year furnishes its balance sheet and accounts in accordance with the provisions of section 24, it may at the same time send to the registrar three copies of such balance sheet and accounts, and where such copies are so sent, it shall not be necessary for the company to file copies of the balance sheet and accounts with the registrar as required by subsection (1) of section 134 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), and such copies so sent shall be chargeable with the same fees and shall be dealt with in all respects as if they were filed in accordance with that section.

26. Display of audited balance-sheet by companies incorporated outside British India.—Every banking company incorporated outside British India which carries on business in British India shall, not later than the first Monday in August of any year in which it carries on business in British India, display in a conspicuous place in its principal office and in every branch office in British India a copy of its last audited balance-sheet and profit and loss account, and shall keep the copy so displayed until replaced by a copy of the subsequent balance-sheet and profit and loss account.

27. Accounting provisions of this Act not retrospective.—Nothing in his Act shall apply to the preparation of accounts by a banking company and the audit and submission thereof in respect of any accounting year which has expired prior to the commencement of this Act, and notwithstanding the other provisions of this Act, such accounts shall be prepared, audited and submitted in accordance with the law in force immediately before the commencement of this Act.

28. Inspection.—(1) Without prejudice to the provisions contained in sections 137, 138, and 139 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Central Government may, if it has any reason to believe that the interests of the depositors of a banking company are in danger or that a banking company is unable to meet its obligations or has made default in complying with any of the provisions of this Act or that an offence under this Act has been or is likely to be committed by a banking company or any officer of a banking company or that it is otherwise desirable or necessary, direct the Reserve Bank to inspect the banking company, its books and accounts and make a report thereon to the Central Government.

(2) On receipt of a report under sub-section (1), the Central Government, if it is satisfied from the report that the affairs of a banking company are being conducted to the detriment of the interest of its depositors, may—

(a) by order in writing prohibit the banking company from receiving fresh deposits, or

(b) if the banking company is a scheduled bank, notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (6) of section 42 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (II of 1934), by notification in the official Gazette, direct the exclusion of the banking company from the Second Schedule to that Act, or

(c) direct the Reserve Bank to apply for the winding up of the banking company, or

(d) act in respect of the banking company under more than one of the foregoing clauses:

Provided that the Central Government may cancel or modify any order passed under this sub-section upon such terms and conditions as it may think fit to impose.

(3) The Central Government may, after giving reasonable notice to the banking company, publish the report submitted by the Reserve Bank or such portion of it as may appear necessary to the Central Government.

29. Penalties.—(1) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this Part, every director or other officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of sub-section (1), if any banking company fails to comply with the provisions of section 18 or section 19, the Reserve Bank shall by notice in writing make a demand to the banking company to comply with the said provisions within thirty days from the receipt of the notice, and if the banking company fails so to do, the Reserve Bank shall apply to the Court for the winding up of the banking company.

PART III.

SUSPENSION OF BUSINESS AND WINDING UP OF BANKING COMPANIES

30. Suspension of business.—(1) The Court may on the application of a banking company which is temporarily unable to meet its obligations make an order staying the commencement or continuance of all actions and proceedings against the company for a fixed period of time on such terms and conditions as it shall think fit and proper, and may from time to time extend the period up to a total period not exceeding three months in all.

(2) No such application shall be maintainable unless it is accompanied by a report of the Reserve Bank indicating that in the opinion of the Reserve Bank the banking company will be able to pay its debts if the application is granted:

Provided that the Court may, for sufficient reasons, grant relief under this section even if the application is not accompanied by such report.

31. Winding up by Court.—(1) Without prejudices to the provisions contained in section 162 or section 271 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), and without prejudice to its powers under section 30, the Court shall order the winding up of a banking company if it is unable to pay its debts, and the Court shall also order the winding up of a banking company if the Reserve Bank, which is hereby authorised so to do, applies in this behalf to the Court on either of the following grounds, namely:—

(a) that it appears from the results of an inspection made under section 28 that the affairs of the company are being conducted to the detriment of the interest of its depositors, or

(b) that the company has failed to comply with the provisions of section 18 or section 19, and with a notice served upon it under sub-section (2) of section 29.

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions contained in section 163 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), a banking company shall be deemed to be unable to pay its debts if it has refused to meet any lawful demand for payment made at any of its offices or branches within two working days if such demand is made at a place where there is an office, branch or agency of the Reserve Bank, or within four working days if such demand is made elsewhere.

(3) A copy of every application by the Reserve Bank under sub-section (1) shall be sent by the Reserve Bank to the registrar.

32. Reserve Bank to be official liquidator.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 175 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Reserve Bank shall be appointed as the official liquidator in relation to the winding up by Court of a banking company.

33. Stay of proceedings.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 173 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Court shall not make any order staying the proceedings in relation to the winding up of a banking company, unless the Court is satisfied that an arrangement has been made whereby the company can pay its depositors in full as their claims accrue.

34. Report of liquidator.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 177B of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), where a winding up order is made in respect of a banking company, the official liquidator shall submit a preliminary report to the Court within two months from the date of the order giving the information required by that section so far as it is available to him, to enable the Court to order the payment of a preliminary dividend if sufficient assets are available.

35. Power to dispense with meetings of creditors, etc.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in sections 178A and 183 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Court may in the proceedings for winding up a banking company dispense with any meetings of creditors or contributories or with the appointment of a committee of inspection if it considers that no object will be secured thereby sufficient to justify the delay and expense.

36. Booked depositors' credits to be deemed proved.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 191 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), the Court shall deem that the amounts shown in the books of a banking company as standing to the credit of depositors are proved without requiring further proof from the depositors concerned unless the official liquidator shows that there is reason for doubting any particular entry.

37. Restriction on voluntary winding up.—Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 203 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), no banking company may be voluntarily wound up unless the Reserve Bank certifies in writing that the company is able to pay in full all its debts to its creditors as they accrue, and without prejudice to the provisions contained in sections 218 and 220 of that Act, the Court shall, on the application of the Reserve Bank, order the winding up of the company by the Court if at any stage during the voluntary winding up proceedings the company is not able to meet such debts as they accrue.

MISCELLANEOUS.

38. Power of Central Government to make rules.—

(1) The Central Government may, after consultation with the Reserve Bank, make rules consistent with this Act to provide for all matters for which provision is necessary or expedient for the purpose of giving effect to the provisions of this Act.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for the details to be included in the returns required by this Act and the manner in which such returns shall be submitted.

(3) All rules made under this section shall be published in the official Gazette and shall be subject to the condition of previous publication, and the date to be specified under clause (3) of section 23 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (X of 1897), shall not be less than six months from the date on which the draft of the proposed rules was published.

39. Amendment of section 17, Act II of 1934.—In section 17 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934, the word "and" at the end of clause (15) of section 17 shall be omitted, and after that clause the following clause shall be inserted, namely:—

"(15A) the performance of the functions of the Bank under the Banking Companies Act, 1945;"

40. Repeal of Part XA, Act VII of 1913.—All the provisions contained in Part XA of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 (VII of 1913), are hereby repealed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The provisions of law relating to banking companies at present form a subsidiary portion of the general law applicable to companies and are contained in Part XA of the Indian Companies Act, 1913. These provisions, which were first introduced in 1936 and which have undergone two subsequent modifications, have proved inadequate and difficult to administer. Moreover while the primary objective of Companies Law is to safeguard the interest of the stock-holder, that of banking legislation should be the protection of the interests of the depositor. It has therefore been felt for some time that separate legislation was necessary for the regulation of banking in India. This need has become the more insistent on account of the considerable development that has taken place in recent years in banking, especially the rapid growth of banking resources and of the number of banks and branches. The enactment of a separate and more detailed Act has in consequence now become imperative. Regard must also be had to the fact that the banking system is likely in the post-war period to be more vulnerable by reason of the great expansion, both quantitatively and relatively, that has taken place in demand deposits, as compared with time deposits, during the war years.

2. The provisions of Part XA of the Indian Companies Act, which part will now be repealed, are incorporated in the Bill with certain modifications and the addition of several new provisions designed to safeguard the interests of depositors and to ensure the development of banking in India on sound lines. The main features of the Bill are as follows:—

(i) A simple definition of banking with the object of limiting the scope of the legislation to institutions in which the funds are deposited primarily to ensure their safety and ready withdrawability;

(ii) Prescription of minimum capital standards;

(iii) Prohibition of trading with a view to eliminating non-banking risks;

(iv) Inclusion in the scope of the legislation of banks incorporated or registered outside British India;

(v) Provision of an expeditious procedure for liquidation;

(vi) Inspection of the books and accounts of a bank by the Reserve Bank when necessary;

(vii) Empowering the Central Government to take action against banks conducting their affairs in a manner detrimental to the interests of the depositors;

(viii) Prescription of a special form of balance sheet and conferring of powers on the Reserve Bank to call for periodical returns.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA
LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT

A

to consolidate and amend the law relating to banking companies; and Annexure.

The Governor-General has been pleased to give the previous sanction required by section 153 of the Government of India Act, 1935, to the introduction in the Legislative Assembly of this Bill.

MD. RAFI,
Secretary of the Legislative Assembly.

(The Honourable Sir Jeremy Raisman.)

THE BANKING COMPANIES BILL

(Published in the Gazette of India, Part V, dated the 18th November, 1944, and in the Punjab Gazette. Part IV, dated the 26th January 1945).

NOTES ON CLAUSES

Clause 1 (1).—The Bill is confined to companies carrying on the business of banking. It would be impracticable to include within its scope all institutions and individuals dealing in credit in view of the complex credit structure of the country and the fact that money-lending is an item of provincial legislation.

Clause 2.—Except in matters pertaining to banking it is desirable that the Indian Companies Act should continue to be applicable to banking companies.

Clause 3.—It is unnecessary to include co-operative banks, which are governed by special legislation.

Clause 4.—The object underlying this clause is that in cases of genuine emergency, e.g., a general run on all banks or a run on some bank in a particular area, Government should have power to suspend the operation of the Act after considering the recommendations of the Reserve Bank. The suspension of clause 18 will, for instance, enable the Reserve Bank to give an advance to tide over a banking crisis against liquid assets maintained by banks under that clause.

Clause 5 (b).—The present definition of banking in Section 277F of the Indian Companies Act gives rise to administrative difficulties, particularly in respect of the words " principal business " in determining whether a company comes within its scope. The new definition is intended to connect banking definitely with the acceptance of demand deposits and to confine the scope of the legislation to those institutions in which funds are deposited primarily to ensure their safety and ready withdrawability. It has the further advantage that it automatically excludes non-banking companies which accept only time deposits or borrow money at call.

Clause 6.—Based on Sections 277F and 277G(2) of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Clause 7.—Sub-clause (1) is considered necessary for the protection of the interests of the depositors while sub-clause (2) merely follows the existing proviso to Section 277F of the Indian Companies Act, 1913.

Clause 8.—This is intended to prohibit a bank from engaging directly or indirectly in trading activities and undertaking trading risks in addition to ordinary banking risks. Certain banks have been found to engage in such activities under the guise of agency business.

Clause 9.—It is not intended to prohibit a bank from conducting the management of industrial concerns which it may have acquired in satisfaction of its claims or from taking any other steps necessary in the interests of the bank. The period prescribed should be sufficient for the disposal of such non-banking assets.

Clause 10.—This embodies the new Section 277HH added to the Indian Companies Act, 1913, by the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1944, supplemented by a provision disallowing the employment of managing agents under some other name, or on a salary disproportionate to the resources of the bank.

Clause 11.—One of the chief defects of the Indian banking system is the weak and vulnerable capital structure of the vast majority of banks, as evidenced by the fact that during the years 1934-43, no less than 669 banking companies were liquidated or wound up, most of which possessed very poor capital resources. Even the minimum of Rs. 50,000 prescribed by the Indian Companies Act for banks incorporated after the 15th January 1937 is low as compared with many other countries, notwithstanding the lower standard of wealth in India. Another defect in the present banking system is the undue concentration of banking offices in a few cities and towns whereas a very large number of small towns have no banking facilities. Small banks with low capital have also a tendency to open branches in larger towns which have already sufficient banking facilities. Clause 11 (1) seeks to remedy these defects.

In the case of banking companies incorporated outside British India, the provisions as regards capital do not afford any real protection; hence the safeguarding provisions of sub-clause (2).

Sub-clause (3) follows the recently enacted Section 277 I (2) of the Indian Companies Act.

Clause 12.—This reproduces Section 277J of the Indian Companies Act.

Clause 13.—This embodies sub-sections (1) and (2) of Section 277K of the Indian Companies Act. Sub-section (3) of that section has been omitted in view of clause 18 of the Bill which provides for a general reserve.

Clause 14.—This follows Section 277L(1) of the Indian Companies Act except that the prescribed returns are to be filled with the Reserve Bank and not the Registrar.

Sub-section (2) of Section 277L, which defines the terms " demand liabilities " and " time liabilities ", has been removed to clause 5 of the Bill.

Clause 15.—The clause is more or less identical with Section 277M of the Indian Companies Act. The words " issued and subscribed share capital " however have been substituted for the words " issued share capital " as the latter term is somewhat confusing and is used indiscriminately.

Clause 16.—Past failures of several banks in India have been due mostly to indiscriminate advances to directors or their concerns. An absolute and unqualified ban on such transactions would, however, result in depriving the banks of the advantage of having on their directorate important and experienced industrial magnates. A check is therefore prescribed on advances to directors and their concerns.

Clause 17.—When the Reserve Bank's original " Proposals for an Indian Bank Act " were circulated by Government in 1940, suggestions were received that a system of licensing foreign banks doing business in British India should be introduced. The Banking Enquiry Committee had also recommended that banks should be required to take out licenses from the Reserve Bank, such licenses being granted freely to the existing banks. Clause 17 provides for the licensing of foreign banks intending to open branches in India on the basis of reciprocal treatment of Indian nationals and companies in the foreign countries concerned.

Clause 18.—This clause is an attempt to prescribe by law what has already been recognised as sound banking practice, viz., that a bank should keep a reserve of cash and liquid assets to meet its demand liabilities. One of the worst defects of Indian banking is the propensity of the smaller banks to overtrade at the expense of liquidity and it seems best to insist on all banks maintaining a reasonably large proportion of their cover in the form of cash or trustee securities as defined in the Indian Trusts Act, excluding immovable property. The proportion of 25 per cent is in accordance with the actual practice followed by smaller banks.

Clause 19.—The failure of a bank incorporated in an Indian State, which had the bulk of its deposits from British India but the greater part of its assets in Indian States, has brought out the necessity of protecting the interests of British Indian depositors by requiring such banks to maintain a reasonable proportion of their British India liability in the form of assets in British India. Export bills are included in such assets with a view to helping Indian exports.

Clause 20.—The existing return under Section 42 of the Reserve Bank Act applies only to scheduled banks and also omits important details like investments. For an adequate control of banking development, it is necessary that the Reserve Bank should have a full picture of the banking situation of the country through periodical returns of assets and liabilities.

Clause 21.—The intention in prescribing an annual return of deposits which remain unclaimed for 10 years is to enable the Reserve Bank to have the necessary data for consideration of the question whether deposits remaining unclaimed for a prescribed period should be transferred to Government, making it responsible for meeting any claim which may be established in future. Similar returns are called for, in the banking legislation of Canada, and it is provided there that after the lapse of a certain period of years the deposits will be paid over to Government.

Clause 22.—The Form F laid down by the Companies Act is meant for companies in general and is not suited to the special requirements of banking companies. Many of the smaller banks publish their balance sheets in different forms and there is no uniformity of presentation. The banks also close their books on different dates making it difficult to have a picture of the banking situation of the country as on a particular date. The Central Banking Inquiry Committee, which considered this question in detail, recommended a separate form for banking companies. As regards banks incorporated outside British India, there is no provision in the Companies Act for the publication of separate balance-sheets of their Indian business. In Forms A and B of the Schedule to the Banking Companies Bill, an attempt has been made to provide a form of balance sheet and profit and loss account specially suitable for banking companies.

Clause 23.—This provides

Clause 24.—At present, some of the banks publish their balance-sheets after a considerable period from the date to which they relate so that the position of the banks remains unknown for an unduly long period. The clause remedies this defect.

Clause 25.—This follows Section 17 of the Insurance Act, 1938.

Clause 26.—There is no provision in the Indian Companies Act for the publication of balance-sheets by banking companies incorporated outside British India similar to that contained in Section 136 applicable to companies incorporated in British India. This clause provides for uniformity of treatment as regards the publication of balance-sheets.

Clause 27.—This provides for the period of transition and follows Section 17A of the Insurance Act, 1938.

Clause 28.—The opinions received on the Reserve Bank's "Proposals for an Indian Bank Act" circulated in 1940 revealed that public opinion was generally in favour of the inspection of banks by Government or the Reserve Bank. In view of this and in the light of the experience gained by the Reserve Bank in connection with the inspection of banks for the purposes of Section 42(6) of the Reserve Bank Act, and in view of possible post-war developments, provisions have been made for the inspection, in certain circumstances, of a bank's books by the Reserve Bank at the instance of the Central Government. A regular system of inspection of all banks does not seem practicable and provision has therefore been made for inspection only where necessary in the interests of depositors. Sub-clause (1) generally follows the lines of Section 33 (1) of the Insurance Act, and sub-clauses (2) and (3) enumerate the various corrective measures which the Central Government may take.

Clause 30.—This clause is a modification of Section 277N of the Indian Companies Act, the period of moratorium having been limited to three months. It is the intention that the report under sub-clause (2) should be submitted by the Reserve Bank.

Clause 31.—The provisions of the Indian Companies Act in respect of liquidation do not seem to be suitable for banking companies. A bank's business is conducted on an over-the-counter basis and it is important that current accounts should be withdrawable at any time and drafts etc., should be honoured on presentation; otherwise great business dislocation is likely to result. A provision has, therefore, been made under this clause for the winding up of a banking company if it refuses to meet a lawful demand for payment at one of its offices or branches within two working days, if such demand is made at a place where there is an office or branch or agency of the Reserve Bank, or within four working days, elsewhere. The clause also authorises the Reserve Bank to apply for the liquidation of a banking company if it appears from the results of an inspection made under clause 28 that its affairs are being conducted to the detriment of the interests of its depositors.

Clause 32.—Experience has shown that the cost of liquidation proceedings under the Indian Companies Act is high. It has, therefore, been provided in this clause that the Reserve Bank should be empowered to carry out liquidations so that unnecessary expense and delay in liquidation proceedings may be avoided, and that the assets may be realised as speedily and cheaply as possible in the interests of the creditors.

Clause 33.—This limits the power of the Court to stay proceedings to cases in which it is satisfied that the depositors can be paid in full.

Clause 34.—The period prescribed under Section 177B of the Indian Companies Act for the submission of preliminary report by the official liquidator is too long in the case of a banking company and the clause is intended to remedy this defect.

Clause 35.—In the case of a banking company, rapidity in liquidation is essential if the assets are not to grow cold or to be dissipated. The provisions for calling meetings of creditors to discuss arrangements or to appoint an advisory committee to work with the official liquidator should, therefore, be rescinded in the case of banking companies unless the Court considers that this should be done.

Clause 36.—This simplifies the formalities for depositors proving their debts.

Clause 37.—It has been found that banking companies in a shaky condition take advantage of the voluntary winding up proceedings under the cover of a merger, or manipulate such proceedings to the disadvantage of the depositors who are a scattered body and are unlikely to take concerted action. The clause is intended to prevent such abuses.

Clause 38.—This empowers the Central Government to make regulations under the Act after consultation with the Reserve Bank.

Clause 39.—This is a consequential amendment.

Clause 40.—Repeals.

6. Supplemental—(1) The amendment made by section two of this Act in the principal Act shall be deemed to have been made therein immediately before the passing thereof.

(2) A copy of the principal Act giving effect to—

On application for a patent accompanied by complete specification	30"

(b) for the entry

"Before sealing a patent	30"

the following entry shall be substituted, namely,—

"For sealing a patent	30"

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The existing provisions of the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911, do not permit an inventor to apply for a patent before he has worked out the practical details of his invention, and thereby expose him to the risks arising from the disclosure of his invention to others at its unprotected stage. The relevant provisions under the U. K. Act on the other hand, enable the inventor to apply for a patent as soon as the inventive idea occurs to him, and allow him a period of 13 months from the date of his application for developing its practical side, this period being part of the period during which the invention is provisionally protected. It has been found necessary, therefore, to amend the Indian Act on the lines of the U. K. Patents and Designs Act, 1907, so as to confer on the applicant an option to file with his application a 'provisional' specification merely describing 'the nature of the invention' and later, within a specific period, to follow it up with the 'complete' specification describing both 'the nature of the invention' and 'the manner of performing the same.'

The 25th January 1945.

No. F. 110-I/45-A.—Under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules, the Governor-General has been pleased to order the publication in the Gazette of India of the following Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, and the Bill and the Statement of Objects and Reasons are accordingly published for general information:—

L. A. BILL NO. 4 OF 1945

A Bill to amend the Indian Merchandise Marks (Amendment) Act; 1941

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Indian Merchandise Marks (Amendment) Act, 1941, for the purposes hereinafter appearing;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. Short title.—This Act may be called the Indian Merchandise Marks (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1945.

2. Amendment of section 7, Act II of 1941.—In section 7 of the Indian Merchandise Marks (Amendment) Act, 1941 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), in the new section substituted by the said section for section 12 of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889 (IV of 1889),—

(a) in subsection (2);

(i) for the words "cotton sewing or darning thread" the words "cotton sewing, darning, crochet, or handicraft thread," shall be substituted;

(ii) for the words and figures "in premises which are a factory, as defined in the Factories Act, 1934," the words and figures "in any premises not exempted by rules made under section 20 of this Act" shall be substituted;

(iii) for the words and figures "any rules made under section 20 of this Act" the words "the said rules" shall be substituted;

(iv) for the words "the grist number" the words "in such other manner as may be required by the said rules" shall be substituted;

(v) for the words "from the factory" the words "from the premises" shall be substituted;

(b) in subsection (3), for the words "or any cotton sewing or darning thread" the words "or any such thread" shall be substituted.

3. Substitution of new section for section 9, Act II of 1941.—For section 9 of the said Act, the following section shall be substituted, namely:—

"9. Amendment of section 20, Act IV of 1889—In section 20 of the said Act, after subsection (1) the following subsection shall be inserted, namely:—

(1A) The Central Government may make rules providing for the manner in which for the purposes of section 12 cotton yarn and cotton thread shall be marked with the particulars required by that section, and for the exemption of certain premises used for the manufacture, bleaching, dyeing or finishing of cotton yarn or cotton thread from the provisions of that section."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Section 12 (2) of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889, as amended by the Indian Merchandise Marks (Amendment) Act, 1941, requires cotton sewing and darning thread manufactured or finished in premises which are a factory under the Factories Act, 1934, to be marked with the weight of the thread in the unit, the grist number and certain other particulars. When the rules for marking of cotton sewing and darning thread, etc., under section 20, read with section 12, of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act were published for criticism, the opinions received favoured the marking of cotton crochet and handicraft thread with the same particulars as are required in the case of cotton sewing and darning thread and also recommended that the section should be made to apply to thread manufactured in certain premises other than a factory as defined in the Factories Act, 1934. The criticisms further revealed that the terms 'grist number' used in the section in respect of marking of thread was not commonly employed by manufacturers or traders in India. Provincial Governments and commercial bodies were thereupon consulted. Having regard to the opinions expressed by them it is proposed that cotton crochet and handicraft thread should be included within the scope of section 12 of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act. Further, as it will handicap smaller establishments, should they be required to mark their thread with the various particulars and will hamper the growth of cottage industries, it is proposed to amend the Act so as to provide generally for the marking of cotton thread with the required particulars but to take powers to exclude cotton thread manufactured in premises deserving to be exempted. It is also proposed to amend the Act to delete the expression 'grist number' and instead require cotton thread to be marked with such descriptions as may be specified in the rules to denote its basic count or thickness.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Insurance Act, 1938, was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 10th February 1945 :—

We, the undersigned, members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Insurance Act, 1938, was referred, have considered the Bill, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed hereto.

Clause 1—In this clause and elsewhere in the Bill the short title has been brought up-to-date.

Clause 2—The alteration made is formal.

Clause 3—We have omitted the word "disputed" to avoid excluding cases in which the insurer though not disputing or contesting the claim might still evade payment. The words "maturing for payment" are omitted to avoid the exclusion of cases where a policy has matured or has acquired a surrender value, and in consequence of this omission the words "in India" have been transposed. We have inserted a time limit of three months for the making of payment in pursuance of judgment before the Superintendent within the State having any claims against the insurer. We have provided that notice shall for this reason be given to the chief insurance authority of the State. Such notice must under section 106A(2) (b) of the Act be given to the Superintendent of Insurance.

Clause 7—We have postponed the operation of the provision amended by sub-clause (a) (i) for 6 months in order to enable the insurer meanwhile to separate his existing assets. The words added by sub-clause (a) (iii) are necessary to secure administrative verification whether the provisions of section 10 are being complied with.

Clauses 10, 13 and 42 of the Bill as introduced—We do not agree with the proposal to convert the statements referred to in section 28 into returns, a proposal which has the effect of making the penalties following a failure to submit a return applicable We have therefore omitted these clauses.

Clause 11 (formerly 12)—The amendment proposed by the Bill did not provide for cases in which, where the business of one insurer is transferred to another, loans on the transferred policies might have been granted by the transferor and be still outstanding, or might subsequently be granted by the transferee. The clause as revised by us now covers such cases.

Clauses 12 (formerly 14) and 30 (formerly 31)—We have reduced the period allowed for repayment of loans which have acquired the character of prohibited loans from six months to three.

Ordinance, after the word " alter " the words " or cause to be destroyed, effaced or altered " shall be inserted.

8. Amendment of Section 12, Ordinance XXXV of 1943.—In subsection (1) of section 12 of the said Ordinance,—

(a) in clause (e), the words " not below the status of a gazetted officer " shall be omitted ;

(b) in clause (f), for the words " has been " the words " has been, is being or is about to be " shall be substituted.

(2) To the said section 12 the following subsection shall be added, namely :—

" (3) The Controller General and such inspectors and other officers as may be empowered by the Central or the Provincial Government in this behalf shall within the respective areas for which they are appointed have power to investigate all offences punishable under this Ordinance, and in conducting any such investigation shall, within the said areas, have all the powers, duties, privileges and liabilities of an officer in charge of a police station under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (Act V of 1898) when investigating a cognisable offence within the limits of his station."

9. Amendment of Section 13, Ordinance XXXV of 1943—To section 13 of the said Ordinance the following subsection shall be added, namely :—

" (4) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in clause (a) of subsection (1) of section 32 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (Act V of 1898), a Magistrate of the first class specially empowered by the Provincial Government in this behalf or any Presidency Magistrate may impose a sentence of fine exceeding one thousand rupees for any offence punishable under this Ordinance ".

WAVELL

Viceroy and Governor-General

FROM THE "GAZETTE OF INDIA", NEW DELHI, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1945

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Insurance Act, 1938, was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 10th February 1945 :—

We, the undersigned, members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Insurance Act, 1938, was referred, have considered the Bill, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed hereto.

Clause 1—In this clause and elsewhere in the Bill the short title has been brought up-to-date.

Clause 2—The alteration made is formal.

Clause 3—We have omitted the word "disputed" to avoid excluding cases in which the insurer though not disputing or contesting the claim might still not made payment. The words "maturing for payment" are omitted to avoid the exclusion of cases where a policy has matured or has acquired a surrender value, and in consequence of this omission the words "in India" have been transposed. We have inserted a time limit of three months for the making of payment in pursuance of judgment before the Superintendent of Insurance can take action. The insertion of the references to sections 40A and 40B is necessary because of the provision contained in those new sections now introduced by us as to cancellation of registration.

Clause 4—We have omitted the clause of the Bill proposing to amend section 4 by raising the minimum limits for benefits secured by policies of insurance issued by insurers including Co-operative Societies and Mutual Companies. We first considered amending the proposal in the Bill so as to permit Co-operative Societies and Mutual Companies to issue policies for small amounts, thereby securing for policy-holders the benefits in the direction of cheaper insurance which would result from competition. The provision which we have finally made, namely by repealing section 4 of the Act to throw the field of small insurance open to unrestricted competition between insurers including the mutual and co-operative insurance bodies and Provident societies, seemed to us to be the logical outcome of this line of approach.

Clause 6—The clause as drafted would enable the chief insurance authority in an Indian State to block all action by the Court by a refusal whether reasonable or unreasonable to agree to the return of the deposit. The alteration we have made ensures that proper protection will be secured for persons within the State having any claims against the insurer. We have provided that notice shall for this reason be given to the chief insurance authority of the State. Such notice must under section 106A(2) (b) of the Act be given to the Superintendent of Insurance.

Clause 7—We have postponed the operation of the provision amended by sub-clause (a) (i) for 6 months in order to enable the insurer meanwhile to separate his existing assets. The words added by sub-clause (a) (iii) are necessary to secure administrative verification whether the provisions of section 10 are being complied with.

Clauses 10, 13 and 42 of the Bill as introduced—We do not agree with the proposal to convert the statements referred to in section 28 into returns, a proposal which has the effect of making the penalties following a failure to submit a return applicable We have therefore omitted these clauses.

Clause 11 (formerly 12)—The amendment proposed by the Bill did not provide for cases in which, where the business of one insurer is transferred to another, loans on the transferred policies might have been granted by the transferor and be still outstanding, or might subsequently be granted by the transferee. The clause as revised by us now covers such cases.

Clauses 12 (formerly 14) and 30 (formerly 31)—We have reduced the period allowed for repayment of loans which have acquired the character of prohibited loans from six months to three.

Clause 13 (formerly 15)—We have redrafted the clause so as to secure the object aimed at in the Bill, without having to substitute the expression "person approved" for the existing expression "public officer".

Clause 14 (formerly 16)—The proposals contained in the Bill have been modified to prohibit management by a company or firm, and to secure that no one employed in any capacity anywhere should be so remunerated by commission or a share in the profits except that insurance agents and employers of insurance agents, i.e., chief agents, may receive commission for business procured. A relaxation is made to allow the employment of persons who also operate as insurance agents provided their commission as such does not exceed Rs. 1,000 in the year, and to allow the employment in branch offices of persons remunerated by a share in the profits of non-life business transacted through the branch office, provided that the total allocated to such payments does not exceed 2½ per cent. of the profits arising out of the business transacted through the branch office. We have also added to the proposals contained in the Bill two new provisions, the first forbidding assignment of office and the second requiring that the office of all directors of an insurance company shall be determinable by retirement of directors in rotation.

Clauses 15 and 16 (formerly 17 and 18)—The alterations made by us are intended merely as improvements of the wording. The words omitted at the end of clause 16 are in any case unnecessary.

Clause 17 (formerly 19)—Except for the substitution of the word "individual" for the word "person" which is necessary in view of section 42(1) of the Act, the changes made are in great part consequential on the changes introduced in the next clause of the Bill. We have altered the figure "ten" in sub-clause (b) (i) to "twelve and a half" and we have omitted the proposed proviso which fixed this figure in modification of the figure "ten" in certain specified cases, substituting for the omitted proviso a proviso putting the subsection out of action in respect of cases for which provision is now made by the two new sections which we are introducing by clause 18.

Clause 18 (formerly 20)—We consider that the object underlying this amendment would be met if certain maxima can be fixed for payments by way of commission and as expenses of management, that is, if the amount spent on over-all expenses can be limited. We have accordingly omitted the section which the Bill proposed, and have in its place proposed two new sections, the first restricting expenditure on commission and expenses of management in life-business within certain specified limits and the second performing the same function for non-life business. We have added a stern penalty clause, and have made provision for obtaining information through the auditor as to whether the sections are complied with.

Clause 19—This clause, which is new, makes a consequential amendment in section 48, by removing from that section words no longer necessary in view of the new section 48A.

Clause 20 (formerly 21)—The new section as dealing with directors will come more appropriately after than before section 48, and has been renumbered accordingly. The words inserted import a reference to what are generally known as "chief agents".

Clause 24 (formerly 25)—The slight extension of the limits imposed on the activities of provident societies in the sphere of insurance is, we think, desirable.

Clause 25 (formerly 26)—In sub-clause (b) an omission has been supplied. The alterations made in sub-clause (c)(ii) are on the same lines as those commented on in clause 3(b).

Clause 27 (formerly 28)—A drafting correction is made.

Clause 32 (formerly 33)—The words omitted from proposed subsection (6) of section 87 of the Act are unnecessary, since the amendment made by clause 34 (formerly 35) makes the necessary provision.

Clause 33 (formerly 34)—We have added a sub-section making it clear that the Superintendent of Insurance can sanction an amalgamation or transfer involving a reduction of contracts.

Clause 36 (formerly 37)—The alterations made are drafting improvements only.

Clause 39 (formerly 40)—We have increased the period of notice from seven to fifteen days.

Clause 41 (formerly 43)—The alterations made are merely to improve the language.

2. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India, dated the 21st October 1944.

3. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require republication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

NEW DELHI :

The 10th February 1945

*Subject to a Minute of Dissent

MINUTES OF DISSENT

We regret that we cannot agree with the majorit[y] of our colleagues regarding clauses 16 and 20 of th[e] Bill. These clauses raise complex and contentious issu[es] that are, however, for those not fully familiar wit[h] them, not easy to distinguish. In the remarks tha[t] follow we want it to be clearly understood,

(1) that, in common with all our colleagues, w[e] fully agree that Government should have ample powe[r] to compel all insurers to conduct their business pr[o-]perly and with due regard to the best interests of t[he] policy-holders.

(2) that we do not seek to bolster up bankru[pt] insurers.

(3) that where we refer to large and small insur[ers] we mean only insurers that are financially sound.

(4) that we consider it is essential in the nation[al] interest "to secure greater financial stability of insu[r-]ance companies."

(5) that managers and other officers should [be] prohibited from assigning their office to other person[s]

(6) that in the case of Life Insurance companies, managers, directors and other officers in a position to influence the acceptance of business as well as all agents (including "agents" and "Insurance agents" licensed under section 42) should be prohibited from receiving as remuneration or any part of their remuneration any share in the profits of the Life insurance business or in any valuation surplus of the Life insurance business of the insurer.

(7) that in the case of insurers, transacting insurance business other than "Life" insurance business, managers and others in a position to influence the acceptance of business ought not to receive as remuneration or as part of their remuneration any commission based on the premium income of the insurer.

(8) that all unduly long or unconscionable contracts should be prohibited.

We regret we cannot agree to clauses 16 and 20 as they have been amended. In our opinion the new sections, if they were ever to become Law, would do little to check some real abuses. At the same time they would benefit only a very small number of well established and powerful insurers, while seriously damaging many others. The effect will be :

(a) the enrichment of a few at the expense of many ;

(b) a disastrous weakening of the financial position of many insurers during years that are going to be full of investment and other difficulties in any circumstances ;

(c) loss to thousands of policy-holders in insurance companies that must inevitably suffer as a direct result of the wholly unsound provisions accepted by a majority of our colleagues.

We feel, too, that we must point out that paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of the proposed new section 31A is obscure, defective and open to conflicting interpretation. This is highly undesirable and in the interest neither of Government and the Courts that must enforce the Law, nor of the policy-holders.

If ever effect is given to the proposed new sections 31A (1) (a), 40A and 40B the consequences are bound inter alia to be the disruption of many established connections and competition of a most unequal and unfair kind between the larger insurers and their less powerful rivals. We cannot believe that this is the intention either of Government or of the Legislature. We do not believe such unfair competition to be in the interest of the State, or of the policy-holders or of insurers generally, and we are wholly opposed to provisions that will inevitably give rise to instability among insurers and loss to thousands of innocent persons. If Government consider that there are too many insurers let them openly say so and assist amalgamation proceedings, instead of allowing thousands of persons to suffer loss while a few wealthy insurance companies sweep all rivals from the field by means of regulations so framed as to weigh the scales heavily in favour of some and against others.

More specifically we consider that clause 16 (new section 31A), except in so far as it wholly prohibits certain types of commission, should deal only with "provisions relating to managers, etc." as its title indicates, and that paragraph (a) of subsection (1) should be amended accordingly. This would make for a desirable clarity and remove the defects now apparent.

Further it will, in our view, be sufficient if in clause 20 (new section 40A) it is provided simply that :

(1) All contracts between an insurer and a person acting as his "agent" shall terminate on the expiry of a fixed period from the commencement of this Amendment Act ; and

(2) No insurer may appoint any "agent" or other representative for any period extending beyond a fixed term of years.

N. B.—"Agent" has the meaning set out in section 182 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

We are entirely opposed to limitation of expenses and commission in the manner proposed by some of our colleagues ; since any such provision will inevitably operate to the disadvantage of those small insurers whose Boards of Directors are less able to give the great indirect awards at the disposal of their wealthier rivals.

In general it may be said that all controls to be exercised over insurers should take the form of sound legal principles and not the form of harassing regulations of a nature that will tempt evasion and give unjust advantages to a very small number of influential insurers.

I sign Select Committee Report subject to following minute. I generally agree with the Report of the Select Committee but in my view the proposed omission of Section 4 of the existing Act is not a wise move. The original Clause 4 in the Bill was an attempt to improve the existing position and I think we should persist in that attempt. My suggestion is that as far as the Joint Stock Insurance Companies are concerned they should not be allowed to take policies below rupees one thousand. Provident Societies should be allowed to take policies up to rupees one thousand as provided in the Bill by the Select Committee. As regards Mutual Companies and Co-operative Societies I do not think there should be any restriction. It is agreed that the healthiest form of insurance is one which is carried on a Mutual or Co-operative basis and such Societies therefore should be allowed to underwrite insurance without any restriction. Paragraph 2 in Clause 18 of the Bill as amended by the Select Committee in the proposed Section 40A—the limitation should be made applicable to business in India. This correction is necessary. In the proposed Section 40B dealing with the limitation of expenditure on commission and expenses of management in insurance business other than Life it is necessary to make it clear that the suggested limitation applies to insurance business transacted in India and further that the expenditure allowable to insurer having his principal place of business in India in respect of business done outside India should be his actual expenses incurred abroad.

The 6th February 1945

I. Clause 14—Insertion of new Section 31A in Act IV of 1938—The prohibition regarding payment of commission or share in profits etc., is much too sweeping in character. I have no objection to prohibiting payment of commission on premium income or of a share in the valuation surplus to anyone engaged in managerial or other capacity at the Head Office of a Life Insurance Company but payment of some commission, or rather bonus, to Branch Managers or Inspectors, Organisers and such other officers engaged on the procuration side of Life Insurance business should not be altogether prohibited. Insurers have found by experience that instead of paying officers performing or supervising field work entirely on salary basis, it is a more satisfactory and certainly more economic method to pay such officers partly on salary basis and partly by way of bonus on the actual business result. The business potentiality of an area cannot always be properly gauged, new business output moreover varies from time to time and is not a constant factor and the abilities of an organising officer are also not always known at the outset; for these reasons an Insurance Company does not find it possible to fix a salary of such officers at a very high rate initially. For Companies of very long standing with a huge renewal income, it may do no harm to remunerate entirely on salary basis even in such cases. Their huge premium income enables them to make experiments and even risk a small loss in individual cases here and there, but companies of lesser standing, without the advantage of a huge premium income, have naturally to be more cautious. Therefore, the method of paying partly on salary basis and partly on actual business results is a sound and advantageous arrangement and should not be disturbed.

Nor does it seem to me wise or advisable to prohibit payment of any share on any kind of investment profits. To my own knowledge there are special types of investment undertaken by Life officers—land development being one of them—which call for the services of persons with special knowledge and a high degree of initiative and foresight and unless such persons are amply compensated by a share in the profits of such investments it would be difficult to attract and obtain the services of such men to the best advantage of a Company. It is also not possible for a Company to retain a person all along by paying a large remuneration, since it is only occasionally that work of this nature is undertaken. A company should therefore have the liberty to pay out a small percentage of the profits for such purposes, not, however, on the entire investment income by any means but on the returns on specific investment projects. A condition may also be attached to such payment of share in profits to the effect that this would be allowable only where the return on such particular investments is, say, at least 1 per cent more than the rate of interest assumed in the valuation of a Company.

The proviso to proposed Section 31A (1) (a) would have the effect of prohibiting an Insurance Company from paying to any of its employees, who also works as an Insurance Agent for the Company outside office hours, more than Rs. 1,000, in any calendar year by way of commission in respect of insurance business procured by him as agent. This, I think, is an unnecessary restriction. If a poor clerk of an Insurance Company can, by working as agent during his leisure hours, influence for his Life Office a good volume of business on which the commission payable would exceed Rs. 1,000 why should the Law put a limit to the extent to which he can supplement his income? If this line of action is to be logically pursued, the Law may as well prescribe restrictions all round and limit, for instance, the amount of the salary that may be paid to, say, the higher-paid officers at the Head Office of a Life Insurance Company. In actual fact, such a statutory provision will, I am afraid, only drive employees in Insurance Companies wanting to supplement income by an insurance agency to act as benami agents.

II. Clause 18—Insertion of new Sections 40A and B—Statutory fixation of expense percentages for Insurance Companies should not, I think, be attempted, if I remember aright, the question of a limitation of expenses by law was discussed at the time the present Insurance Act (IV of 1938) was on the legislative anvil, but no satisfactory scientific formula could then be found. The expenses of a Life Office are governed by a number of variable factors and it is quite possible that even if the expense ratio of one Life Company be somewhat higher than that of another, the former is not, for that reason, in any way less sound than the latter. I find that in his Report in the Indian Insurance Year Book, 1944, the Superintendent of Insurance himself very forcefully points out (pages 15 and 16) how the expense ratio of a company may be artificially depressed and an entirely misleading picture given, where, for example, a company makes it a deliberate policy to specialize in under-writing short-term policies. Besides, the purpose of fixation of percentages of expenses evidently is to ensure economic working and solvency of a Life Office; but the economic working and solvency of a Life Insurance Company is not to be judged by its expense percentages only. The interest it assumes and actually earns, the saving in mortality that it is able te make are also very important considerations for a Life Company and in fact a Company even if it is able to keep its management expenses within certain specified percentages may yet not be truely economic and sound if its interest earning and mortality experience are unfavourable as compared with the bases assumed in it valuation. I would, therefore, rather depend on section 22 of the Insurance Act which give the Superintendent of Insurance ample powers to ensure the sound and economic working of a Life Company. If the powers given by that section are strictly enforced they should be enough to safeguard the interests of the policy-holders, and no interfering legislative provision such as the one now proposed would be necessary. I have also the fear that the expense percentages prescribed both for Life and non-Life business are drastically low and very few companies are likely to be able to comply with them.

The reduced rates of agency commission that are proposed are also, I think, much too low and Insurance Companies would not be able to attract good men to take up insurance agency work on such rates of remuneration, to the detriment of the healthy growth of insurance in India.

If over-all expense limits are at all to be fixed, the classification of companies proposed for this purpose, is, I think, faulty. For companies with business in force under Rs. 10 crores varying percentages are proposed according to the total volume of business in force, but for all companies with a business in force of Rs. 10 crores or more the percentages will be the same. This, I feel, will be iniquitous. A company with renewal premium income on a business in force of, say, Rs. 100 crores is manifestly in a much more advantageous position than one with a renewal income on a business of Rs. 10 crores, or even Rs. 20 or 30 crores, and the two should not be asked to manage within the same expense limits. If that is done, it will mean a statutory guaranteeing of its advantageous situation to the bigger companies vis-a-vis, the younger companies. The law obviously cannot be on the side of any one company or companies and therefore any legislation which results in discrimination of this nature must be avoided.

III. In the original amending Bill there was no provision for limitation of over-all expenses insurance companies, and this is an entirely new ..., now introduced and which is calculated to ... far-reaching consequences. I therefore consider ... the Bill has been so altered as to require re-...blication and that expert opinion as also the view ...int of Insurance Companies and the Associations ... Insurance Companies should be heard before such a ...ce of legislation goes through the legislature.

Further, the present expense ratios of most ...mpanies is such that it would be hardly practic-...ble for them to bring down their expenses imme-...ately to the limits now proposed to be prescribed. ...fficient time must therefore be allowed to enable ...em to adjust themselves to the new require-...nts.

Clause 4 : The new clause substituted does not ...e Provident Societies a fair chance. Provident ...cieties have to comply with the rigorous provi-...ns of Part III of the Insurance Act, 1938, while ...urers do not have to but still compete with ...vident Societies.

Clause 18 : While we are in sympathy with the ...ad principles underlying the limitations in the ...oposed new sections 40A and 40B, we feel that ... detailed provisions and the actual figures have ... be carefully considered in their effect on the insur-...ce companies in general.

Other Clauses : We reserve our opinion on some ... the other changes made in the Select Committee ... we intend to examine these provisions before ...ciding the attitude of Government in the mat-...r.

Clause 18 : We have approved of sections 40A ... 40B as they now appear in the Report but we ...ire to add that it is understood that if the pro-...sals contained in 40A and 40B or either of them ...quire modification on further and technical con-...erations, we are free to consider any proposed ...difications of this nature.

Clause 4 : The amendment envisaged in clause ... section IV of the Act had sought to raise the ...mum limits up to which business could be trans-...ed by ordinary Life Offices and had also intended ... the amendment to deprive the Mutual Life In-...ance Companies and Co-operative Societies from ... benefit which they had hitherto enjoyed by ... being subjected to any minimum limits. My ...ection to this amendment was that there was no ... reason for excluding Mutual and Co-operative ...urance Companies from the benefits they had en-...d hitherto, so as to leave the field free to Provident ...ties. This clause was dropped ultimately, the ...mittee having decided to delete section 4 of ... Act resulting in leaving the whole field of life in-...ance free, to all types of life organisations to ...rate upon. I am not convinced with the reasonableness of this decision and I object to the deletion of section 4.

Clause 12 (Clause 14 of the Original Draft Bill).

The provision contained in this clause is intended to get over a lacuna that exists in the Act by which the general prohibition to the grant of loans to Directors and other can be avoided. I am not satisfied that this amendment will meet all types of abuses which were sought to be covered by section 29, adequately. It would be necessary to lay down an absolute prohibition of persons who are indebted to an Insurance Company from being appointed or from continuing as Directors or Officers of the concern, subject only to such loans as might have been borrowed on the strength of the Policies they hold in their own name. In my view, it would be necessary to extend the ban also to the holding of shares and stocks and debentures of companies where the Directors are common.

Clause 14 (Clause 16 of the Original Draft Bill).

The original sub-clause (a) has now been amended in a manner which makes it go further than what was originally contemplated. I am doubtful whether the wording of the sub-clause as amended will serve the purpose for which it is intended. The larger issue whether it is proper that Managers and other employees of an Insurance Company can be paid in part by means of commission and the like, would, in my view, be met adequately by fixing a ceiling on the aggregate amount that could be drawn be these officers and advisers of Insurance Company. I feel that the time has come that some limitation will have to be statutorily put on the maximum that can be paid to those employed in the insurance field. I have, therefore, suggested that the purpose of the original sub-clause (a) to clause 16 of the Original Draft Bill would be met by a ban on anybody employed in Insurance Companies being paid in whatever shape or form any sum which exceeds the aggregate amount of more than Rs. 30,000 during a calendar year.

I am unable to agree to proviso to 31A (1a) because in actual working it will lead to a number of absurdities. In the matter regarding permitting of clerks employed in Companies doing life business, to procure insurance business on a commission basis, if any limitation is at all to be put on them, it must be on the basis of the salary of the clerk and not by fixing the maximum commission which he might earn. In the matter of remuneration to employees in non-life branch offices, I am unable to understand the purpose achieved by fixing the total remuneration paid to all persons in a branch office on the basis of percentage of profits on business transacted by the branch office, unless it be that even if one person in a non-life branch office is to be provided with additional remuneration by way of commission, it will not exceed $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of the profits of that branch. The Legislature will be making itself absurd by imposing conditions on insurance business, life or non-life, which are unworkable and where the Government has no adequate machinery to enforce the observance or otherwise of these conditions.

In regard to sub-clause 3 of this section, I cannot recollect whether there was any discussion about the inclusion of this section at all and it seems to have crept in along with an amended draft in regard to subsection 1. The objects covered by this subsection had apparently not been visualised by the Government at the time the Draft Bill was mooted and I cannot see how it can be brought in at this stage.

Clause 18 (Clause 20 of the Original Draft Bill).

The provisions of 40A in this clause are not those agreed upon at the meeting of the Select Committee. It was proposed that the adoption of the principle of fixation of an overall limit of expenses in regard to life business was desirable and the proposal was acceptable to the large majority of the Committee. The manner in which it is sought to be worked out was left to be investigated by the Government Member and to be placed before the Committee thereafter. I am, therefore, surprised to see that this clause is reproduced in the imperfect form in which it was introduced. As it is, the table appears wholly unscientific. One glaring absurdity in the fixing of percentages according to the total volume of business done by a Company is the impossibility of the percentages being adhered to if a Company passes from one category on to the next higher one in the normal course of business. In any event, the fixing of such details in the matter of working expenses of the companies has to be done after some scientific investigation and not by the acceptance of the recommendation made by any one company. The objective, namely the reduction of expenses of the less efficient companies is best achieved by taking the average of the expenses of the first twenty life insurance companies, in the order of importance according to the volume of business secured by them and fixing a limit regarding the percentage of commission payable to insurance agents as well as the percentage of expenses on the first year's premium and on renewal premiums. It is unnecessary in my view to make any provision in regard to the business done in the year 1945, nor would I agree to any drastic limitation on the percentage of commission payable to insurance agents in respect of renewal premiums.

In regard to 40B, I am not in favour of fixing the overall expenses ratio in non-life business without calling for the opinion of every company concerned in the matter. There is no question of safeguarding of the interests of the Policy-holders in this connection. It is a matter in which the State cannot legitimately interfere and I would be loath to support any action by the State, unless a large majority of Indian companies doing non-life business wish for this kind of limitation to be fixed.

Clause 20 (Clause 21 of the Original Draft Bill).

The provisions of this clause seek to exclude life insurance agents from becoming Directors of any Insurance Company. In my opinion this disability should be made applicable to all persons who are disqualified from becoming Directors under section 48, subsection 2(a).

Clauses 33 and 34 (Clauses 34 and 35 of the Original Draft Bill).

By the provisions contained in these clauses, the procedure for amalgamation of Insurance Companies laid down in sections 35, 36 and 37, is sought to be applied to Provident Societies with this difference that instead of judicial Courts, the Superintendent of Insurance will be the authority to decide on amalgamation of Provident Societies subject to a right of appeal to court of law. I remain unconvinced on the necessity or the desirability of eliminating the jurisdiction of the courts of law in the first instance, nor do I feel that the Superintendent of Insurance is so placed that by displacing the courts of law he will contribute to the amalgamation of Provident Societies being made either more cheaply or more expeditiously than through the ordinary processes of law.

Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEPARTMENT

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Factories Act, 1934, was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 10th March 1945 :—

We, the undersigned, members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Factories Act, 1934, was referred have considered the Bill, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

Clause 1—The short title has been brought up to date.

In order that the changes made by the Bill may come into operation simultaneously in all Provinces we have fixed the first day of January 1946, as the date of commencement of the Act.

Clause 3—Proposed section 49A—A subsection has been added to ensure that the specific benefits conferred by this legislation do not prejudice any rights to which the worker may be otherwise entitled.

Proposed section 49B—In subsection (1) the words "at least" have been omitted. The presence of these words might be used to increase the obligation on the employer beyond the limits contemplated by the Bill, or might lead to variations from Province to Province in the extent of the obligation imposed. We have also provided that in the case of a child the holidays allowed shall amount to fourteen.

In subsection (2) the language has been clarified to avoid the possibility of a claim to add seven days holidays to an accumulation already extending to fourteen days.

Subsection (3) has been added to entitle a worker who is discharged, or who leaves his employment before being granted leave to which he is entitled and for which he has asked, to payment of the allowance that would have been made to him if he had got the holidays which he had earned.

In the Explanation we have put a limit of 90 days in the aggregate on the time for which interruptions caused by sickness, accident and authorised leave may extend. We have also added words intended to ensure that the worker shall not be deprived of the benefit of the holidays to which he is already entitled under section 35 of the Act by having these counted as part of the authorised leave.

Proposed section 49C—We have substituted for the word "earnings" the term "wages" of which there is a comprehensive definition in the Payment of Wages Act, 1936.

A new section has been inserted by us as section 49E, the existing proposed sections 49E and 49F being re-numbered, to give power to Inspectors to act on behalf of workers in enforcing their rights to payment for holidays.

In proposed section 49F, conferring a rule-making power, we have inserted a specific reference to a power to require the keeping of Holiday Registers, and to secure the inspection of these. We have also provided that the Central Government should have power to issue directions to Provincial Governments as to the substance of the rules to be made, in order that uniformity may be secured in the various Provinces. This provision requires the previous sanction of the Governor-General under section 126 (2) of the Government of India Act, 1935, before it can be considered by the Assembly, and we request that steps be taken to secure this sanction.

2. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India, dated the 8th April 1944.

3. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require re-publication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

MINUTES OF DISSENT

(1) The benefit of the Bill is unnecessarily restricted only to workers working in industrial undertakings to which the Factories Act applies. The provisions of the Bill should have been made applicable to mines, plantations and other organised industries.

(2) A holiday of seven days is not enough to meet reasonably the need of an annual rest. I would like the holiday to consist of a fortnight.

(3) Arrangement should be provided by which an employee who puts in twelve months' work under more than one employer should be given a continuous holiday with pay.

(4) The worker should be given not half but full wages for the period of the holidays before he takes the holiday.

Clause 3 (49B)—While I am in general agreement with my colleagues in the Select Committee that leave with pay should be granted, the provisions in this clause are opposed to long established custom and practice in Eastern India. Circumstances in Eastern India, where the great majority of labour employed in factories is immigrant labour from other provinces, have introduced a clear cut distinction between periods of leave and holiday. Because he retains his interest in the land, because of family connections and religious and social obligations, the industrial worker still continues to follow the long established custom of returning for extended periods every year or two years to his village home. For the time being he ceases to be an industrial worker and assumes his former agricultural life and in such a cessation of occupation the employer has no obligation to grant him remuneration nor does the worker expect it. The situation is one which has no parallel in any western industrial community and indeed can arise only in one in which industrial employment is a transient phase in the life of the individual worker. The application to such periods of leave of the ideas recently developed in the West of the necessity of short periods of paid holidays a clearly based on false premises and is entirely insuited to Indian conditions. On the other hand the workers have always been accustomed to celebrations of customary religious festivals as they occur and to take holidays in the true sense of the word on such occasions. It has been customary in Eastern India for these holidays to be granted and in recent years, it has become increasingly common for such individual holidays to be paid holidays. Practice has, therefore, evolved al ng lines which are natural to and popular with the worker and any attempt to withdraw these privileges would meet with unanimous opposition and would be a cause of serious labour trouble. I am, therefore, of opinion that this clause should be so framed as to provide for both staggered and consecutive holidays with pay and that the Bill should make it clear that the grant of six staggered holidays with pay shall be considered in law as conferring upon workers benefits equivalent to those conferred by the grant of six consecutive holidays with pay. If, therefore, the word "consecutive" is deleted from this clause, it can be read to provide for either one type of holiday with pay or the other up to the required minimum.

The clause as at present drafted makes no provision for holidays being availed of, during the period in which they become due, on dates to be fixed by the employer. Unless some provision is made in this regard large numbers of workmen may demand their leave at different periods thus resulting in the complete disorganisation of a factory. I am informed that this provision will be made in the Rules, but in view of the importance of the question I am of opinion that it should be incorporated in the Bill itself.

Explanation under 49B—Interruptions in service brought about by sickness or accident have not, in my opinion, been clearly defined in the Bill and, as at present worded will cause confusion. Leave is invariably granted in cases of genuine sickness and I consider that the words "sickness, accident or authorised leave" should be deleted and the following substituted "authorised leave granted on account of sickness, accident or for compassionate reasons".

"93A. Publication of speeches in Indian Legislatures—No publication made in good faith, of any speech or speeches in any Indian Legislature, is an offence."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

It is proper and necessary that, for the due and effective exercise and discharge of the functions and duties of the Indian Legislatures, and of the members thereof, and for the promotion of wise and good work in the Legislatures, no obstruction or impediment should exist in the way of the publication, not only in official reports, but in the newspapers and journals of the country, of the speeches, votes, and proceedings of the Indian Legislatures. The recent ruling of the President of the Legislative Assembly given on the point of privilege raised by Sardar Sant Singh, M. L. A., in connection with the publication of his speech by Mr. Krishna Kanta Malaviya, M. L. A., in the Abyudhaya, has brought the whole question to the front. The present position is exceedingly dangerous for the Legislature, for the people, and for the Press. Parliamentary work is likely to become a farce if the widest possible publicity is not given to the work therein. It is impossible to expect the newspapers to examine critically the speeches of the members of the Legislatures before publishing them. It is not right that the Sword of Damocles, the executive action under the Press Act, or any other penalty should hang over them. Moreover the electors would like to know how their representatives speak and vote in the Legislature to which they send them. In the Irish Free State such a privilege is conferred by Statute. It has been enacted in England by the Bill of Rights that the freedom of speech, debate or proceedings in Parliament ought not to be impeached.

There is no danger of abuse of this power of publication of the speeches made in the Assembly, because Standing Order 29 of the Legislative Assembly provides that a member while speaking shall not utter treasonable, seditious or defamatory words. Without this right the freedom of speech of the members in the Indian Legislature may be reduced to almost nothing, and this Bill is perfectly consistent with the provisions of the Government of India Act, which under section 67 (7) provides that "No person shall be liable to any proceedings in any court by reason of his speech or vote in either chamber, or by reason of anything contained in any official report of the proceedings of either chamber". These official reports are available to any citizen at reasonable prices. Publication of the proceedings in other newspapers cannot create any different situation. Hence this Bill.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

THE present draft Bill is an adaptation and modification of the Bombay Act. No. XIII of 1924: The Bombay Children Act, 1924 (as modified on the 15th January 1940).

2. Sections 4-A, 45-A, 45-B, 46-A, 46-B, 46-C, 47-B and 47-C, have been newly added, in view of their importance and practical usefulness.

3. The words 'Punjab' or 'Lahore' have been substituted for the word 'Bombay', according to the context, and words such as 'Presidency Magistrate', which do not apply to the Punjab have been deleted.

4. Subsections deleted in the Bombay Children Act have been omitted in the present draft Bill, and the remaining subsections have accordingly been re-numbered.

5. The foot-notes and their reference marks occurring in the Bombay Children Act have been omitted in the present draft Bill.

6. The exception allowed in section 10 of the Bombay Children Act has been omitted. This section is directed against causing or allowing a child to beg.

Explanation.—It is a common occurrence that a large number of orphanges, and unscrupulous individuals send out children to beg on the streets from door to door (particularly in the first week of the month). Sometimes these children have to make the pretence of music or singing. It may be that certain religious groups may demand an exception, but unless such a situation does arise (and has reason to be considered), the law should take a firm attitude. In the Delhi Children Act (which is an abridged version of the Bombay Children Act) this subsection is omitted.

7. Additions to the Bombay Children Act are mostly taken from the Children and Young Person Act, 1933 (English Law), on which all the Children Acts in India are based. Due care has, however, been taken to include only such provisions as are calculated to suit the conditions prevailing in the Punjab, and in any case, the experience of the practical working of the Provincial Children Acts has been the chief guide.
